Preface to the Third Edition.

The third revised and enlarged edition of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā of the celebrated author Rājasekhara, published as No. 1 of the Gaekwad's Oriental Series is now presented to the public. The Kāvya-mīmāṃsā with which the Gaekwad's Oriental Series was inaugurated in 1916, has proved to be popular with scholars as also with Universities, many of them prescribing the work as a text-book. The first edition was exhausted in 1924, and the second in 1933, and the third is going forward with several new features which, the present editor believes, will enhance its usefulness for scholars and students alike.

The text of the present edition is once more collated with MS. No. 6065 of the Oriental Institute, Baroda, which is a transcript of the original paper MS. preserved in the Wādi Pārśvanātha's temple at Pattan. This MS. is marked B. in the previous editions. Quotations from the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā in later works have been carefully compared with the text, and this has enabled the present editor to suggest several correct readings of obscure and incorrect words which had crept into the previous editions. Emendations such as these have been added to the text in square brackets.

Another noteworthy feature of this edition, to which attention of readers may be drawn, consists of the elaborate and exhaustive notes on words and passages of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā which have a bearing on the past history and culture of India. It is hoped that with the help of these notes, it will be possible for students to appreciate the remarkable scholarship of Rājasekhara more fully and more comprehensively.

Among the apparatus criticus added to this edition, mention may be made of a list of earlier works which Rājasekhara utilized as source-books in preparing the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. This has been given in an Appendix to this edition. In another Appendix identifications have been given of 212 geographical names mentioned in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. Many of these geographical names have been treated in Cunningham's Ancient Geography of India, and the Geographical Dictionary of Ancient and Modern India by N. L. Dey. These two works form the background of this Appendix and no references have been given while dealing with the identifications proposed therein, unless I had reasons to differ from them.

In preparing this edition, I have received help from various sources, and in this respect, I am particularly indebted to Mahāmahopādhyāya S. Kuppuswami Shastri, Professor of Sanskrit, Presidency College, Madras who has offered numerous suggestions in emending the text; to Dr. B. Bhattacharyya, the Director of the Oriental Institute Baroda, who revised the press copy and proofs of the whole of the English portion; and to Mr. M. A. Joshi of the Oriental Institute who helped in collation and prepared the press copy of the notes and appendices.

Preface to the Second Edition.

The text of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā has been based on two MSS. from the Pattan Jain Bhandārs, designated A and B.

A is a palm-leaf MS. belonging to the Bhandār deposited in the Vakhatji's Sheri in Folia Wādā. This is the very MS. mentioned by Dr. Peterson in his 5th Report. The MS. is very correct and reliable, but unfortunately it is incomplete and much injured. It is 13"×13 $\frac{3}{4}$ " with 5 lines on a side, and consists of 4-11, 13-25, 29-54 leaves and 8 much injured pieces containing the ends of the 16th and the 17th chapters. The fourth leaf begins with ग्रन्थमीरुप्रियार्थम् (second chapter page 4 line 2nd), and the 54th leaf ends with आलेख्य the beginning of the 13th chapter (page 69 line 2) The first of the 8 much injured leaves begins with वरनमुचिपुलोमप्रभृतय. दानवा (page 88 line 23) and ends with इत्थं देशविभागे सुद्रामात्रेण (page 98 line 8) The MS. seems from its writing (which is Brahmanical and not Jain) to have been copied at about the end of the 13th century A. D. It is numbered only on the left side with numerical figures This MS., being old and very correct, has been mainly relied upon as far as available.

B is a part of a paper MS. from the Bhandār deposited in the Wādi Pārśwanāth's Temple at Pattan. It is a very beautifully-written old Jain paper MS. with numerical signs on the left and letters on the right to show the pagination. It contains two works (1) काव्यमीमासा—कविरहस्य (leaves 1-31a lines 3) (2) कविरहस्यवृत्ति a commentary on Halāyudha's कविरहस्य (कविशुद्ध) by रविधर्म (31a-lines 4-55) The MS. was written, like most of the MSS. of this very important Bhandār, in the time of Jinabhadra-sūri, the pontiff of the Kharatara Gacchha in Saṃvat 1491 (A. D. 1434). The writer's colophon runs as follows:—शुभमस्तु लेखकपाठकयोः । छ । मंगलं महाश्रीः । छ । सवत् १४९१ वर्षे चैत्रवदि १३ शनौ श्रीखरतरगच्छे श्रीजिनभद्रसूरि-विजयराज्ये भाण्डागारे काव्यमीमासा लिखितं ॥ छ ॥ श्री । छ । श्री छ । श्रीः । छः श्रीः । कल्याणमस्तु । छ । श्रीः । छ । श्रीः ।

The portion of Ravidharma's Kavirahasyavṛtti begins —

The paper MS. contains the complete text of Kāvyaṁīmāṁsā-Kavirahasya and is generally correct. As it seems to have been copied from the palm-leaf MS. in the Jesalmere Bhandār, the copyist has occasionally erred in reading and transcribing the MS.

Besides these, three MSS. of Hemachandra's Kāvyaṁūsāsana-viveka have been also utilized in the portion borrowed by Hēma-chandra from the Kāvyaṁīmāṁsā. It may here be noted that a critical edition of Hemachandra's Kāvyaṁūsāsana with the Viveka is a necessity.

The celebrated Jesalmere Bhandār also contains an old palm-leaf MS. of this work dated Samvat 1216, but it is reported to be not in a good state of preservation.¹ It is a matter for regret that the valuable treasures of this Bhandār—one of the most important Bhandārs—are not accessible even to Jain Sādhus.

The work of editing from such insufficient materials was somewhat difficult, but we have tried our utmost to make the best of the materials that were available, and have ventured to bring to light this important work of a famous writer in Sanskrit literature.

We have to thank the keepers of both these Bhandārs for lending their MSS. and especially Sheth Vādīlāl Hirachand, the keeper of the Bhandār of the Wādi Pārśwanāth's temple, for putting at our disposal the rarest MSS. of the Bhandār for publication in the Gaelwād's Oriental Series. Our hearty thanks are also due to Pravartaka Kāntivijayaji for helping us in procuring the MSS.

1 The late Mr Dalal, subsequent to the publication of this book, paid a visit to Jesalmer and collated the text with this palm-leaf MS. Variant readings have been incorporated in the present edition and this MS. is termed as C. It consists of two works (1) काव्यमीमासा and (2) कविरहस्य comprising 90 and 74 leaves respectively and is 11" x 2" in size. The colophon of काव्यमीमासा runs as.—'सवत् १२१६ वर्षे फाल्गुन वदि १ सोमदिने'—B. B.

Introduction to the Third Edition.

A. Rājas'ekhara—the Author.

I. His Time.

Many details are given by the author himself regarding the place and period in which he flourished, and in fact, in this respect, he is more prolific than any other Sanskrit dramatist of ancient times. Rājas'ekhara wrote not less than four dramas and from these we can gather that he was a teacher of the king Nirbhaya-Mahendrapāla, and was patronized by his son Mahīpāla who ruled over the country of Madhyadeśa with its capital at Kanauj. From the Asni inscription dated Vikrama Sam. 974=A. D. 917-918 and the Siyodoni inscription (E. I. Vol. I. p. 171) we can ascertain that the two kings Mahendrapāla and his son Mahīpāla of Kanauj belonged to what is known as the Gurjara Pratihāra dynasty. From historical and archaeological evidences, it has been possible to assign the period 890-908 A. D. to Mahendrapāla, and 910-940 A. D. to his son Mahīpāla with certainty. It is thus probable that Rājas'ekhara belonged to the courts of these two kings, but the major part of his life was spent in the court of Mahendrapāla who is said to be his disciple in all his plays. Mahīpāla (A. D. 910-940) seems to have maintained Rājas'ekhara only in the earlier part of his reign, since the Bālabhārata the only drama to be performed in his presence remains incomplete, and appears to be the last composition of the author. It is thus not unreasonable to assign a period of 880-920 A. D. to Rājas'ekhara, the present author.

His connections with Āryaksemīśvara, the author of the drama Candakausika, may be found interesting in this connection. It was supposed that Ksemīśvara belonged to the court of King Mahīpāla (A. D. 974-1026) of the Pāla dynasty of Bengal.¹ But from the evidences recorded below, it will be found that he belonged to the court of king Mahīpāla of the Gurjara Pratihāra dynasty and was a junior contemporary of Rājaśekhara; and very probably joined the court of king Mahīpāla after the death of Rājaśekhara.

There are good reasons to identify the Mahīpāla of Ksemīśvara with the king Mahīpāla of the Gurjara Pratihāra dynasty. Kṣemīśvara mentions that Mahīpāla defeated Karnātas, and thus followed Candragupta Maurya of old in his foot-steps, who uprooted the Nandas with the lead of Cānakya.¹ This, in all probability, alludes to the incidents to which a reference has been made in the Cambay Plates of Govinda IV and the Khajuraho inscription (E. I. Vol. VII, pp. 26-47). From these we learn that the Rāstrakuta king Indra III (c. 915-917) defeated king Mahīpāla of Kanauj in battle, and that the latter had great difficulties in regaining his throne; he could succeed only through the kind offices of one Chandēlla king Harṣadeva. Ārya Ksemīśvara apparently alludes to this victory of his patron king over the Rāstrakutas with the help of the Chandēlla king, and rightly compares this with the victory obtained over the Nandas by Candragupta through the assistance of Cānakya.² But it may, however, be noticed that this incident is not alluded to by Rājaśekhara, and this fact makes it probable that the fight with the Rāstrakutas took place much later in Mahīpāla's reign. On the other hand, Kṣemīśvara who mentions this incident in his drama, in all probability belonged to the court of Mahīpāla when Rājaśekhara was either dead or no longer there.

There are further literary evidences in support of the period 880-920 A. D. assigned to Rājaśekhara. Ānandavardhana who flourished in a period between 857-884 A. D. is quoted by Rājaśekhara,³ while Rājaśekhara is quoted by Somadeva,⁴ Sodḍhala⁵ and Abhinavagupta⁶ who flourished in the later half of the 10th century.

II. His Works.

Rājaśekhara himself informs us in his prelude to the Bālarāmāyana that he composed six works. While replying to his critics who alleged that his drama was abnormally lengthy, he incidentally requests his readers to peruse the six works already composed by him in case there was any virtue in them.¹ From this statement it would appear that Rājaśekhara composed six works already before his Bālarāmāyana was taken up in hand.

Prof. Sten Konow² believes that the Karpūramañjarī was his first composition on the ground that it was staged at the request of his wife Avantīsundarī, which is rather unusual since all others were performed at the request of his patron kings. This is further strengthened by the fact that it was composed at a time when he had attained the position of a Kavirāja or a prince among poets.³

The Viddhasālabañjikā and the Bālarāmāyana must have been composed afterwards when the author gained greater reputation and maturity. The Bālabhārata probably was his last work, since it is found to be incomplete in two acts instead of the usual five or more, and since the Bharatavākya showing the completion of the drama is absent.

To these four works, we have to add two more, namely, the present work Kāvyaṁimāmsā and the Haravilāsakāvya, the existence of which is borne out through quotations made in later works.⁴

According to his own admission, the Kāvyaṁimāmsā was projected by Rājaśekhara in 18 lengthy Adhikaranas each containing several Adhyāyas, but unfortunately, the whole of this work is not found except the first, the Kavirahasya. It will be rather difficult to declare that Rājaśekhara left both the works Bālabhārata and Kāvya-mīmāṃsā unfinished. We would rather have to assume that at least the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā was completed by him, since he refers frequently to the subject matter of subsequent chapters in the earlier portion of the Kavirahasya.¹ In that case, the probability that the Bālabhārata was his last work, will be great.

If that be so, we are inclined to believe that the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā was composed at a time when his three dramas were already in existence, and this is corroborated by the fact that the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā contains numerous quotations from only two of his Sanskrit dramas, namely the Bālarāmāyana and the Viddhasālabbhañjikā.²

The case of the Haravilāsa, however, is somewhat different, and we can understand from stray quotations in later works that it was a Mahākāvya, and probably, was composed before any of his dramas were written. In this connection it is interesting to note that if an author wants to attain the position of a Kavirāja, he has first to pass through the stage of a Mahākavi, or in other words, he has first to write a Mahākāvya³ before he is able to handle more sublime themes and thereby attain the position of a Kavirāja (see the names of 10 stages of a poet, infra, text, p 19).

From the above, it will be patent that only four works were in existence at the time when his Bālarāmāyana was composed, and not six, as mentioned by the author. But since Rājaśekhara mentions six, we are led to assume that at the time of writing, he may have taken into account two of his projected works, namely, the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā and the Bālabhārata.

Now, the question arises as to whether Rājaśekhara wrote any other work besides the six already known. The later anthologies do not mention or quote from any other work of Rājaśekhara besides the six already referred to.¹ In this connection attention of scholars may be drawn to a statement made by Rājasēkhara at the end of the 17th chapter of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, to the effect that if more information is needed on the subject of world geography, a reference should be made to his Bhuvanakośa.² This has led some to conclude that Rājasēkhara wrote a separate work called the Bhuvanakośa besides the six already known.

But this does not seem to be correct. The Bhuvanakośa here mentioned is the title of the 19th or the last chapter of the 1st Adhikāraṇa, and this chapter along with the other 17 Adhikāraṇas is entirely lost. If a reference is made to the list of subjects given in the first chapter of the Kavirahasya,³ it will be readily observed that Bhuvanakośa is the title of the last chapter of the first Adhikāraṇa which the author names as Kavirahasya.

It may, however, be suggested that the portion of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā beginning from the 19th chapter of the 1st Adhikāraṇa to the end was never written, and that he did not live to complete his encyclopaedic work. If this position is accepted we may hope to find one day the missing acts of the Bālabhārata from some of the still undiscovered MSS. Libraries, for it is hardly possible that our author would leave two of his works unfinished. It may be possible in modern days, but it was not so at least in ancient days.

B. The Kāvya-mīmāṃsā.

I. Significance of the subject matter.

The 7th and the 8th centuries of the Christian era in India was a period of feverish literary activity. In this period stalwarts of literature were busy in writing comprehensive works in order to reduce the different branches of study into a system. This period saw the birth of Uddyotakara, Kumārila and S'āṅkarācārya, the writers, famous for their philosophical and polemical works in Hinduism. While, on the other hand, in the field of Buddhism we notice the towering figures of Dharmakīrti, S'āntarakṣita and Kamalaśīla. This period was immediately preceding the period in which Rājaśekhara was born and flourished, and it is very unlikely that he would not be influenced by the endeavours of his predecessors in writing a comprehensive work and reduce the Alaṅkāra literature to a system. The time was also not unripe for such an attempt. Round the classical work of Bharata, already had grown a considerable literature which was enriched with the contributions of Bhāmaha, Daṇḍin, Rudrata and Ānandavardhana. Such a rich material on the one hand pressing for a comprehensive review, and the comprehensive works of the philosophical systems on the other, must have created an enthusiasm in the mind of Rājaśekhara and actuated him to make an attempt to reduce the Alaṅkāra literature to a system by writing an encyclopædic work like the present one—the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā—which was to treat the different methods of poetics and the schools of literary criticism, with a view to put everything on a thoroughly scientific basis. In doing so, he not only followed in the footsteps of Kautilya and Vātsyāyana, in arranging the subject-matter, but also the great authors of Dharmamīmāṃsā and Brahmamīmāṃsā; and this is evident from the very title of his work, the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. He also ascribes to his Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, a divine origin following in the wake of other great systems, and gives for the first time a legendary list of succession of Gurus and disciples, and of the progenitors of the different branches of the science of poetics.

1. Many verses quoted in the anthologies may be traced out in his extant dramas and others probably belong to his lost work Haravilāsa.

The division of his subject-matter in eighteen branches like the eighteen points of law is not only novel but also interesting and systematic. In this, however, Rājaśekhara was forestalled to a certain extent by Rudrata,¹ but nevertheless his classification is much fuller and much more exhaustive. Rudrata, for instance, had no knowledge of such branches as Vainodika, Aupanisadika, etc. which were Rājaśekhara's own. The Aupanisadika chapter occurs also in the Arthaśāstra and the Kāmasūtra, and this may have induced the present author to include a chapter on Aupanisadika in his Alaṅkāra work, giving directions to dullards as to how through Mantras and such other mystic means one may attain poetical eminence, when natural gifts are entirely wanting.

1. See. Infra Notes. pp. 123-124.

Nevertheless marked similarity also is noticeable in the method of treatment here with that of Kautilya and Vātsyāyana. For instance, the full list of subjects, treated of in the Arthaśāstra and the Kāmasūtra, appears at the end of the first chapter and here, likewise it is given at the end of the first chapter S'āstra-saṅgraha. It is a matter of regret, however, that all MSS. of the text do not contain the full list of subjects treated in all the eighteen Adhikaranas; instead, we find the list complete only for the first Adhikarana or Kavirahasya with the significant remark इत्यादि at the end.

Since the whole work in eighteen Adhikaranas is not found, it is very difficult to understand the working of the author's mind in the commencement of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā; but from the imperfect materials thus at our command, it can be asserted, somewhat hesitatingly, that the first three Adhyāyās or chapters of the first Adhikarana are intended by the author to serve as a general introduction to the whole work of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā in eighteen Adhikaranas. The first Adhikarana or the Kavirahasya under the circumstances begins from the fourth Adhyāya.

In the first of the three Adhyāyas, the author treats of the origin of the science of poetics, and gives a comprehensive list of subjects included therein. In the second Adhyāya, he makes an attempt to determine the exact position of the science of poetics in relation to the Vedas and post-Vedic literature, and declares that the science dealt with by him should be regarded as the seventh Vedāṅga and the fifteenth Vidyāsthāna. It is well known that the Vedāṅgas in Sanskrit literature are six in number, and the number of sciences has been fixed at fourteen, and in none of these lists the science of poetics is included. In support of his contention, Rājasēkhara goes on to say that the science of poetics has the function of correctly interpreting the Vedic texts, and thus serves the purpose of an auxiliary to the Vedas in the same way as the other Vedāṅgas. He further asserts that the function of the fourteen Vidyāsthānas, is to impart the knowledge of the Dharma and Artha, and since from the science of poetics or Kāvya-vidyā the same result is obtained, it should also be regarded as one of the Vidyāsthānas, and should not be distinguished from the other fourteen sciences.

Rājaśekhara goes a step further and declares that the science of poetics leads the way to emancipation or Moksa, and as such its status is not different from the six systems of philosophy. In the third or the last Adhyāya of the introduction, Rājaśekhara shows how emancipation can be obtained by poets and how they can experience immense bliss and freedom from worldly troubles, through the correct understanding of the Sāhityavidyā and Kāv्यapurusa, which are primarily designed for the emancipation of man. The systems of philosophy advocate the real knowledge of Dharma or Brahman as means of obtaining salvation; even so, the correct knowledge of Kāv्यapurusa, the son of Brahman and Sarasvatī, leads to the realisation of Brahman and the consequential emancipation from the chain of existence.

To return to the subject matter, the third chapter treats of the origin of the Kāv्यapurusa, his connection with Kavi, Vālmiki and Vyāsa, his marriage with Sāhityavidyā, his wanderings with her throughout India, the creation of Vrttis, Pravrttis and Ritis at different places and the resolve of the couple to reside permanently in the minds of poets. While concluding the chapter, the author declares that those poets who become immortal by virtue of their compositions enjoy eternal bliss in heaven in a divine form; and those who can realise the Kāv्यapurusa, obtain emancipation both here and hereafter.¹

As has been said already, the subject-matter of the first Adhikarana or the Kavirahasya commences from the fourth chapter and may be sub-divided under three broad heads. (1) the equipments necessary for a poet, (2) the rules to be observed by him, (3) and the methods harmful to him. The first subject is treated of in six chapters (4-9) where such topics as Padavākyaviveka, Pāthapratīṣṭhā, Kāv्यārthayoni, and Arthavyāpti are dealt with.

The second subject as stated above is covered by the tenth chapter which is one of the most interesting chapters of the Kavirahasya. This chapter commences with the remark² that when a poet is armed with all the equipments necessary as pointed out previously, he may commence to write and while doing so, observe certain rules of discipline. Thereafter, in the same chapter the routine to be followed by a poet for all the twenty four hours is given along with certain secret hints, which may be found very instructive. Among others, this chapter lays down that (i) a poet should not read his composition to others so long as it is in an incomplete stage; (ii) he should not be vain on account of his good composition; (iii) he should obtain the opinion of his superiors on his own composition before publication; (iv) he should not create an enmity with impostrous poets (v) and he should prepare several transcripts of his composition as soon as final touches had been given.

At the end, the author lays down special rules to be observed by a king when he himself happens to be either a poet or a patron of the men of letters.

The third subject is dealt with in eight chapters (11-18) where the author enumerates various methods considered to be definitely injurious to the reputation of a poet, and gives copious instances to illustrate his view-point. This part deals with plagiarism, conventions of ancient poets, Indian geography and the geography of the world, ancient methods of description of incidents, places and men, computation of time, and seasonal changes. While concluding, the author reminds his readers that the methods adopted by ancient writers are the best and should be adhered to, while modern methods which run counter to the usage established by the ancients¹ should be abandoned. How immensely helpful these hints are, can be realized only too well by one who can detect the unruly tendencies in modern literature in the extreme pursuit of the phantom of realistic art!

II. Historical Data.

As has been shown already, the contributions of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā to the elucidation of the cultural history of India, are many and varied. No less important are its contributions to the political history of Mediæval India. While illustrating the different topics of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, Rājasekhara cites examples and verses from earlier works, which throw a flood of light on the problems of political history. And, here, it is proposed to give a few examples which definitely show that the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā is able to help historical studies.

The verse दत्त्वा रुद्रगति etc. occurs on p. 47 of this work, and this is given manifestly as an example of Mukataka or a detached verse. But the verse alludes to a very important historical fact. On information obtained from this verse and other sources such as the fragments of the *Devicandragupta*¹ of Viśākhadatta, the *Sañjan Copper-plates of Amoghavaiśa*² I, (A. D 873), Bāna's Harṣacarita,³ *S'rngāraprakāśa*⁴ of Bhoja, the *Cambay plate of Govinda*⁵ IV, the Nātyadarpaṇa of Rāmacandra and Gunacandra,⁶ scholars have come to certain conclusions regarding the history of the Gupta period, and these may be summarised as follows. There was a king called Rāmagupta who succeeded his father Samudragupta and preceded his brother Candragupta II, and ruled for a short time. Dhruvadevī was the queen of Rāmagupta originally. This king encountered a certain Khasa or S'aka king in the Himālayas and was defeated. He saved himself and his kingdom by entering into an ignominious treaty with the victor. According to the terms of the treaty he was to surrender his queen Dhruvadevī to the Khasa or S'aka king in return for the liberty of himself and his kingdom. The humiliating treaty enraged his brother Candragupta, who, disguised himself as Queen Dhruvadevī, went to the enemies' camp at Alpura and killed the Khasa or S'aka king. On his return, he killed his brother Rāmagupta also and married his widowed queen Dhruvadevī.

There is a general agreement amongst scholars regarding the historical facts just mentioned, but on certain details there still rages a great controversy. The controversy centres round the name of Khasādhīpati or S'akādhīpati, his identity and the identification of his capital Alipura, the author of the verse in question, and the king to whom it is addressed.

The verse in question makes it clear that the engagement between the Gupta and Khasa kings took place in the Himālayan region, and thus it can be said that Alipura, the capital of the Khasa or S'aka king, was situated somewhere in the Himālayas.

Moreover, according to Rājasekhara's version the victor is called the Khasādhīpati, and the Gupta king is named as S'armagupta or Senagupta instead of S'akādhīpati and Rāmāgupta obtained from sources other than the Kāvyaṁīmāmsā.

There seems to be an agreement at least on one point, namely, that the S'aka or Khasa king referred to in the passage in question, should represent a Kushāṇa king of the Punjab but not a S'aka Satrap of either Malwa or Mathura. But in this connection, attention of scholars is required to be invited to the form Khasādhīpati as recorded in the Kāvyaṁīmāmsā. This particular word means a king of the Khasas or the Khasa tribes the existence of which is made well-known by the Rājatarāṅginī of Kalhana. Sir Aurel Stein located the tribe in the widely distributed regions of the western Himālayas flanking the boundaries of Kashmir with their capital at Rajapuri also known as Khasālaya or Khasālī. The Khasas before the fifth century A. D. became very powerful and seized the kingdom of Kashmir and ruled over it¹ Is it not possible to identify this Alipura with Khasālī, the capital of the Khasas?

Let us now discuss the question regarding the identity of the person to whom the verse in question is addressed. Various scholars have advanced different opinions, and let us examine them in detail and make an attempt to discover whether any finality can be reached. A clue to this vexed question is, however, supplied by the verse itself in its fourth line: गीयन्ते तव कार्तिकेयनगरस्त्रीणा गणैः कीर्तय. ।

In interpreting this line Prof. Altekar² has fallen into the regrettable error of taking the word Kārttikeya in the vocative and in assuming that the verse is addressed to Kārttikeya who is obviously the Kumāragupta I of the Gupta dynasty.

1. M. A. Stein Rājatarāṅginī translation. Vol. I. 317.

2. J. B. O. R. S. Vol. xiv p 223.

Mr. K. P. Jayaswal disagrees¹ with the above and points out that the word Kārttikeya goes with the word Nagara, and adds that "no poet would have mentioned so irreverently about Kumāragupta's own mother to him."

Against this, it may be pointed out that the verse does not show any irreverence on the part of the poet whose business obviously is to eulogise his patron king Kumāragupta or Skandagupta of the Gupta dynasty. For, the weakness of Rāmagupta was already made known by Candragupta, also by Dhruvadevī who discarded her worthless husband and married his brother. Moreover, the descendants of the Gupta dynasty out of disrespect for Rāmagupta never mentioned him in the inscriptions as one of their ancestors. Dr. D. R. Bhandarkar who discussed the question later on,² is disposed to agree with Mr. Jayaswal in considering the word Kārttikeyanagara as the name of a town, and identified it with the ancient village of Vajjanātha in Almora District U. P. on the authority of the Pāndukeśvara copper plate and the Tāleśvara charters.³ Dr. Bhandarkar believes, however, that the verse is addressed to Candragupta, though he is not named expressly therein.

If this position is accepted, Mr. Jayaswal's objection of showing irreverence to Kumāragupta's mother or Dhruvadevī is set at rest. Prof. V. V. Mirashi,⁴ however, remarks that the view held by Dr. Bhandarkar is hardly convincing, because the verse quoted here is a Mukataka or a detached stanza which should not only be complete in itself but also contain the name of the king addressed to. He, thus, commits the same mistake as Prof. Altekar, and takes the word Kārttikeya in the vocative, but advances the new theory that the word stands for the king Mahīpāla of the Gurjara Pratihāra dynasty, the patron of Rājaśekhara. In support of this, he further adds that Ksemīśvara in the Bharatavākya of his drama Candakaśika similarly calls his patron Mahīpāla as Kārttikeya.¹ According to him the verse, in question, was either Rājasekhara's own or a composition of one of his contemporaries in the court of the king Mahīpāla which he inserted in his Kāvya-mīmāṃsā.

Against Prof. Mirashi's theory, it may be pointed out that if the word Kārttikeya is taken out, the word Nagarastrīṇām will have to be taken as a separate and independent word. No poet, howsoever dull, would ever think of saying that the fame of a king was sung by women of the town and afterwards would leave the name of the particular town undisclosed. Nor does it seem reasonable to suppose the poet to be so particular as to exclude the village-women from participating in the praising or singing campaign, by specially naming the women of the town. It is not also possible to suppose that it is the women of the towns who took part in singing eulogies, while the village-women refrained from doing so! The expression स्त्रीणां गणैः is sufficient to include all women, both of towns and villages, and why should it be necessary to qualify स्त्रीणां with the word नगर which reduces the value of the eulogy?

It is not also correct to assume that the Mukataka verse which should be complete in itself should also contain the name of the person to whom the Mukataka is addressed. On the same page 47, there are five other examples of Mukataka verse, and in none of these there is any mention of the name of the person addressed to.

Under the circumstances we can only confirm the view of Messrs Jayaswal and Bhandarkar both of whom rightly take Kārttikeyanagara as one word and identify it with the place where Rāmagupta first sustained a defeat, and later, the Khasa king was killed by Candragupta II in whose praise the verse in question is composed. Accordingly, the last lines of the verse, in question, may be translated thus:

“Your fame is sung today by the women of the Karttikeya-nagara in the same Himālayas which is resonant with the singing of the Kinnaras living in the hollows of spacious caves.”

From the foregoing discussion, it is easy to discover that the verse in question is addressed to Candragupta Vikramāditya by a contemporary poet, and is quoted by Rājaśekhara in his Kāvya-mīmāṃsā.

The second marriage of Dhruvadevī with Candragupta is also to be taken as a settled historical fact, on the authority of the Sañjan¹ copper plate of Amoghavarsa I and the Cambay² plate of Govinda IV.

Two more verses are quoted by Rājaśekhara on pp. 60-61 of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, which throw a flood of light on the vexed question of the date of Kālidāsa. The verses in question record a conversation between a king and his messenger. Identical verses are subsequently quoted by Bhoja in his S'rngāraprakāśa with the remark that here the king represents Vikramāditya and the messenger, Kālidāsa.³ The verses in question refer to a message, conveyed by Kālidāsa from the king of Kuntala to Vikramāditya who approves of the request made by the Kuntala king. Tradition ascribes to Kālidāsa a work called the Kuntaleśvaradautya, and as the subject-matter of the verses quoted here relates to the diplomatic communications of the king of Kuntala, it is not unreasonable to suppose that the verses belonged to the now lost work Kuntaleśvaradautya of Kālidāsa. A verse from the same work quoted in the Aucityavicāracarcā by Ksemendra refers to the fact that Kālidāsa as an envoy of Vikramāditya was not respected in the court of the Kuntala king who made him sit on the ground and did not offer a seat.⁴ It thus transpires that Kālidāsa was sent as an envoy to the court of the Kuntala king Piṭhvisena Vākātaka, a subordinate of the Gupta kings, by Candragupta II Vikramāditya and that on account of Kālidāsa's mediation friendly relations were established between the two royal houses. This embassy further helps us in fixing a suitable date for Kālidāsa, and once for all ends the controversy regarding his time, raging for the last fifty years or more, in which celebrated scholars have taken part. Kālidāsa must be a contemporary of Candragupta Vikramāditya and the Vākātaka Prthvīsenā, and thus he should be assigned a period corresponding to the last quarter of the fourth century A. D.¹

While mentioning the four boundaries of the city of Kanauj, the capital of his patron kings Mahendrapāla and Mahipāla, Rājasekhara clears up several topographical problems connected with the city, and helps us in identifying certain well-known names of places, identifications of which were open to doubt for a long time. On page 94 he mentions four places: Vāmanasvāmi, Gādhipura, Kālapriya and Brahmaśilā, and all of them seem to be situated in the four directions of the city of Kanauj. Thus, we can understand that these four well-known places in literature were the suburbs of the city of Kanauj. For further details the attention of readers is invited to the page 243, of the explanatory notes appended to this edition.

III. The Geography of Bhāratavarṣa.

Rājasekhara's fondness for geography is borne out by the numerous references to geographical names mentioned in his works, and the ancient notions regarding world geography find a lucid expression in these productions. He gives geographical references in abundance, particularly in two works, namely, the Bālarāmāyāna and the Kāvyaṁīmāmsā. In the former work, while staging the Sītāsvayamvara, a short drama supposed to be a composition of the sage Bharata, and while describing the aerial flight of Rāma to Ayodhyā from Laṅkā, he mentions a large number of places in succession, and these references enable us to fix their location with a fair degree of exactitude.

In the 17th chapter of the Kāvyaṁīmāmsā, the author gives by far the most prolific geographical information regarding the divisions of the world, and the details of the Bhāratavarṣa, and this represents the expert knowledge of geography as prevalent in his time. The earth, he says, is divided into seven great islands encircled by seven oceans. Among these the Jambūdvīpa is situated in the centre and its chief mountain is Mahāmeru. The Mahāmeru, again, is surrounded by the country called the Ilāvṛtavarṣa. The third country to the south of the Mahāmeru is called the Bhāratavarṣa.

The Bhāratavarṣa is divided into nine parts, and the Kumārīdvīpa, one among them, corresponds with the present India from Cape Comorin to the Himālayas. This country is also known as the Cakravartikṣetra. One who holds sway over the whole country is called a Cakravartin, while the king who is able to conquer all the nine parts of the Bhāratavarṣa is called a Saṁrāt.

The author mentions the seven Kulaparvatas of the Kumārīdvīpa, and says that the Āryāvarta is a part of this Dvīpa. Kumārīdvīpa is again subdivided into five parts with Madhyadeśa in the middle, and four other countries in the four directions of the middle country, which according to him is bounded by the Prayāga, the Vindhya range, the Vinaśana and the Himālayas. He places the other four countries as follows. from Benares in the east, from Māhismatī in the south, from Devasabhā in the west and from Pṛthūdaka in the north, all extending to the extreme limits of India.

In the same chapter Rājasekhara gives innumerable details regarding the countries, rivers, mountains and the agricultural products of all the five divisions of the Kumārīdvīpa. These geographical names have been collected together in an appendix in which an endeavour has been made to identify the places mentioned by him, as far as practicable, since it has now become difficult to trace the old sites. It is noteworthy, however, that Rājasekhara includes such countries as Arabia, Persia and Afghanistan in the northern India, and distinguishes Simhala from Lankā. Moreover, he includes in his list many new names not known to the Purāṇas, or the Rāmāyana and the Mahābhārata, or even to the Greek or Arabic historians and the Chinese travellers, as will be seen from the appendix already referred to.

Introduction to the First Edition.

The author of this first work in the Gaekwād's Oriental Series, now presented before the public, is Rājasekhara, the well-known author of the four dramas, Bālarāmāyana, Bālabhārata, Viddhaśālabhañjikā and Karpūramañjarī.

Rājas'ekhara's Ancestry. Rājasekhara calls himself in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā as Yāyāvāriya¹ (born in the Yāyāvāra family). He seems to have been better known as Yāyāvāra to his successors. Dhanapāla in the introductory verses to his Tilakamañjarī refers to him as Yāyāvāra Kavi.² The author of the Udayasundarī refers to him simply as Yāyāvāra³ and praises him for his dramatical skill.

Udayasundarī 8th Uc'he'bhvāsa.

This Udayasundarī is a Champūkathā composed by Sottala, a Vālabha Kāyastha of Lātades'a, in emulation of Bāna's Harshacharita, about Samvat 1050, in the reign of Vatsarāja and under the patronage of king Mummunirāja of Konkana. The author has, over and above his own caste and lineage, given about 25 verses in praise of old poets. It will be instructing to quote these verses, such verses are rare in Sanskrit literature.

forefathers.¹ Akālalajalada his great-grandfather was famous for his poetical gems.² His verses were plagiarized by Kādambarīrama in his drama.³ Surānanda, Tarala and Kavirāja also belonged to this family. Surānanda seems to have been famous at the court of Chedi.⁴ It appears from his opinion quoted in the Kāvya-mīmāmsā that he had written some work on poetics. 'Tarala was also a poet of some eminence. Nothing is known about Kavirāja. Rājas'ekhara's father Durduka or Duhika was a great minister (Mahāmantri), and his mother's name was S'ilavatī.

Rājas'ekhara's caste. We have seen that Rājas'ekhara belonged to the Yāyāvāra family, but it is not clear whether he was a Brāhmana or a Kshatriya. His position as the Upādhyāya of King Mahendrapāla speaks in favour of his being a Brāhmana, while the name Rājas'ekhara and the fact that his wife was of the Chahuāna⁶ family may lead one to think that he was a Kshatriya.

Rājas'ekhara not a Sectarian. As the author of the Haravilāsa, Rājas'ekhara might be regarded to have been a staunch S'aiva, but from the quotations in the Kāvya-mīmāmsā⁷ in praise of Vishnu, it seems that he was not a sectarian. On the other hand, from the Maṅgala verse of the Haravilāsa, it is clear that he believed in the unity of the three godheads. It appears from the ¹Yaśastilaka Champū of Somadeva that in Rājaśekhara's works honour was done even to Jinās when occasion arose.

His wife an accomplished lady. Rājaśekhara quotes thrice² in the Kāvyaṁimāmsā the opinion of his wife Avantisundarī. It would thus appear that she had composed some work on rhetorics. The Karpūramañjarī was also first acted at her desire.

Rājas'ekhara's date. It is understood from the prologues of Rājaśekhara's dramas that he was the Upādhyāya of Mahēndrapāla, king of Kanouj, and was also patronized by his son and successor Mahīpāla. The Siydoni inscription tells us that king Mahēndrapāla was reigning in 903 and 907 A. D. and Mahīpāla in 917 A. D. (Epigraphia Indica Vol. I, p. 171). Independent of his references to king Mahēndrapāla of Kanouj in his works, we can fix his date from other sources too. He quotes in the Kāvyaṁimāmsā Vākpatirāja,³ the author of Gaudavaho, and also Udbhata⁴ who was the Sabhāpati of Jayāpīda, king of Kashmir, who reigned from 779 to 813 A. D., and quotes Ānandavardhana⁵ who flourished in the reign of Avantivarmā of Kashmir (857-884 A. D.). Rājaśekhara is also referred to by Somadēva in the Yaśastilaka Champū which was completed in 960 A. D. and praised by Sottāla who flourished about 990 A. D. From this we can conclude that Rājaśekhara lived about 880-920 A. D.

Rājas'ekhara a Kavirāja. Rājas'ekhara calls himself not a Mahākavi, but a Kavirāja¹ According to the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā there are ten² stages of poetical skill. The sixth is that of a Mahākavi³ and the seventh that of a Kavirāja. Kavirāja is defined⁴ as one who is unrestrained in various languages, various sorts of poetical compositions and various sentiments. Thus a Kavirāja is one stage further than a Mahākavi and Kavirājas are rare.⁵

The sequence of Rājas'ekhara's known works and his undiscovered works. From the Karpūramañjarī 1-9, it is understood that Rājas'ekhara began his literary career as a Bālākavi, so called from his Bālarāmāyana and Bālabhārata. It is thus evident that these two dramas are his early productions; so also Viddhaśālabhañjikā. The Karpūramañjarī and the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā are his later productions, as by this time he had achieved fame as a Kavirāja. Verses from his three Samskṛita dramas are found quoted in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā.

Hemachandra in his ⁶Kāvyaṅuśāsanaviveka (page 335) gives the example of Rājas'ekhara's Haravilāsa as a poem bearing the name of its author. The same author quotes two verses from Haravilāsa both evidently from the first canto. The first⁷ is the benedictory verse of the poem, while the second⁸ pertains to the description of the bad and the good. ⁹Ujjvaladatta also quotes one half of a verse from the Haravilāsa mature production as a Kavirāja. Here either in the first or the last canto, but most probably in the first, may be found appreciatory verses about poets (Viśeshakaviprasāmsā) quoted in Jahlaṇa's Sūktimuktāvalī. Generally the poet's family-history and praise of old poets are given in Ākhyāyikās and Kathās such as the Harsha-charitra, the Tilakamañjarī and the Udayasundarī; but references to old poets are also made in the Mahākāvyas. Mañkhaka in his S'rikanthacharita refers to old and contemporary poets and Someśvara in the first canto of his Kīrtikaumudī eulogizes old poets. This practice of eulogizing the old poets in the beginning of a poem is also found in Piākṛita poems of the 12th century e. g. in the S'āntināthacharitra of Devachandra, Guru of the great Hemachandra. Some say that Rājasekhara wrote a work named Kavi-vimars'a, wherein are to be found the appreciatory verses attributed to him in the Sūktimuktāvalī; but it does not seem probable that Rājasekhara, should ever have written any such work when he had composed such a large work as the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā with 18 Adhikaranas. It was conjectured that the appreciatory verses may occur in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā; but these verses do not occur in the first Adhikaraṇa, nor is there possibility of their being found in other Adhikaraṇas, as the first Adhikaraṇa alone, judging from the contents of the whole work, seems to contain such matter. Besides the Haravilāsa, Rājasekhara composed a work, named Bhuvanakoś'a, on the world's geography. At the end of the 17th chapter of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā he refers the reader to this work¹ for detailed information about the world's geography. Ujjvaladatta quotes a line from Rājasekhara about synonyms² of S'iva. This may be found either in the Haravilāsa or in some unknown lexicon of Rājasekhara. It will thus appear that Rājasekhara was an extensive writer and might have written more works than those hitherto known.

The present work only the first part of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. From the first chapter S'āstrasamgraha, we understand that the author planned a very large work; but unfortunately only the first Adhikāṇa is hitherto available. From remarks like रीतयस्तु तिष्ठन्नास्तु पुरस्तात् (p. 10, l. 5), तमापनिपदिके वक्ष्याम (p. 11, l. 10), it is clear that he had in his mind the execution of the whole work planned out in the first chapter. Whether he succeeded in this and composed the whole work, we have no sufficient data to determine. *Alankāras'ekhara*¹, however, has quoted 2 verses from Rājasekhara. The verses, if they really belong to our author, may have been taken from the उभयालङ्कारिक Adhikāṇa of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. The same work also quotes another verse² which seems to be in the वैदिक Adhikāṇa.

The style of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. As the work is somewhat on the lines of a Sūtra-work, like Kautilya's Arthasāstra and Vātsyāyana's Kāmasūtra, its style is also more or less aphorism-like; and it is no wonder that it is terse and vigorous, charming and pleasing to the ears. The passages and phrases borrowed from the Arthasāstra and the Kāmasūtra will be referred to in the notes.

The Kāvya-mīmāṃsā and later writers on rhetorics. It will be easily seen that Hemachandra has borrowed about one fourth of the present work in his Kāvyaṅus'āsanaṅveka. Chapter 17th and 18th are verbally copied with slight changes in the order. Vāgbhata, son of Nemikumāra, has also borrowed the same portion in the 1st and 5th chapter of his Kāvyaṅus'āsana from Hemachandra with some changes, substituting his own verses in some places. Later writers of Kavis'ikshās, like Kshemendra, Āmara, Vināyachandra and Deveśvarā, seem to have been indebted to the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā for some of the topics treated in their works. The author of the Sarasvatī-kānṭhābharaṇā has quoted a few verses, which are found only in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, and the commentator, Ratneśvara, refers one verse to the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. By the bye, it may be mentioned that the name of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsākāra occurs in S'aṅkara's commentary (Rasāchandrikā) on the Sākuntala.

The origin and the promulgation of poetics. Like other S'āstrakārās our author attributes the origin of poetics to the Supreme Being and the celestials. S'rikanṭha taught this science to Parameshthī, Vaikunṭha and others of his sixty-four pupils. The self-born God imparted it to His will-born pupils. Among these was Kāvya-purusha, born of Sarasvatī. Prajāpati set him to promulgate this science in the three worlds. He taught this to his divine pupils in 18 Adhikaraṇas. Of these, Sahasrāksha and other 17 pupils composed separate treatises on the portions learnt by them. On account of these separate treatises, the science was to some extent lost. The whole, therefore, has been abridged by our author and set forth in one book in 18 Adhikaranas.

The position of poetics in literature. Our author claims a high position for poetical science both in sacred and in profane literature. Rhetorics, says Rājaśekhara, is the seventh Anga, as without it the meanings¹ of the Vedic texts cannot be grasped. In another place he puts literature by the side of the four profane sciences, saying that it is the fifth² lore, and makes it the fifteenth division of learning embodying all others.

The Kāvya-purusha. The idea of the Kāvya-purusha and his brīdē Sāhityavidyāvadhū is quite novel in Sanskrit literature. It seems to have been suggested by the Vedapurusha in the Rig-veda, and the Vedic text “चत्वारि शृङ्गा.—” has been made to praise the Kāvya-purusha. The Goddess of Learning was practising penance on the Himālayas with the desire of having a son. Pleased with her penance, Brahmā gave her a son, afterwards called the Kāvya-purusha. It was from him that metrical speech first originated. Word and meaning make up his body, the different languages his limbs. Sentiment is his soul, and figures of speech are his ornaments. Once upon a time, while Sarasvatī was going to the celestial assembly as a judge, the Kāvya-purusha persisted in following her. In order to prevent him, Bhavānī created Sāhityavidyāvadhū as his bride and asked her to follow him. The bride had to adopt various sorts of dress and dramatic devices to win him. The Kāvya-purusha was gradually captivated by her, and at the end of the journey, he was wholly won over. The pair was then married in Vatsagulma by the Gāndharva marriage. The different kinds of dress and the dramatic modes adopted by Sāhityavidyāvadhū in different countries are imitated by the people of those parts.

The literary court of a king-poet.¹ The king-poet should have a special chamber for testing literary compositions. The chamber should have sixteen pillars, four doors and eight turrets. The pleasure-house should be attached to this chamber. In the middle of the chamber there should be an altar one hand high with four pillars and jewelled floor. Here the king should take his seat. On its northern side should be seated Sanskrit poets and behind them Vaidikās, logicians, Paurāṇikās, Smārtās, physicians, astrologers and such others; on the eastern side the Prākṛita poets, and behind them actors, dancers, singers musicians, bards and such others; on the western side the vernacular poets and behind them painters, jewel-setters, jewellers, goldsmiths, carpenters, blacksmiths and such others; and on the southern side Paisācha poets, and behind them paramours, courtezans, rope-dancers, jugglers, wrestlers and professional soldiers.

¹Literary Examinations. After giving a very glowing picture of what an ideal poet should be and how he should daily conduct himself, Rājasekhara says that a king should hold assemblies for the examination of the works of poets. He should patronize poets, become the Sabhāpati (President) like the ancient kings Vāsudeva, Sātavāhana, S'ūdraka, and Sāhasānka, honour and give donations to the poets, whose works stand the test. Assemblies of learned men (Brahmasabhās) should be held in big cities for examining poetical and scientific works; and the successful should be conveyed in a special chariot (Brahmaratha) and should be crowned with a fillet. Such assemblies for examining in poetry were held in Ujjainī. Kālidāsa, Mentha, Amara, Rūpa, Sūra, Bhāravi, Harichandra and Chandragupta were examined here. Pātaliputra was the centre for examinations in sciences. It was after passing from here that ²Upavarsha, Varsha, Pānini, Piṅgala, Vyāḍi, Vararuchi, and Patañjali got fame as S'āstrakāras.

Literary traditions noted in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. Rājasekhara has noted several traditions which are important in the history of Sanskrit literature. ³Medhāvīrudra and Kumāradāsa were born blind. ⁴S'īsunāga, king of Magadha, had prohibited the use of cerebrals except n and s', sh, ih, and ksli, in his harem;¹ and Kuvinda, king of S'ūrasenā, the use of harsh conjunct consonants. Sātavāhana, king of Kuntala, had ordered the exclusive use of Prākṛita in his harem, while Sāhasānka, king of Ujjayinī, that of Sanskrita.

Writing-materials. Rājaśekhara says that a poet must have always near him a box, a board with chalk, leaves of the Tāḍī-tree or barks of the Bhūrja tree with pens and inkpots, leaves of the Tāla tree with iron nails and well-rubbed plates. It will be seen from this that the palmyra leaves used by the southerners are the leaves of the Tāla tree (Tāladalāni), while those found in the Jain Bhandārs are the leaves of the Tāḍī (Tāḍīpatrāni).

Quotations in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. The illustrations given in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā are literary gems and seem to have been selected from many sources. He has quoted from the Rāmāyaṇa, Mahābhārata, Gītā, Raghuvamśa, Kumārasambhava, Vikramorvas'ya, S'ākhantala, Kṛātārjvṇīya, Jāhākiharaṇa; Kādambārī, Hayagrīvavadha, Mālatīmādhava, Sūryas'ataka, Venīsamhāra, S'is'upālavadha, Mahānāṭaka, Mahimnah-stotra and his own dramas. Yet the major part of these verses remains untraced. Quotations from the S'is'upālavadha and Venīsamhāra show that these poets flourished before the 9th century.

Rhetoricians quoted in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. Rājaśekhara has quoted the opinions of Sūiānanda, S'yāmadeva, Vāmana, Udbhata, Aparājiti, Drauhiṇi, Rudraṭa, Kālidāsa, Vāk'patirāja, Avantisundarī and Ānanda. Vamana, Udbhata, Ānanda and Rudrata are well-known as poeticians. As regards the others, though the names of some of them are familiar, we know nothing about their works on poetics. As the opinion of Rudrata is refuted in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, he must be placed earlier than 900 A. D.

Repetitions in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. Rājaśekhara frequently repeats whole stanzas in his dramas. In the Kāvya- mīmāṃsā too the same fact can be easily noted. The verses स्तमः स्तोकोऽपि (pp. 25 and 83), ज्ञानार्द्रादि (pp. 67 and 76), and संविधातुमभिषेक-सुदासे (pp. 73 and 74) एतास्ता (pp. 45 and 82), एतां विलोक्य (pp. 19 and 45) are quoted twice while the verse गुणानुरागमिश्रेण is quoted thrice (pp. 26, 41 and 83).

Rājas'ekhara's partiality for Kanauj and Pāñchālās. We have seen that Rājas'ekhara was the Upādhyāya of the kings of Kanauj. His partiality for Mahodaya and Pāñchāla can be easily marked in the present work. In the 17th chapter he says that directions should be measured from Mahodaya, and in the 3rd he describes the dress² of the ladies of Mahodaya as adorable. In the Bālarāmāyana too, he describes Kanauj as a very sacred place, and the way of dressing, ornamentation, braiding and speech of its ladies as being studied by the females of other countries. In the same way, the Pāñchālas have been described as the ornament of Antāvedi. "Its people like elegant and new compositions, and the works of its poets are well constructed and the mode of their recitation is, as it were, pouring honey in ears.

Rajas'ekhara and the Lātades'a. Rājas'ekhara seems to have come much in contact with the Lātadeśa, probably through his royal patron. He has made Karpūramañjarī, the heroine of his play Karpūramañjarī, the daughter of the king of the Lātadeśa. The Viddhasālabbhañjikā also belongs to the king of the same country. In the Bālarāmāyaṇa, it is described as the crest¹ of the earth. The elegance of speech and beauty of its ladies are much dilated upon by him in the ²*Kāvya-mīmāṃsā* and the ³*Bālarāmāyaṇa*.

Ancient Indian Geography according to the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. Rājas'ekhara seems to have been very fond of and much acquainted with the geography of India. In the tenth act of his Bālarāmāyaṇa, he describes the countries lying on the way from Ceylon to Ayodhyā. Comprehensive knowledge of the various countries of India is obtained from the 17th chapter of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. Hemachandra and Vāgbhaṭa have borrowed this whole-sale in their works. The information given in this chapter, however, is in brief, as he refers one who wants further information on the subject, to his Bhuvana-Koś'a.

Rājas'ekhara divides आर्यावर्त into five parts 1 पूर्वदेशः, 2 दक्षिणापथः, 3 पश्चाद्देशः, 4 उत्तरापथः and 5 मध्यदेशः.

Dialects of different parts of India. From the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā we gain some knowledge as to what particular dialects were spoken in different parts of India. ¹Gaudas and other people spoke Sanskrit, Lātās were fond of Prākṛit, those living in Mārwār, Takka and Bhādānaka were fond of Apabhramśa, those living in Avanti; Pāriyātra and Daśapura used Bhūtabhāshā, while those living in the Madhyadeśa were well-versed in all languages.

Rājas'ekhara's love for Prākṛita languages. It is said in the prologue of the Bālarāmāyana that Rājaśekhara was well-versed in all languages.¹ His definition of a Kavirāja also requires that he should be proficient in various languages. To him all the languages should be equal.² His Karpūramañjarī would seem to be an illustration of this. In another place, he says that a³ good poet should pay attention to all the languages according to his ability, taste and curiosity. ⁴One and the same idea assumes, different forms of beauty according to the language in which it is expressed. A poet, whose intellect is thus ready in all the languages acquires fame all throughout the world. In the Bālarāmāyana, he describes ⁵Piākṛita as elegant and possessing natural sweetness, Apabhramśa as very elegant, and Bhūtabhāshā as well-formed. ⁶In the Karpūramañjarī, it is said that Sanskrit compositions are harsh, while those in Piākṛit are smooth.

The modes of speech and recitation of ancient Indians. Much interesting information about the modes of speech and recital of peoples of different countries of ancient India can be derived from the 7th chapter of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. 'Māgadhās and some others living east of Benares speak Sanskrit well, but are blunt in Piākrit. ¹A Gauda cannot speak Prākrit well. Either he should give up the attempt or the Prākrit language should be otherwise. A Gauda Brāhman is neither a very clear nor a confused, neither a harsh nor a very soft, neither a deep nor a very loud speaker. ²Whatever may be the sentiment, style or quality, all the Karnātas recite proudly making a twangling sound at the end. ³Diāviḍas, without any exception, recite either prose, poetry or mixture of both in a musical way. ⁴The Lātas who have hated for Sanskrit, speak beautiful Piākrit with their warbling tongue. ⁵The people of Surāshtra and Travana, etc., speak Sanskrita, stimulating it with an admixture of Apabhraṁśa, so as to impart beauty to their speech. ⁶The Kashmirians are good poets through the favour of Sarasvatī; yet their mode of reciting sounds to the ear like a mouthful of Gūdūchī (cocculus cordifolius). ⁷The poets of the Uttaiāpatha, though refined, recite with a nasal sound. ⁸Rich in properties, with the voice corresponding to the style and the perfection of arrangement of words, and divided into cæsuras, the sweet recitation of the Pānchāla poets is, as it were, a flow of honey in ears.

Female education in Rājas'ekhara's time. Rājas'ekhara's views in this connection were very forward and liberal. He says that ¹women too may become poetesses like men. Accomplishment is intimately connected with the soul, but does not depend upon the distinction of the sex. In his time daughters of princes and prime ministers, courtezans and wives of jesters were found well-versed in sciences, and poetesses too.

Foreign travel and the dress question. It appears from the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā that ²ancient poets used to travel to foreign countries and islands, and utilized their experience in those countries in their works. As regards the ³dress to be worn, it is said that divine and other beings should be represented as putting on the dress of the country where they live for the time being. In one's own country, however, one may adopt any dress one likes.

The Colour question of Indians. From the ⁴*Kavisamaya*, we get some idea of the colours of Indians. The colour of the easterners has been described as brown, that of southerners as dark, that of westerners as white, that of northerners as fair, while that of persons living in the Madhyadeśa as dark, brown and white.

1. 1 अथातः । Generally original writers in the sūtra style begin their treatises with the words either अथातः or अथ. Āpastamba, Kaṇāda, Jaimini and Bādarāyana in their respective sūtra works use the words अथात in the beginning, while Patañjali begins with अथ in his works on Yoga and Grammar. Eminent Bhāṣyakāras such as S'abarasvāmin, S'ankarācārya and Patañjali interpret the word अथ generally in two senses, i. e. आनन्तर्य and अविकार. आनन्तर्य is meant when अथ is followed by the word अतः and in all other cases अविकार. Others believe that the words अथात joined together in the beginning of a work, mean nothing but आनन्तर्य. This view, held by Bhavadāsa and other Vṛttikāras on Jaimini earlier than S'abara (cir. 500 A. D), has been cited and refuted in the S'lokavārttika by Kumārila (see Kārikās 1. 33, 34, 63)

Prabhākarabhatta also, while commenting on S'abarasvāmin introduces this view of Bhavadāsa and refutes it in his work entitled the Brhatī, saying: 'लोके' इत्यादिभाष्यस्याथातः शब्दस्यलौकिककार्याशङ्कानिवृत्तिः प्रयोजनम् । (1. 1. 1.)

Some Vṛttikāras, such as Rudradatta and others while commenting on the first sūtra अथातो दर्शपूर्णमासौ व्याख्यास्यामः of the Āpastambaśrauta, take the two words अथातः to mean only आनन्तर्य following Bhavadāsa. S'abarasvāmin, however, refutes this view of Bhavadāsa with care and establishes the meanings of आनन्तर्य for अथ and हेतुभाव for the word अतः in the sūtra अथातो धर्मजिज्ञासा of Jaimini. Other commentators such as Dhūrtasvāmin, S'ankarāmīśra and others, in their works on Āpastamba and Kanāda, take the word अथ to indicate 'Mangala'. But S'ankarācārya in his Bhāṣya on Bādarāyaṇa sūtra disapproves of this and takes अथ to mean only आनन्तर्य, saying अर्थान्तरप्रयुक्त एव ह्यथशब्दः श्रुत्या मङ्गलप्रयोजनो भवति । For other meanings of the word अथ reference may be made to the verses—

ओङ्कारश्चाथशब्दश्च द्वावेतौ ब्रह्मण पुरा ।

कण्ठं भित्वा विनिर्याता तस्मान्माङ्गलिकावुभौ ॥

Rājaśekhara also begins his work with the words अथात and this shows that he intends to write his Kāvya-mīmāṃsā in the sūtra style. Here अथ cannot mean अधिकार because of the finite verb मीमांसिष्यामहे, as also because it is followed by the word अतः. आनन्तर्य alone, therefore, is better fitted here than अधिकार and हेतुभाव for the word अतः. आनन्तर्य obviously connects two events and, therefore, requires a previous event after which the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā may be composed by him. What then is that event after which Rājaśekhara composed the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā? The previous event or circumstance in this case can only be suggested as the author himself did not mention it. Many circumstances such as शिष्यप्रश्न, देवताराधन, रसायनादिक्रिया, गुरुपर्वकर्म, etc. are suggested by the commentators of the sūtras of Kanāda, Āpastamba and others after which, they thought the work was composed by their respective authors.

It may be suggested here that गुरुपर्वक्रम is to be taken as the previous event required by the word अथ, as Rājasēkhara himself enumerates the teachers of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā in the sentence beginning with यथोपदिदेश श्रीकण्ठ, etc. In this case, therefore, the word अथ suggests that Rājasēkhara composed the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā after having been taught by his own Guru who was the last in the list of teachers beginning with S'rikantha. This is what is called गुरुपर्वक्रम.

A suggestion of this kind is also made by Kumārīlabhatta while explaining the word अथ in the sūtra अथातो धर्मज्ञिज्ञासा of Jaimini, and subsequently, the same is rejected by him on the ground that the knowledge of this गुरुपर्वक्रम does not help the reader in any way, and that the list of teachers also cannot be taken as entirely accurate. In this connection Pārthasārathi's commentary on Kumārīla is noteworthy —

“पर्व अवच्छेद । गुरुपर्वणां क्रम गुरुपर्वक्रम । तद्यथा 'ब्रह्मा प्रजापतये मीमांसां प्रोवाच । सोऽपीन्द्राय । सोऽप्यादित्याय । स च वसिष्ठाय । सोऽपि पराशराय । पराशर कृष्णद्वैपायनाय । सोऽपि जैमिनये । स च खोपदेशानन्तरमिमं न्यायं ग्रन्थे निबद्धवान्' इति । सोऽयमेवंविध सवन्धो निष्फलो निर्हेतुकश्च । नह्यस्मिन् संवन्धे किञ्चित्प्रमाणमस्ति' । इति । (Nyāyātīkā, p 8)

It is necessary, therefore, to find out a reasonable circumstance which may have preceded the composition of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. That circumstance seems to be the composition of other earlier Kāvya-s. Here the word अथ seems to indicate that after composing the Kāvya-s and Nātakas, the author begins composing the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. It is easy now to understand the meaning of the word अतः. This word indicates वृत्तस्य हेतुभावः. Here वृत्त is काव्यनाटककरण. This is the exact event that precedes the composition of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. To explain the necessities of a poet and the method of composition which are treated of in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, a writer should first gain experience as a poet and compose several works on different subjects. The words अथ and अतः, therefore, indicate as follows.—

अथ=वालरामायणहरविलासादिदृश्यश्रव्यकाव्यकरणानन्तरम् ।

अतः=काव्यविचारात्मकमीमांसाशास्त्रस्य काव्यकरणानन्तरमेव सुकरत्वाद्धेतो ।

The word अतः can, however, be explained from a different standpoint. This word being derived from a सर्वनाम, is used here to mean the desired object (बुद्धिस्थपरामर्शी). In that case अतः means श्रीकण्ठमारभ्य प्रवृत्तस्य काव्यमीमांसाशास्त्रस्योच्छिन्नत्वाद्धेतो. Therefore, the construction of the further text from यथोपदिदेश to the end of the sentence इत्यङ्कारं च प्रकीर्णत्वात् (P. 1. 1. 14.) with this प्रतिज्ञावाक्य appears quite logical and coherent.

1. 1. काव्यम् । This word denotes the purpose of this Mīmāṃsāśāstra. It is necessary that in the beginning of every work or śāstra the result obtained from such work or śāstra should be stated in order that those who read may readily be interested in it. This practice is observed by all Sūtrakāras. Kumārilabhatta explains this in the following Kārikā—

सर्वस्यैव हि शास्त्रस्य कर्मणो वाऽपि कस्यचित् । यावत्प्रयोजनं नोक्तं तावत्तत् केन गृह्यते ॥
(S'lokavārttika I. 12.)

1. I. मीमांसिष्यामहे । This verb also indicates that Rājāśekhara wrote his work in the sūtra style in the same way as other S'rāuta, Gihya and Dharmasūtras were written. Basing on one of the two roots माङ् or मान, सन् प्रत्यय takes place according to the rule of Pānini 3-1-6. and the meaning of the word मीमांसा is to be taken as पूजितविचार. The result obtained from this Mīmāṃsā is काव्यविद्यासिद्धि, just as धर्मज्ञान and ब्रह्मज्ञान are obtained from the पूर्वोत्तरमीमांसा ।

1 1. श्रीकण्ठ etc Here Rājāśekhara intends to record the गुरुपरम्परा of this Mīmāṃsāśāstra in order to impress that he is not the sole originator of this S'āstra, as also to show the reason why he had to compose this work while the Science had already been well-established by his predecessors. S'ūikantha and Brahman are considered by the author as the originators of this Mīmāṃsāśāstra in the same way as Pānini and Kapāda are said to have obtained the knowledge of their śāstras from Mahādeva, or as Dharmamīmāṃsā and Bharata's Nāṭyaśāstra are said to have originated from Brahman.

1 1. परमेष्टि S'ūikantha delivered lectures on Kāvya-mīmāṃsā or criticisms on Kāvya to his 64 students headed by Brahman and he, the self-born, also taught the same to his disciples who were born from his mind. These disciples are the sages Bhrgu and others according to the Vāyupurāṇa (Adh. 65) and the same statement is made by Rājāśekhara following the same Purāṇa on p. 28. 1. 14 of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā.

* [1. 2. चतुःपद्ये जिष्येभ्यः । Cf. ब्रह्मविष्णुरुद्रगृहवृहस्पतिभार्गवादिशिष्येषु चतुःपद्यावुद्दिष्टं वचः पारमेश्वरम् । (Kāvya-mīmāṃsā p 29)]

1. 2. चतु षष्टये । Here the number 64 is exceedingly interesting. The Pāñcālas used the number 64 in their classifications. Ṛgveda has been divided into 64 Adhyāyas comprising 8 Astakas of 8 Adhyāyas each. Vātsyāyana in his Kāmasūtra mentions 64 Upavidyās of his own and 64 Kalās of the Pāñcālas and divides the whole s'āstra into 64 Prakaranas (V. S. 1. 3. 14-17 and 2. 2 3-4) Bharata in his Nāṭyaśāstra enumerates 64 Nāṭyāṅgās and S'ārādātanya divides countries in the Bhāratavarsa into 64 in his Bhāvaprakāśana. It seems to be a remnant of an old custom to divide a subject into eight just as Pāṇini did in his Astādhyāyī. In giving the number 64 to the disciples of S'rikanṭha, it appears that Rājaśekhara also followed the same tradition. His eight kinds of poets and 32 kinds of Kāvyaṛthaharanas or plagiarisms (p. 65) also show his leaning towards the same tradition.

1. 3. सारस्वतेय etc. The story of Sārasvateya-Kāvya-puruṣa, as one of the originators of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, seems to have been borrowed by Rājaśekhara from the Harsacarita of Bāna. Bāna, in his auto-biography found a Sārasvateya the son of Sarasvatī and Dadhīca Bhārgava, through whom Vatsa, the first male representative of his family, got the knowledge of all sciences and the Vedas.

The origin of this story of Sārasvateya is traceable in many Purānas. But they differ from one another in many respects. Bāna and Rājaśekhara seem to have mainly followed the Vāyupurāna for this idea of Sārasvateya as the version preserved in this Purāna agrees mainly with that given in their works. The special leaning of Rājaśekhara towards the Vāyupurāna is also demonstrated by his references to that Purāna later on on page 28 l. 12. According to the Vāyupurāna Bhṛgu or Kavi, the first son of Brahman, had Cyavana as his son through Paulomī, and this Cyavana also had two sons Dadhīca and Ātmavāna through Sukanyā. Dadhīca married Sarasvatī and got a Sārasvateya as his son who was learned in all S'āstras through the blessings of his mother, but was childless. Ātmavāna, the brother of Dadhīca, on the other hand, got the sons Aurva and others and through them the family of Bhṛgu expanded. In this family was born Vatsa the Mūlapuruṣa of the Vātsyāyana Gotra to which Bāna also belonged (vide, Vāyu Adh 65) Bāna followed the same succession list as found in the Vāyupurāna in the 1st chapter of the Harsacarita and adduced some reasons to explain why Sarasvatī had to marry Dadhīca and how Vatsa, Bāna's Gotragurū, was connected with Sārasvateya.

The Vāyupurāna and the Harsacarita seem to have offered materials to Rājāśekhara who while describing the story of Kāvyaपुरusa, the son of Sarasvatī, makes him one of the earliest exponents of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. For a complete description and origin of Sārasvateya a reference may be made to the 3rd chapter of the present work.

1. 3. वृन्दीयसाम्.—more important gods. The word वृन्दारक means divine beings or Devas and it transforms itself into वृन्दीयस् in comparative (vide Pānini 6-4-157).

1. 4. काव्यपुरुष.—Bhrgu and S'ukra are known as Kavi. Sārasvateya the descendent of their family is, therefore, called Kāvyaपुरuṣa (vide Pānini 4. 1. 151).

1. 4. दिव्येन चक्षुषा.—through divine power. This accounts for his knowledge of सर्वसमय and सविष्यदर्श.

1. 6. काव्यविद्या.—science of poetical composition.

1. 6. अष्टादशाधिकरणी.—the collection of 18 Adhikaranas or topics. The word Adhikarana is interpreted in several ways, but the following three may be said to be appropriate for the present application of the word. (1) Each discussion regarding Dharma and Brahma introduced by Jaimīni and Bādarāyana in their Mīmāṃsāśāstras, is called an Adhikarana. This technical discussion is defined as.—

विषयो विषयश्चैव पूर्वपक्षस्तथोत्तर । प्रयोजनं च (सगतिश्चेति) पद्मार्जं प्राब्रुवोऽधिकरणं विदुः ॥

According to this definition an Adhikarana must consist of five limbs, namely, विषय etc., which constitute the actual discussion. Though Rājāśekhara is not entirely in accord with this definition in his Adhikaraṇa of Kavirahasya, his discussions have five limbs such as विषय etc., particularly in respect of the nature of poets, origin of poetry, etc. (2) Secondly, the word Adhikarana means the court of justice. Here Rājāśekhara records his own judgment on several topics pertaining to Kavirahasya after stating the different schools of thought started by the Ācāryas, Suiānānda, S'yāmadeva and others which he ultimately rejects. The division into Adhikaranas found in the Arthaśāstra and the Kāmaśāstra is also planned according to this method where in the same manner, the respective authors, while discussing the different topics, state the views of earlier authors and ultimately reject them. (3) Thirdly, the word Adhikarana is used in a popular sense signifying a full discussion of a particular topic (अधिक्रियन्ते प्रस्तूयन्ते अर्थाः अस्मिन्निति अधिकरणम्). This explanation, of course, covers the Adhikaraṇa division of the Artha and Kāma śāstras which are divided respectively into 15 and 7 Adhikaraṇas, each having several Adhyāyas. In the case the word is synonymous with the word अध्याय or अधिकार, and does not include the technical Adhikarana of five factors: विषय, सशय etc.

1. 7. स्नातकेभ्यः. Snātakas are those who after studying the Vedās, take the final bath or स्नान, live the life of a householder and observe some rules for cleanliness as prescribed in the Dharmasāstras. (For the rules of a Snātaka, see for instance, Gautama's Dharmasūtra, chapter 9). They belong to the order of a householder and not of a Brahmacārin. Here Rājaśekhara points to the divine Snātakas who after finishing the study of Kāvya vidyā take a bath to follow the rules of a Snātaka. In this connection it is to be remembered that Dharmamīmāṃsā is to be studied after studying the Vedavidyā and before one becomes a Snātaka. (See Jaimini's sūtra अथातो धर्मजिज्ञासा । 1-1-1) In order that greater respect may be shown to his Mīmāṃsā, Rājaśekhara mentions that the Kāvya mīmāṃsā was taught to Kāvya vidyā-Snātakas. The reason for this digression seems to be to indicate that discussion on poetics is appreciated only by those who lead the life of a householder. The words अष्टादशाधिकरणी and स्नातकेभ्यः show that Kāvya puruṣa taught all the 18 Adhikaranas to a considerable number of divine Snātakas.

1. 8.- समान्नासीत्. Out of those divine Snātakas who studied the Kāvya mīmāṃsā of 18 sections from Kāvya puruṣa, Sahasrākṣa composed a treatise on the Kavirahasya only. The root ज्ञा preceded by सम् and आ indicates that the Snātakas separately composed different treatises dealing with each section of the Kāvya mīmāṃsā; but it is not reasonable to infer from this use of the verb that Sahasrākṣa studied the Kavirahasya-section only under the guidance of Kāvya puruṣa. This is supported by the passage at the end of this sentence, namely: इति ततस्ते पृथक् पृथक् स्वशास्त्राणि विरचयाम्बुः । 1, 13, Subjects dealt with in these 18 sections are more or less well known in the history of poetics. But the authors such as Sahasrākṣa and others are entirely new in the field of Alāṅkāra literature. Though some early writers on poetics, rhetoric and dramaturgy such as S'ilāli, Kīśāśva, Kāśyapa, Vararuci and Medhāvin are known through the writings of Pānini, Bhāmaha and Daṇḍin, none of them, however, is mentioned here as the author of any subject. Rājāśekhara, indeed, mentions a few names such as Bharata, Kucamāra, Suvarnanābha and Nandikeśvara who are fairly known, but the names of Sahasrākṣa and others mentioned by him are entirely unknown. It is not proper to say that these names are entirely imaginary, but it is very probable that he recorded here a forgotten tradition handed down from a source which remains yet unknown. But then, it has to be explained how Bhāmaha, Daṇḍin, Vāmana, Udbhata, Ānandavardhana and Rudrata who were earlier than Rājāśekhara and dealt with the same subjects with a special interest, did not care to mention any of the earliest writers on these subjects. In this connection, another point also is worthy of note that Rājāśekhara has made a good use of the figure of speech known as Anuprāsa in selecting the names of the authors of these chapters, and as such the names may as well represent purely imaginary persons. This is borne out by such combinations as —कविरहस्यं सहस्राक्ष , औक्तिकमुक्तिगर्भ , निर्णयं सुवर्णनाम', चित्रं चित्राङ्गदः, श्लेषं श्लेष , औपम्यमौपकायन , etc.

Of course, we find mention in the Artha and the Kāma sāstras of Kautilya and Vātsyāyana, of similar names of authors such as Bhāradvāja, Bṛhaspati, Viśālākṣa, Parāśara and others whose works are either summarised or referred to in them. But we cannot doubt the authenticity of the statements of Kautilya and Vātsyāyana because there are no works on Artha and Kāma earlier than Kautilya and Vātsyāyana available to-day, as it is in the case of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. On the contrary, the existence of the works of such authors as Bṛhaspati and Viśālākṣa can be proved from quotations found in later works under their names (see Intro. of the Arthaśāstra, Trivandrum ed. p. 6.).

1. 8. औक्तिकम्.—'different methods of expression from the sentences'. They are वाच्य, लक्ष्य, गौण and व्यंग्य of अर्थ, and वाचक, लक्षक, गौण and व्यञ्जक of the शब्द. It is natural for Rājāśekhara to explain the nature of Dhvani in this chapter of औक्तिक which, as he says, was composed by उक्तिगर्भ, but he does not expressly mention the school of Dhvani as the subject of any one of his Adhikaranas, probably because it had recent origin in his time and also because he belonged to the Rasa school of Bharata. He knew, however, the view of Ānandavardhana, the chief exponent of the Dhvani school, as he quoted a verse from his Dhvanyāloka (See p. 16. of this work). Vakrokti which is included by Rudrata as a S'abdāṅkāra must have also been treated in this chapter of औक्तिक along with different kinds of उक्तis as explained by Bhojadeva in his Sarasvatīkaṅthābharana. (2. 39)

1. 8. रीतिनिर्णयम् । Discussions regarding the nature of the Rītis are current from the very early stages of the science of poetics as both Bhāmaha and Dandin, the earliest writers on this subject, mention them as already existing since a very long time (see Bhāmaha's, K. A. 31-33 and Dandin's K. A. 1-40). Vāmana, the author of the Kāvyaṅkārasūtra, improved upon them and stated that Rīti alone is the soul of the Kāvya. (रीतिरात्मा काव्यस्य । 1. 2. 6.)

1. 9. प्रचेतायन. । The earliest authors on poetics accept अनुप्रास as one of the Aṅkāras or figure of speech. Bhāmaha treats this at the very outset while dealing with Aṅkāras and divides it into two kinds as Grāmya and Lāṭīya. Daṇḍin characterizes Anuprāsa as an inferior method of writing which he attributes to the writers in the Gauda country (see K. A. I. 44-60). But the followers of Bhāmaha have been able to discover several varieties of it in their works. The original writer on अनुप्रास, as Rājaśekhara mentions, is प्रचेतायन, very probably a member in the family of Pracetas, one of the ten Prajāpatīs. But the word प्रचेतायन does not seem to be grammatically correct according to the rules of Pāṇini. Vālmīki, the author of the Rāmāyana, also is a Prācetasā. Rājaśekhara perhaps means that Vālmīki was the original writer on Anuprāsa as we frequently come across examples of this figure of speech in his Rāmāyana. It is curious, however, that Pracetas does not find any place among the gotras and pravaras of the Brāhmins.

1. 9. यमकानि । The name of the original inventor of यमक is omitted in all MSS. of the Kāvyaṅmīmāṃsā. Citrāṅgada cannot be taken as the teacher of both the Yamaka and Citra. Firstly because, the name is not in keeping with the Anuprāsa which is strictly observed here in mentioning the subject and the author. Under this Anuprāsa principle, Citrāngada can be the originator of the Citra alone. Secondly because, Rājasekhara subsequently states that 18 chapters were separately composed by eighteen authors: इति ततस्ते पृथक्पृथक् स्वशास्त्राणि विरचयाद्धकुः । (p. 1. l. 13.)

Some scholars, however, suggest here a reading different from the present one as आनुप्रासिकं प्रचेता । यमो यमकानि । But this reading is not warranted by the MS material available at present. The form प्रचेतायन also does not seem to be grammatically correct as the grammatical form in this case ought to be प्राचेतायन or प्रचेतायनि. Yamakas are very freely used in the Sanskrit literature even from the time of the Rāmāyaṇa and the Mahābhārata. Kālidāsa also in the 9th saiga of the Raghuvamśa uses Yamaka frequently but with care so as not to give rise to a feeling of disgust in the mind of his readers. It is one of the four Alaṅkāras mentioned with several varieties by Bharata, the earliest writer on the science of poetics (see N. S. ed. 16th Chapter). Amongst later writers, Bhāmaha was not satisfied with the classification of Bharata, and he acknowledged only five varieties instead. Though Daṇḍin has no special fondness for Yamakas in the Kāvya, he, nevertheless, deals with the subject with its various sub-divisions in a separate chapter (see K. A. 1. 61) It is, therefore, clear that Yamakas had quite an early origin. Yama, who is considered to be the original teacher of the Yamaka in the emended reading given above is quite in keeping with the scheme of Anuprāsa followed by Rājasekhara in mentioning the subjects and their teachers.

1. 9. चित्रं चित्राद्द. । Later writers on literary criticism use the word चित्र to mean an inferior kind of poetry possessing Guna and Alaṅkāra only, without any vestige of Dhvani. (see Dhvanyāloka 3. 42 and Kāvya prakāśā. 1. 5.). Rājasekhara, here does not refer to the चित्रनाव्य but to चित्र which is recognized as one of the S'abdālaṅkāras by the early writers on Alaṅkāra. Here by the word चित्र, is meant such peculiar combination of words in poetry as to make up Bandhas such as चक्र, स्रग्, सुरज, etc. and other arrangements of words such as नात्राच्युतक, प्रहेलिका etc. Rudrata is the first writer to include this kind of combination of words in his list of S'abdālaṅkāras (2-13.) with the name चित्र, and to deal with its various forms in the 5th chapter of his Kāvya-lankāra although Bhāmaha and Daṇḍin mention this kind only as another variety of Yamaka. It is curious that the subjects of several Adhikāraṇas in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, should be so arranged by Rājasekhara as to appear as an imitation of the system adopted by Rudrata. Rudrata gives in his Kāvya-lankāra the list of the S'abdā-lankāras in the following verse:—

वक्रोक्तिरनुप्रासो यमकं श्लेषस्तथाऽपर चित्रम् ।

and treats of these Alankāras in chapters 2-5 following the same order. In the first and second chapters, Rudrata deals with Kavirahasya and Rītinirnaya. Now, it will be evident that the order of subjects adopted by Rājasekhara in the first 7 Adhikāraṇas is substantially the same as found in the work of Rudrata. That Rājasekhara also followed Rudrata in many important points will be shown in sequel.

1. 9. शब्दश्लेषम् । Following Rudrata's classification here शब्दश्लेष is included among the शब्दालंकारs and अर्थश्लेष among the अर्थालंकारs. Earlier writers such as Bhāmaha, Udbhata and Vāmana make no such distinction between these two varieties of the S'leṣa but include them both amongst the अर्थालंकारs. Rudrata for the first time treats of these two separately in two different chapters. Regarding the attribution of the original authorship of the S'leṣa to S'esa no authority exists, and the word S'esa is probably used since it is in accordance with the author's scheme of Anuprāsa already referred to.

11. 9-10. वास्तव, औपम्य, अतिशय and अर्थश्लेष । Here Rājasekhara begins his list of Arthā-lankāras. This classification of the Arthā-lankāras into the groups Vāstava etc. is found only in the Kāvya-lankāra of Rudrata; but the early writers on Alankāra preceding Rudrata do not seem to be aware of this system of grouping. Rudrata classifies them in the following verse:—

अर्थस्यालंकारा वास्तवमौपम्यमतिशयः श्लेषः । एषामेव विशेषा. अन्ये तु भवन्ति नि शेषा ॥ (K. A. 7. 9).

and deals with them in four chapters 7-10. Under the heads वास्तव, etc. Rudrata includes respectively 23, 21, 12 and 10 figures of speech as based upon the four definite principles, वास्तव, etc. This shows that Rājasekhara generally followed Rudrata in his classification of subjects. But the attribution of these four groups of Alaṅkāras to four authors पुलस्त्य, औपकायन, पराशर and उत्तथ्य must be an original contribution of Rājaśekhara. It is also possible that Rājaśekhara and Rudrata followed a common source for their materials which unfortunately does not exist now. In any case it can safely be asserted that Rājaśekhara in the first 11 sections of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā closely follows the arrangement of topics as found in the first 10 chapters of Rudrata's Kāvya-lāṅkāra. That Rājaśekhara was well acquainted with Rudrata's work, is borne out by the fact that he quoted from Rudrata's work in several places in his Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. (Cf. p. 16. l. 5 and p. 31. l. 9 of K. M. with Rudrata 1. 18 and 2. 16).

l. 11. उभयालंकारिकम् । Two kinds of उभयालङ्कार seem to have been treated in this chapter. The two Alaṅkāras संकर and ससृष्टि with their varieties may be called उभयालंकारs, because they are known when there is a combination of two or more Alaṅkāras belonging either to S'abda or Artha. Rudrata deals with these अलंकारs in the 10th chapter of his Kāvya-lāṅkāra after अर्थश्लेष. Rājaśekhara also takes up this subject in the same order after अर्थश्लेष. Another kind of उभयालंकार which may form the subject matter of this chapter includes those Alaṅkāras which beautify the poetry belonging to both S'abda and Artha. Alaṅkāras such as Upamā, Punaruktavadābhāsa, Samuccaya, Sahokti, S'lesa, Vyatireka, Rūpaka, Virodha, etc. come under this category. Cf. Rudrata's, K. A. 4. 32-34 and Udbhata's, K. A. S. S. (gos. ed.) pp 37-40. There is another kind consisting of 24 उभयालंकारs which is dealt with by Bhojadeva in the 4th chapter of his Sarasvatī-kantābhāraṇa. These Alaṅkāras do not, however, form the subject matter of this chapter because Bhoja's उभयालंकार includes only Upamā, Rūpaka etc. which are already included in the Aupanya group under the authorship of औपकायन in the previous chapter of this work.

l. 11 वैनेदिकम् । Kāmadeva is mentioned as the author of this chapter which deals with the Vinodas. Vātsyāyana in his Kāmasūtra (1-4) gives a list of Vinodas for an accomplished citizen or Nāgaraka who is required to indulge in these Vinodas in the company of their ladies or dancing girls. The treatises Kandar-pacūḍāmanī, etc. dealing with the subject Kāma also explain the nature of these Vinodas for romantic couples. They are:—

आपानकविधिः, उद्यानजलक्रीडा, कुक्कुटलावमेषयुद्धम्, द्यूतम्, यक्षरात्रिः, कौमुदीजागर, सुवसन्तकetc. Bhojadeva in his Sarasvatikanthābharana gives a similar list of Vinodas of lovers to be described by poets while dealing with love affairs in their poetry.

Cf. अष्टमीचन्द्रक कुन्दचतुथा सुवसन्तकः ।

आन्दोलनचतुर्थ्यैकशात्मली मदनोत्सव. ॥ etc.

Sarasvatikanthābharana 5, 93-96.

These Vinodas are classified according to the different seasons or R̥tus by S'ārādātānaya in his Bhāvaprakāśana as under:—

अष्टमीचन्द्रशकार्चावसन्तमदनोत्सवा ।

वकुलाशोकविहृति शात्मलीमूलखेलनम् ॥

एते वासन्तिका प्रायो विनोदा रसिकोचिता ।

उद्यानयात्रा सलिलक्रीडा पुष्पापचारिका ।

नवाग्रखादिका चूतमाधवीनवसंगम ।

एते प्रायो विनोदा स्युः निदाघे सुखभोगिनाम् ॥ etc. pp. 137-138.

In the Ratnāvali, S'ākuntala, etc. we find that Vinodas such as the Kaumudīmahotsava, Manmathapūjā Vasantotsava, etc. are introduced and prescribed for lovers. This chapter on Vinodas is attributed by Rājas'ekhara to Kāmadeva because these are concerned with pure love

1. 11. रूपकनिरूपणीयम् । The chapter where the different varieties of Dramas or Rūpakas are explained, is attributed to Bharata the author of the Nātyaśāstra. Here the word Rūpaka stands for Nātya according to the definition of S'ārādātānaya which is as

रामादितादात्म्यापत्तिर्नटे या नाट्यमुच्यते ।

रूपकं तद्भवेद्द्रूपं दृश्यत्वात्प्रेक्षकैरिदम् ॥

The fanciful identity of Natas on the stage with Rama etc is known as Rūpaka because it is so witnessed by the audience This Nātya or Rūpaka is based on eleven fundamental principles as stated by Bharata in the 6th chapter of his work. The relevant quotation is given below.—

रसा भावा ह्यभिनया धर्मा वृत्तिप्रवृत्तय ।

सिद्धि स्वरास्तथाऽऽतीर्थं गानं रङ्गश्च सङ्ग्रह ॥

The whole of the Nāṭyaśāstra of Bharata explains only these 11 principles one after another in 36 chapters.

1 12. रसाधिकारिकम् । The section dealing with the Rasādhikāra or the explanation of Rasas is attributed to Nandikeśvara. Nandikeśvara is reputed to be the chief follower of Mahādeva and as one of the earliest writers of Kāmas'āstra in 1000 chapters. Cf वात्स्यायन 1. 1. 8. 'महादेवानुचरश्च नन्दी सहस्रेणाध्यायाना पृथक्कामसूत्रं प्रोवाच' । This work of Nandī is said to have been summarised by many writers such as, औद्दालकि, श्वेतकेतु, वाग्भ्रव्य, पाद्माल and वात्स्यायन Here the word Rasa indicates only the S'ringāra-rasa and not others namely, Vīra, Karuna, etc, which are recognized as Rasas only in Nāṭya. Because the Nāṭyarasas or the emotions produced on the audience while witnessing a drama, and explained by Bharata in the Nāṭyaśāstra, form the subject matter of the previous Adhikāraṇa रूपकनिरूपणीयम् of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. The actual Karuna, Vīra, Bibhatsa, etc. cannot be called Rasas or enjoyments as persons having these emotions do not get any enjoyment whatsoever. But when these Rasas Karuna etc. are enacted by skilful actors with histrionics on the stage, the corresponding emotions of the audience are roused in the form of joy and therefore may be called as Nāṭyarasas. According to this explanation, S'ringāra alone is the Rasa par excellence, and this is treated of by Nandikeśvara in this section. Regarding the authorship of Nandikes'vara, to a work dealing with S'ringāra, the commentator on Vātsyāyana (1 1. 8) records a tradition which runs as follows:—
“दिव्यं चर्पसहस्रमुमया सह सुरतसुखमनुभवति महादेवे वासगृहद्वारगतो नन्दी कामसूत्रं प्रोवाच”.

1. 12. दोषाधिकरणम् । The chapter in which Doṣas or blemishes in poetry are treated of is attributed to Dhisana or Brhaspati. It is quite appropriate to attribute this chapter of Doṣa to Dhiṣaṇa not only because the intelligence of a very high order is required to find out the Doṣas but also because the word धिषण is suitable to the scheme of Anuprāsa adopted by the author. All writers on poetics beginning from Bharata to Mammata excepting Udbhata have dealt with the Doṣas in poetry in their respective treatises.

[1. 13. औपनिषदिकं कुचमारः cf. “कुचमार औपनिषदिकम् (काम. सू. 1-1-17). Thus it appears that Suvarnanābha and Kucamāra wrote both on poetics and on erotics.]

1. 13. औपनिषदिकम् । This is a new chapter in the history of poetics, introduced by Rājaśekhara in accordance with the Kāmasūtra of Vātsyāyana and the Arthaśāstra of Kautilya. Kucamāra is mentioned as the original writer on this subject both by Rājaśekhara and Vātsyāyana. The object of this chapter must be the same as that of the औपनिषदिक chapter in the Arthaśāstra and the Kāmasūtra. Vātsyāyana describes in this chapter of औपनिषदिक the ways and means to obtain the expected results of Kāma through medicinal plants, Mantras and Tāntric practices. This expediency is recommended by Vātsyāyana for those who fail to gain the enjoyment of Kāma through ordinary means. Kautilya also in his chapter of औपनिषदिक treats of similar Tāntric practices to be adopted by kings in order to subdue the enemies and protect the subjects. Similarly, Rājaśekhara also might have dealt with in this chapter the ways and means to obtain poetical excellence by those who fail to gain it by ordinary methods. The underlying motive which led the author to introduce this chapter in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, will become apparent if a reference is made to the statements of Rājaśekhara on p. 11. l. 10, and p. 13. ll. 13, 15. There it is said that a disciple who is devoid of poetical skill either by birth or by training, is called दुर्बुद्धि. In order that he may obtain poetical excellence the ways and means for attaining it, are treated of in the chapter of औपनिषदिक. In the other place (p. 12. l. 22) it is said that उपनिषच्छक्ति means मन्त्रतन्त्राद्युपदेशप्रभवा शक्ति ।

*[ll. 14-16. cf. 'एवं बहुभिराचार्यै तच्छास्त्रं खण्डश प्रणीतमुत्सन्नकल्पमभूत् । 'तत्र...सङ्क्षिप्य सर्वमर्थमल्पेन ग्रन्थेन कामसूत्रमिदं प्रणीतम् ॥' (काम सू 1.1 18 and 19)].

l. 15 प्रयोजक(ना)ङ्गवती । Here the original reading as found in the MSS does not seem to be quite appropriate because प्रयोजक is not an अङ्ग. The suggestion as प्रयोजनाङ्गवती seems to be more suitable because प्रयोजन is considered as an important अङ्ग for the प्रेक्षावत्प्रवृत्ति. That is to say, there must be some necessity for composing a work, and this becomes an important factor for the composition of that work. If there is no need for such a work, neither the poet should waste his energy in its composition nor the readers could be interested in a work of that kind. Here in preparing his Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, Rājaśekhara states the necessity for composing the work by the words प्रकीर्णत्वात् and उच्चिच्छिदे. In this respect the author entirely follows Vātsyāyana and Kautilya both in arrangement as also in ideas. Cf.  also the शास्त्रसंग्रह in Amara's कविकल्पलता Though the work contains 18 chapters, only 15 headings are here enumerated]

1. 16. प्रकरणाधिकरणसमुद्देशेन । Prakaraṇas are the sub-divisions of each Adhikarāna and they deal with the different topics coming under the main subject of an Adhikarāna It is to be understood by this remark that Prakaraṇas of eighteen Adhikarānas in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā are enumerated here. But contrary to this statement and to the method adopted in the Kāma and the Artha s'āstras, we find here enumerated only 15 subjects S'āstrasāṅgraha, etc, of the first Adhikarāna Kāvyaḥasya but not the Prakaraṇas of other 17 Adhikarānas of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā But it is to be noted here that these 15 subjects cover all the 18 chapters of the first Adhikarāna. This difference in number between the chapters and the subjects of the first Adhikarāna requires an explanation It appears that in some places one subject is treated of in more than one chapter and at others one chapter deals with more than one subject. In this respect Rājāśekhara differs from the method of the Kāma and the Arthas'āstras while enumerating the Prakaraṇādihikarānas In the enumeration of these 15 subjects also he does not follow the exact order adopted by him in the first Adhikarāna. For example, वाक्यविधयः, कविविशेषः and वाङ्मयप्रकारा should go after पदवाक्यविवेक, and भुवनकोश after देवविभाग according to the order of the text. This deviation of sequence in the enumeration may be explained by the fact that probably Rājāśekhara did not anticipate this change when he was engaged in composing the first chapter of this Adhikarāna.
 It may also be possible that Vātsyāyana and Kautilya did not commit this mistake because probably they wrote their प्रकरणाधि- करणसमुद्देश after the completion of their works.

l. 4. भुवनकोशः । A short description of the Bhuvanakośa is found in the 17th chapter of this work where a geographical division of countries is given. Rājasekhara states on p. 98. l. 9. that for full information regarding the geography of the world the reader should refer to another work of his, entitled, the Bhuvanakośa. It is, however, doubtful as to whether this Bhuvanakośa is entirely a different work of Rājasekhara or whether it represents the subject matter of the 19th chapter of the present work which is lost. It is, however, highly improbable that this should represent an independent work composed by him. (For further information see introduction).

l. 4. इत्यादि । In the corresponding chapters of the Kāmasāstra of Vātsyāyana and the Arthasāstra of Kautilya, all Adhikaraṇas of the complete work are enumerated along with their subdivisions. Rājasekhara who generally follows them ought to have mentioned in this chapter, all the eighteen Adhikaraṇas of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā with their Prakaraṇas. But all MSS. of this work now available omit the other Adhikaraṇas, and this omission is evident by the word इत्यादि. It cannot also be definitely stated that the author himself did not care to mention them here as he was not sure of composing the next 17 Adhikaraṇas because such statements as औपनिषदिके वक्ष्यामः, रीतयस्तु पुरस्तात्, अलङ्कारव्याख्यानन्तु पुरस्तात् etc. in different places of this work clearly show that Rājasekhara had a mind to complete this work and that he had already planned it in eighteen Adhikaraṇas. It is likely therefore that the scribes who wanted to preserve only the first Adhikaraṇa of Kavirahasya out of the bulky volume containing the whole, did not mention the other Adhikaraṇas and Prakaraṇas of the work but only referred to the omitted portion by the word इत्यादि.

* [P. 2. l. 5. व्याख्याभाष्यम्=व्याख्यारूपं भाष्य or व्याख्या and भाष्यम् । separately].

l. 5. इति सूत्राणि । This remark shows that Rājasekhara writes his work in the same Sūtrabhāṣya style as adopted by Vātsyāyana and Kautilya.

* [Read lines 5-8 as—इति सूत्राण्यथैतेषां व्याख्याभाष्यं भविष्यति । समासव्यासविन्यासः सैष शिष्यहिताय न ॥
चित्रोदाहरणैर्गुर्वा ग्रन्थेन तु लघीयसी ।
इयं न. काव्यमीमांसा काव्यव्युत्पत्तिकारणम् ॥

Cf. संक्षेपमिममुक्त्वाऽस्य विस्तरोऽतः प्रवक्ष्यते ।

इष्टं हि विदुषा लोके समासव्यासभाषणम् ॥ (काम. सू. 1-87)].

1. 6. सैष । In ordinary prose writing स एषः is the correct form. In poetry alone this usage is allowed by Pānini (6-1-134) in accordance with the usages सैष दाशरथी राम् etc.

1. 9. मीमासा यत्र वाग्लव् । This is the reading found in all MSS. of the work and this may be construed as follows — इयं सा काव्यमीमांसाख्या मीमासा=विचारः । यत्र=यस्मिन्विचारे । वाग्लव्=मदीयो वाग्लव् एतन्न्य-त्पः ॥ Some scholars, however, suggest here an alternative reading as मीमासो यत्र वाग्लव्, and this may be construed as: यत्र वाग्लव्= 'poetical compositions' मीमासः ।

[1. 11. यायावरीय =यायावरकुलोत्पन्नः ।]

1. 12. कविभ्य । This word indicates that all poets are Adhikāris or competent to study this science.

Adhyāya II.

1 15. शान्त्रनिर्देशः । In the first chapter Rājasekhara gives a list of subjects to be dealt with in his work and, therefore, he names it as S'āstrasaṅgraha. The second chapter he calls as S'āstrānīdeśa because he states here the names of different S'āstras which should first be studied by a poet before beginning to compose anything. Both Kautilya and Vātsyāyana have also given similar instructions in the corresponding chapters of their works.

1. 16. वाङ्मयम्=literature. Literature is of two kinds: S'āstras and Kāvya. As the nature of the Kāvya is to be discussed in this work from the 3rd chapter onwards, here only the nature and divisions of the S'āstras are treated.

1. 17. पूर्वम् । Why should the study of the S'āstras be necessary for poets before composing any poem? The answer to this question has been given thus. None can see in darkness without the aid of a lamp, even so, no poet can attempt at writing poems without having efficiency in the S'āstras. Also the Kāvya follow the S'āstras in every way (see. p. 4 l 4-5); therefore, no Kāvya can be composed without having a good knowledge of the S'āstras.

[ll 18-22. Cf. Sāyana's preface to the R̥gveda-Bhāṣya, Jaimini Sūtra II, 1. 30. etc. and Vīramitrodaya Paribhāṣāprakāśa]

11. 18-22. अपौरुषेयम् । A S'āstra is considered Apauruṣeya when it cannot be attributed to any author by tradition, and Pauruṣeya when it can be traditionally attributed to a particular author. This kind of Apauruṣeyabhāva has been predicated with reference to the Vedas by the authors of the Pūrvamīmāṃsā but the Naiyāyikas do not consider the Vedas to be Apauruṣeya. The authorship of the Vedas is attributed by them to Īśvara who represents a Puruṣa.

सा च etc. Though there are several definitions of the Vedas, the one given here as मन्त्रब्राह्मणे—seems to be the earliest. Āpastamba, one of the early Sūtrakāras of the Yajurveda gave the same definition in a somewhat different wording, as 'मन्त्रब्राह्मणयोर्वेदनामधेयम् । (Āpas. s'rau. sūtra. 24. 1-31).

विवृत etc. This is a definition of Mantra. The chief function of the Mantra is to remind the performers of the different ceremonies to be performed. विवृतं ज्ञापितं क्रियातन्त्रं क्रियाप्रयोगः यैस्ते ।

There are three kinds of Mantras used in Vedic rites, namely, स्मारक, क्रियमाणानुवादि and अनुमन्त्रणमन्त्र, and these Mantras remind the priests of the rites to be performed, already performed and of those things that are connected with ceremonies they are performing. Mīmāṃsakas, therefore, define Mantras as प्रयोगसमवेतार्थस्मारका मन्त्रा । Jaimini, however, in one of his Sūtras defines the Mantra as तच्चोदकेषु मन्त्राख्या (II-1-32), meaning that those portions of the Vedas only are called Mantras which are traditionally known by that name. Āpastamba's definition of Mantra is ब्राह्मणादन्ये मन्त्रा । Ibid 24-1-84).

मन्त्राणा etc. The Brāhmana portion of the Vedas chiefly shows the connection of the Mantras with different rites according to the injunction of the Vedas, and each such injunction is always accompanied by some explanation either for praising or denouncing the particular ceremony. These explanations are called Arthavādas. Āpastamba defines the Brāhmana portion of the Vedas as कर्मचोदना ब्राह्मणानि. Ibid 24-1-32

स्तुतिनिन्दान्याख्यान is the function of the Arthavādas. For the definition and classification of the Arthavāda cf ब्राह्मणशेषोऽर्थवादः । निन्दा प्रशंसा परकृतिः पुराकल्पश्च । Ibid 24-1-33.

त्रयी । This order of the three Vedas is found generally, in early Vedic works. -Cf Āpastambas'rautasūtra 24-1-1 But the order differs in the Arthasāstra of Kautilya where the Sāmaveda is mentioned first as: सामर्ग्यजुर्वेदास्त्रयस्त्रयी. (1-3-1).

अथर्वणवेद is mentioned along with the इतिहासवेद by Kautilya while the present author takes इतिहास amongst the उपवेदस and अथर्वण as the fourth Veda.

अर्थव्यवस्थित etc. The versified portions of the Vedas are called Rks where each Pāda or one-fourth part is required to convey a definite sense. In this respect Rājasekhara follows the definition of Jaimini. cf. तेषामृग्यत्रार्थवशेन पादव्यवस्था । II-1-35.

ताः सगीतयः । Sāma is represented by Rājasekhara to be the same as the Rks sung in different tones. But Jaimini defines Sāma in his Sūtra 'गीतिषु सामाख्या' (II-1-36) as nothing but the Gīti or song. According to him not Rks but Gītis only can be called Sāmas. Yajus is defined by both Rājasekhara and Jaimini in the same manner. According to them Yajus is a portion of the Vedas having no metre or Gīti. Jaimini defines Yajus as शेषे यजुः शब्द. (II-1-37).

1. 23. त इमे etc. The words, ऋचः यजूषि etc refer to the Mantras and not the Brāhmaṇa portion of each Veda according to the definitions cited above. Here, however, the same words are used with reference to the whole Veda including both the Mantra and Brāhmaṇa portions, on the strength of लक्षणावृत्ति ।

[1. 24. सार्ववर्णिक cf. "तस्मात्सजापर वेदं पञ्चमं सार्ववर्णिकम्" । नाट्यशास्त्र (1-12)]

1. 24. उपवेदा । गान्धर्व means here the science of music. These four Upavedas are attached to the four different Vedas as they represent the additional requirements of the four Vedas.

1. 25 ऋद्धिणि. । Music is included by Rājasekhara amongst the Upavedas. He states, however, on the authority of Drauhini that the science of music which is both a Upaveda and a part of the Sāmaveda, and which is accessible to all castes alike should be called the fifth Veda. Nothing whatever is known of this Drauhini. He is named after Druhiṇa or Brahman which shows that he is the son of Brahman. His views are quoted by Rājasekhara once again on page 42 with reference to the division of the themes of poetry or काव्यार्थ. It can only be said here that he must have been the author of some treatises on Music and Dramaturgy, as a quotation under his name is also found in the Bhāvaprakāśana p. 239. 1 which relates to the subject of Dramaturgy

* [1. 1. अङ्गानि=अङ्गान्ते ज्ञायन्तेऽमीभिरित्यङ्गानि उपकारकाणि. Rhetorics also helps in correctly interpreting the Vedic texts; so it is called the seventh Aṅga.]

1. 1. सप्तममङ्गम् । cf.

यत् क्षेमं त्रिदिवाय वर्त्म निगमस्याङ्गं च यत्सप्तमं
स्वादिष्टं च यदैक्षवादपि रसाच्चक्षुश्च यद्वाङ्मयम् ।

सोयं सुभ्रु पुरो विदर्भविषयः सारस्वतीजन्मभूः ॥

Bālarāmāyana, 10. 74.

Here the whole theme of poetry and not Alankāra alone is stated by Rājāśekhara as the 7th Aṅga for the Vedas.

* [1 3. द्वा सुपर्णा (श्वेताश्वतर 4-6)]

1. 3. द्वा सुपर्णा etc (मुण्डक. 3. 1. 1) S'ankarācārya's commentary on this Mantra runs as follows:—द्वा=द्वौ । विज्ञानपरमात्मानौ सुपर्णा=सुपर्णौ शोभनपतनौ शोभनगमनौ सुपर्णौ पक्षिसामान्याद्वा सुपर्णौ । सयुजा=सयुजौ सर्वदा संयुक्तौ । सखाया=सखायौ समानाख्यानौ समानाभिव्यक्तिकारिणौ । एवं भूतौ सन्तौ समानं वृक्षं=वृक्षमिवोच्छेदसामान्याद्वृक्षं शरीर परिष्वजाते परिष्वक्तवन्तौ । तयोरन्य =अविद्याकामवासनाश्रयलिङ्गोपाधि विज्ञानात्मा पिप्पलं=कर्मफलं । स्वादु=अनेकचित्रवेदनास्वरूपम् । अत्युपभुङ्क्तेऽविवेकत । अनश्रन्नन्योऽभिचाकशीति । नित्यशुद्धबुद्धमुक्तस्वभावः परमेश्वर सर्वमपि पश्यन्नास्ते इति । (श्वेताश्वतर 4-6).

Here two figures of speech are combined and these are the Rūpaka and the Vyatireka. The human body is the repository of two souls, Jīva and Īśvara, they exist in the body simultaneously. This idea has been metaphorically expressed in this Mantra by means of such things as trees, birds etc. In the second half Vyatireka may be explained in the following manner: though the two Ātmans are quite similar, one sustains itself by means of sweet fruits of the tree and the other shines even without taking anything. By this the superiority of Īśvara is clearly brought out. In this way the knowledge of Alankāra helps in correctly interpreting the Vedic texts.

cf. प्रकृतिप्रत्ययोपाधिनिपातादिविभागशः ।

पदान्वाख्यानकरणं शास्त्रं व्याकरणं विदुः ॥ (अभिधानचिन्तामणिटीका).]

1. 11. पुरस्तात् । In the first chapter, Rājasekhara has already intimated that the Alaṅkāras will be treated of in nine Adhikaranas (4-12-) of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. This word पुरस्तात् now indicates that Rājasekhara had already planned the further Adhikaranas of this work.

1. 15. This śloka is more commonly read as:—

सर्गश्च प्रतिसर्गश्च वंशो मन्वन्तराणि च ।

वशानुचरितं चैव पुराणं पञ्चलक्षणम् ॥

1. 17. Rājasekhara's view regarding Itihāsa has already been mentioned; he includes it among the Upavedas (p. 2. l. 23.). Itihāsa is of two kinds: परक्रिया and पुराकल्प । All MSS read here as परिक्रिया but the correct reading seems to be परक्रिया. The Arthavādas of four classes: निन्दा, प्रशंसा, परकृति and पुराकल्प, are known as parts of the Vedic injunctions, विधि or निषेध । The last two divisions of the Arthavāda are considered as Itihāsa. For the four divisions including परकृति and पुराकल्प, see the Āpastambas'rauta-sūtra, 24-1-33, Gautama's Nyāyasūtra 2-1-64, S'ābarabhāṣya on II-1-33, Vāyupurāṇa 59, 136-137, and Jaimini 6-7-26.

1. 20. These two classes of Itihāsa can be distinguished by their names alone as they forcibly bring out the characteristics of each. Rājasekhara seems to have defined the two classes in accordance with the Vedic illustrations of the two kinds of Arthavāda. These are:—इति ह स्माह चद्रुर्वाणिर्मापान्मे पचत न वा एतेषा हविरृण्हन्ति for परकृति, and उल्मुकैर्ह स्म पूर्वे समाजगमुस्तान्ह असुरा रक्षानि निर्जन्तु. for पुराकल्प ।

1. 22. सहस्रेण । This word should not be taken as literally true because the Brahmamīmāṃsā does not consist of a thousand Nyāyas; the word māy, however, refer to the Dharmamīmāṃsā where a thousand Nyāyas are treated of.

1. 24. The fourteen Vidyāsthānas are enumerated by Yājñavalkya in his Smṛti (1-3) in the following verse:

पुराणन्यायमीमांसाधर्मशास्त्राङ्गमिश्रिता ।

वेदा स्थानानि विद्याना धर्मस्य च त्रुर्दश-॥

1. 26. भूर्भुवः स्वः । विद्या or knowledge acquired through these fourteen sources pertain to all things existing in the three worlds, earth, sky and heaven.

1. 27. In this verse Rājasēkhara expresses his inability to supply a complete list of works and subjects included in each Vidyāsthāna as it will be too long and will occupy much space.

[ll. 6-13. Cf अर्थशास्त्र 1-2. and for ll. 22-24 Cf. Ibid 1-4.]

1. 3. After stating the traditional division of the S'āstras, the author expresses here the opinion that Kāvya which is the second main division of literature should be classed as another Vidyāsthāna as it follows the other Vidyāsthānas in many respects and that its position should be the 15th in the list of the Vidyāsthānas.

1. 4. गद्यपद्यमयत्वात् etc. These are the three reasons to show how poetry follows in the foot-steps of the S'āstras. The reading तद्विद्याशास्त्राणि etc. in C Ms. is preferred to that of A and B, as the same idea finds an expression earlier on page 2. l. 17.

1. 6. All the eighteen sources of Vidyā or knowledge are said to be absolutely necessary for every person in his daily observance of Dharma, Artha, Kāma and Moksa which together constitute the Lokayātrā or worldly existence.

ll. 14-15. Here the method of treatment of Vidyās is generally in keeping with the Arthasāstra of Kautilya. According to the definition of Vidyā अभिर्धर्मार्थौ यद्विद्यात्तद्विद्यानां विद्यात्वम्, it is clear that only those sciences are considered here as Vidyās through which Dharma and Artha can be gained. On the strength of this definition of Vidyā, Sāhitya also is included as the fifth Vidyā, ll. 16-21. Kautilya defines आन्वीक्षिकी thus: बलावले चैतासा (त्रयीवार्तादण्डनीतीना) हेतुभिरन्वीक्षमाणा आन्वीक्षिकी, and includes the three philosophical systems सांख्य, योग and लोकायते under the main head of आन्वीक्षिकी. But Vātsyāyana, in his commentary on the Nyāyasūtra of Gautama defines it as प्रत्यक्षागमन्याचीक्षितस्यान्वीक्षणमन्वीक्षा । तथा प्रवर्तत इत्यान्वीक्षिकी न्यायविद्या न्यायशास्त्रम् । (1-1-1). Thus the four systems of philosophy are considered as आन्वीक्षिकी. Rājasēkhara augments the number of the आन्वीक्षिकी by adding two more systems of philosophy and by distributing them into two groups पूर्वपक्ष and उत्तरपक्ष. The philosophy of the Jains, Buddhists and Cārvākas is included in the former while that of the Sāṅkhya, Nyāya and Vaiśeṣika is taken up in the latter. These six schools are called by the single name of Tarka. Gautama defines Tarka in his Nyāyasūtra as अविज्ञाततत्त्वैः कारणोपपत्तित. तत्त्वज्ञानार्थमूहस्तर्कः । (1-1-40.). As these six schools of philosophy try to discover the real nature of the universe, soul, body and other connected objects, they are collectively known as Tarka. This Tarka is based on three varieties of arguments in order to decide the truth or otherwise of a statement. These arguments are commonly known as Kathā which consists of three members. वाद, जल्प and वितण्ड । (see Vātsyāyanabhāṣya on Gautama (1. 2. 1-3) for the definitions of Vāda, etc)

1 25. Here the author while generally defining the S'āstras shows also the correct method of their composition. In the course of his definition, he mentions that the S'āstras were originally composed in the form of Sūtras commentaries and explanations then followed, and the S'āstras expanded just as the rivers expand in the course of their progress.

1 1. सूत्रणात् । The root sūtra means वेष्टन or that which encircles. A Sūtra, indeed, encircles or includes many things within a short space. Similarly, S'āstric Sūtras also are concise technical sentences which express the maximum idea in the minimum of space.

1 2. The well-known and the most popular definition of Sūtra is given in this verse. Cf. Vāyupurāna 59, 142. There is another definition which also deserves to be cited in this connection:—

लघूनि सूचितार्थानि स्वल्पाक्षरपदानि च ।

सर्वतः सारभूतानि सूत्राण्याहुर्मनीषिणः ॥

1 3. अस्तोभम् । The word स्तोभ signifies a letter or a group of letters which serves no purpose in making out the sense of a sentence and is, therefore, considered redundant. Such words are very common in the Sāmaveda. The letters हुं, फद् etc. are examples of स्तोभ. In Sūtras all redundant letters should be eschewed.

1. 4. 'Vitti is the first concise commentary' on the Sūtras. In all Darśanas, or sciences, for instance, the Vrttis generally precede the more comprehensive Bhāsyas.

1. 5. In the Bhāsyas, the authors spontaneously raise points of objection in the succeeding portions which seem to militate against the views expressed in the preceding portions of their own text. This is what is known as आक्षिप्य भाषणाद्भाष्यम् ।

समीक्षा । This word seems to have been used here in the sense of परीक्षा. Generally there are three divisions in the Bhāsyas i. e. उद्देश, लक्षण and परीक्षा. The Nyāyasūtra and its Bhāsyas deal with the परीक्षा portion in a more comprehensive manner than the other philosophical works.

1. 6. A concise commentary on Sūtras or Bhāsyas is called a टीका. The टुप्टीका of Kumārīlabhatta may be cited as an instance where the commentator only touches the very important points of the Sūtra and the Bhāsyas of the Mīmāṃsāśāstra. Brevity of this टीका will be apparent when it is compared with the other works of his, which are designated by him as the Vārttikas, on the S'ābara-bhāsyas.

1. 9. After describing the different divisions of the S'āstras, the author here relates the function of a poet who endeavours to compose verses on S'āstric subjects. The S'lokavārttika of Kumārīla, the Saṅgraha of Vyāḍi and the Vākya-padiya of Bhartihari may be taken as illustrative of the qualities of a S'āstrakavi. For further information regarding the S'āstrakavi and his abilities when compared to those of a Kāvya-kavi, see p. 17. ll. 5-17 of this work.

1. 11. The treatises dealt with above follow the methods of the original Sūtra works and commentaries thereon. But the Prakarana works which appear to be independent treatises introduce only the chief subjects of a S'āstra in order to make the student better fitted for prosecuting higher studies in that S'āstra.

1. 13. S'āhitya which is the fifth Vidyā in the Rājasekhara's scheme of enumeration is defined in this sentence. For the explanation of the phrase यथावत् सहभाव see Bhoja's definition of Sāhitya in his S'ringāraprakāśa (VII) where it is explained in the following words:—

तत्राभिधाविवक्षातात्पर्यप्रविभागव्यपेक्षासामर्थ्यान्वयैकार्थ्यभावादोषहानयुणोपादानालङ्कारयोगर-
सावियोगरूपा शब्दार्थयोर्द्वादश सवन्धाः साहित्यमित्युच्यते ॥

Following this statement of Bhoja, S'aradātanaya in his Bhāvaprakāśana (p. 145. ll. 6-12) defines Sāhitya and gives several illustrations. The twelve varieties of relation between the S'abda and its Artha as described in the above quotation from Bhoja are probably indicated by Rājasekhara in the phrase, यथावत्सहभावेन विद्या. It may also be remembered here that Kālidāsa makes a mention of this Sāhitya of S'abda and Artha in the beginning of his Raghuvamśa

* [1. 14 For the 64 kalās see कामसूत्र 1-3-16]

1. 14. 64 Upavidyās are enumerated by Vātsyāyana in his Kāmasūtra 1-3-16. Another set of 64 Aṅgas of the Pāñcālas also is mentioned in the above work to complete the सांप्रयोगिकाधिकरण of the Kāmasūtra. Vātsyāyana himself calls these Upavidyās by the common name of Kalā in his Kāmasūtra (2-2-3.)

आजीव=livelihood. These Kalās are introduced as a matter of necessity in the best Kāvya, and, therefore, it is necessary that poets should be well conversant with these subjects.

1. 15. The last Adhikarana of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā is called औपनिषदिक where directions are given for obtaining poetical excellence through magical practices, such as the practice of Mantras and Tāntric rites. This statement also indicates that Rājasekhara wanted to complete the present work in eighteen Adhikaranas.

Adhyāya. III.

1. 20 काव्यपुरुषोत्पत्ति. 1 In this chapter the author traces the origin of metrical composition, gives an account of its subsequent developments in a chronological order, and makes an endeavour to connect them with the customs and manners prevalent in the different parts of India. And in doing so, he travels beyond the range of history to mythology and traces the origin of poetry from an imaginary Kāvya-puruṣa who is supposed to be the embodiment of the whole classical literature.

He is the son of Sarasvatī, the goddess of learning, and is brought up in the hermitage of Kavi. The author describes his marriage with Aumeyī the embodiment of Sāhityavidyā or the science of poetry. This Kāvya-puruṣa is described in the first chapter as the earliest teacher of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā and as a divine being from whom poetry took its origin

1. 23. गुरुः । Kāvya-puruṣa was the preceptor of Dhiṣṇa or Brhaspati because he received instructions on the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā from Sārasvateya, and composed a chapter on it dealing with the Doṣas (see p. 1. l. 12.)

बृहतां पतिः । The word Brhaspati is formed according to the rule of Paṇini (6-1-157) and thus it denotes a divine being.

1. 24. पुत्रीयन्ती=being desirous of a son.

दुषारगिरौ=mountain of snow i e the Himālayas.

1. 1. To complete the quotation 'पुत्रं ते सृजामि' the word इति is to be added at the end. But as in many places Rājasekhara overlooks this dictum, इति has been added in the present edition wherever found necessary.

1 2. छन्दस्वतीं वाचम्=metrical composition. In the mythological story related by Rājasekhara, the reason why Sarasvatī was desirous of obtaining a son is not clearly explained. Moreover, Brahmā is here mentioned as the creator of Sārasvateya. But the story of the birth of Sārasvateya as recorded in such earlier works as the Vāyupurāna, Mahābhārata and Harṣacarita differs in some important points from the story recorded in the present work by Rājasekhara. Bāna in his Harṣacarita gives adequate reasons why Sarasvatī came down to earth, married Dadhīca, the son of Cyavana, and gave birth to Sārasvateya. These reasons are not found in any of the Purānas. In the Vāyupurāna also, only the story of the marriage of Sarasvatī with Dadhīca, son of Cyavana, and of the birth of Sārasvata who became a master of all sciences through her blessings, is recorded, mostly on the model of Bāna (see Vāyu-Adh. 65) The fact that in this respect Vāyupurāna was followed by Bāna is clearly apparent not only because that a number of quotations from that Purāna is to be found in the Harṣacarita, but also because the name of that Purāna is definitely mentioned by Bāna as पद्मानप्रोक्तपुराण in the 3rd chapter.

The case of the Mahābhārata is altogether different. Here various stories are recorded concerning the birth of Sārasvateya, the son of Sarasvatī. All these authorities, however, are unanimous in holding that he was vastly learned in the Vedas and that he transmitted his knowledge to others. (see S'āntiparvan, Adh. 359 and S'alyaparvan Adh. 52 of the Mahābhārata). It is said in the S'āntiparvan of the Mahābhārata that God created a Sārasvata through Sarasvatī and asked him to learn the Vedas himself and transmit his learning to others. This Sārasvata was also known by the names of Vyāsa and Apāntaratamaś, and he in accordance with the above instruction, spread the knowledge of the Vedas in the world.

A similar story is also found in the S'alyaparvan where it is said that the creative energy of the sage Dadhīci was transmitted to the river Sarasvatī when he was overpowered by passion on seeing Alambusā a divine dancing girl. As a result, the river Sarasvatī, obtained a son and he was carried by her to Dadhīci, his father. This Sārasvateya taught the Vedas to the sages when they forgot them owing to a severe famine which lasted for 12 years. Aśvaghoṣa, in the first century A. D. also records the same story regarding Sārasvateya in his Buddhacarita (1-47.)

1. 3. श्रुतेत् etc. In the first half of this verse a clear exposition of the S'abdabrahmavāda as developed by Bhartṛhari in his Vākyapadīya, has been made. According to this school of philosophy, the S'abdabrahma or Nāda, which came out from God when he desired to create the world, is the cause of the universe which is enveloped in Vivarta or the illusory form of existence. When this illusion is removed by means of Vidyā or true knowledge there remains only the Nāda or S'abdabrahma. This Nāda is also called Parāvāk. From this Parāvāk, Paśyantī, Madhyamā and Vaikharī, the three other kinds of speech, are produced. Here Madhyamāvāk has the property of Sphota which reveals the knowledge of Artha from the S'abda. The things that are known or meant by the words have also no separate existence from the words, though they appear to exist separately. In support of this theory, the following verses appear in Bhartrhari's Vākya-padīya:—

अनादिनिधनं ब्रह्म शब्दतत्त्वं यदक्षरम् ।
 विवर्ततेऽर्थभावेन प्रक्रिया जगतो यतः ॥
 यो वाऽर्थो बुद्धिविषयोऽबाह्यवस्तुनिबन्धनः ।
 स बाह्यं वस्त्विति ज्ञातः शब्दार्थं. सम्यगिष्यते ॥
 शब्दोपहितरूपाश्च बुद्धेर्विषयता गतान् ।
 प्रत्यक्षमिव कंसादीन् साधनत्वेन मन्यते ॥
 न सोऽस्ति प्रत्ययो लोके यः शब्दानुगमादृते । अनुबुद्धमिव ज्ञानं सर्वं शब्देन भासते ॥
 अत्यन्तासत्यपि ह्यर्थे ज्ञानं शब्दं करोति हि । etc

For further information regarding the S'abdabrahma and Vivartavāda a reference may be made to the Laghumañjūsā of Nāgēśabhatta

विवर्तते । Vivarta is the illusory existence of a thing, for example, as the illusory existence of a serpent in the rope when it is mistaken for a snake

1. 4 अस्मि । This is an indeclinable particle meaning 'I'—or अहम्.

1. 9. त्वदुपज्ञम् । etc So long Vālmīki was considered to be the first to write in the classical śloka metre, and the first composition attributed to him is the verse. मा निषाद, etc (See Rāmāyana. 1-2.) According to Rājaśekhara, however, this verse of Vālmīki is much later than the compositions of Kāvya-purusa and Uśanas who were the two earliest inventors of the śloka metre

1 12 रस आत्मा । Rasa is the soul of the Kāvya There are several standards of literary criticism in the history of Sanskrit poetics, and amongst them the theory of Rasa as the soul of poetry may be considered to be the pre-eminent This theory was first conceived and developed by Bharata in his Nāṭyaśāstra for the purpose of dramatic composition The importance of Rasa, however, was not fully recognized by later critics such as Bhāmaha, Daṇḍin, and Vāmana as a standard of literary criticism with reference to compositions other than the drama But the later critics advocated different theories of Alankāra, Guṇa, Rīti, Dhvani, Vakrokti, Anumiti and Aucītya, and were of opinion that these principles were the essential factors in the best form of poetical composition other than the drama. During this period, the theory of Rasa underwent many changes and modifications in the hands of those who belonged to the other schools of literary criticism. In the middle of the 9th century Ānandavardhana revived the theory of Rasa and held that Rasa Dhvani is the chief principle in all poetical compositions including the drama. This theory of Dhvani though well established by Ānanda did not meet with general approval amongst a large number of critics during the period from 850 to 950 A. D. as they were content with the original Rasa school of thought started by Bharata and applied the same principle to both classes of the literature. Prominent among them were Rudrata, Bhattanāyaka, Dhanañjaya, and Dhanika. Rājaśekhara flourished during this period (cir 900 A. D.) and he was led to adopt the trend of literary criticism as was prevalent in his days. Thus, he held that the Rasa and not Dhvani is the soul of the Kāvyaपुरसा Agam, at the end of the 10th century A. D. the theory of Rasadhvani was revived once more by the great Kashmirian scholar Abhinavagupta following in the foot-steps of Ānandavardhana. Rājaśekhara did not even mention Dhvani as a part of the Kāvyaपुरसा or as the subject-matter of any of his eighteen chapters because in his time even the existence of Dhvani in poetry was not recognised by critics. For further information regarding the history of the Rasa school see the introduction to the Bhāvaprakāśana (G.O.S. No. 45).

For the different interpretations of this Rk see Sāyana's Bhāṣya, Yāska's Nirukta 13-18 and Patañjali's Mahābhāṣya पस्पशा.

Both the MSS. of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā read शृङ्गात्रयो and मर्त्या-विवेश. cf. सप्त स्वराः, त्रीणि स्थानानि, चत्वारो वर्णाः, द्विविधा काकुः, षडङ्गारा, षडङ्गानि इति ।

l. 20. उशना परिवृत्ते etc. The fact that Sārasvateya Kāvyaपुरसा was brought up by Uśanas or Kavi, as mentioned by Rājaśekhara, not only shows that no rule of grammar (Pāṇini 4-1-151), is violated in the derivation of the word Kāvyaपुरसा (the son of Kavi) but also proves the propriety of using the famous name of S'ukra as Kavi (see. नामलिङ्गानुशासन. 1-3-25).

*[ll. 23-24 या दुग्धाऽपि न दुग्धेव found in some MSS. of दमयन्तीचम्पू of त्रिविक्रम as मङ्गलश्लोक]

1. 25. तत्पूर्वकम्=after repeating this verse composed by Uśanas.

तत प्रभृति । After this event Uśanas is called Kavi because of his paternal affection towards the young Kāvyaपुरसा and also because he himself composed a verse या दुग्धापि न दुग्धेव etc

1. 26. तदुपचारात् । Due to the secondary capacity of the words (लक्षणा). Poets are called Kavīs because they are also engaged in the composition of verses as Uśanas or Kavi did in olden days.

1. 1. कवृ वर्णे । Pāṇinīyas take the word वर्ण here to represent colour and derive words such as कर्बुर, कबरी etc. from this root कवृ. The word Kavi is generally derived by them from the root कुङ् शब्दे, इकार being added in accordance with the Unādi rule अच इ (4-138). Ujvaladatta in his Unādisūtravṛtti derives the word Kavi from the roots कु वर्णे or कु शब्दे (see. 4-138). But the Dhātupātha of Pāṇinī reads two roots कुङ् and कु and states शब्द only as their meaning. Rājaśekhara, however, seems to derive the word Kavi from the root कवृ वर्णे which is not possible according to the Unādi rule अच इ and seems to take the word वर्ण to mean वर्णन or description. Following the derivation of Ujvaladatta on 4-138 of Unādisūtra, the reading कवृ वर्णे may be changed here as कुङ् वर्णे.

1. 2. भक्त्या । भक्ति is the secondary capacity of the word called the लक्षणा or गौणी. The word Kāvya signifies poetry through the primary capacity known as शक्ति and Sārasvatēya through the secondary capacity (लक्षणा) as he is the personification of poetry.

1. 4. वाल्मीकि । Vālmiki also is brought here by Rājaśekhara to play his role because the epithet of Kavi applies to both S'ukra and Vālmiki (कविर्वाल्मीकिश्चकयो-मेदिनी) and particularly to Vālmiki as he is designated by all poets as the आदिकवि

1 5. ऋगुक्ते = of S'ukra. Bhrgu is the son of Brahman and S'ukra is Bhrgu's son. This shows the source Vāyupurāṇa from which the author conceived the idea underlying the story of Sārasvateya. The Vāyupurāṇa and the Harṣacarita mention that Bhrgu's grandson Dadhīci obtained a son Sārasvateya through his wife Sarasvatī. See. Vāyu. 65, 88-91. and Harṣacarita. I.

1. 7. अनुप्रेक्षित =blessed by Sarasvatī.

1. 8. निषादनिहतसहचरीकं क्रौञ्चयुवानम् । Here Rājasekhara states that the female Krauñca was hit by the Niṣāda and the male Krauñca was lamenting in the presence of Vālmīki. But this statement goes against the description of the event recorded in the Rāmāyaṇa.

Cf. तस्याभ्याशे तु मिथुनं चरन्तमनपायिनम् ।
ददर्श भगवास्तत्र क्रौञ्चयोश्चाहनि खनम् ॥
तस्मात्तु मिथुनादेकं पुमासं पापनिश्चय ।
जघान वैरनिलयो निषादस्तस्य पश्यतः ॥
तं शोणितपरीतागं वेष्टमानं महीतले ।
भार्या तु निहतं दृष्ट्वा रुराव करुणा गिरम् ॥

Rāmāyaṇa 1. 2. 9-11.

There is a similar statement made by Ānandavardhana in his Dhvanyāloka (p. 27) as under : संनिहि(ह)तसहचरीविरहकातरक्रौञ्चाक्रन्दजनितः शोक एव श्लोकतया परिणतः । which also seems to go against the Rāmāyaṇa of Vālmīki Probably this passage of Ānandavardhana may be at the back of Rājasekhara's statement because the word संनिहित or सनिहत construed with the word सहचरी gives a different meaning as stated by him in the passage निषादनिहतसहचरीकम् । But Abhinavagupta subsequently in his Locanā got over the discrepancy by mending the passage of the Dhvanyāloka in the following manner : संनिहतसहचरीविरहकातरक्रौञ्चन आक्रन्देन च जनितः शोक ।

In this emendation, the word संनिहत is construed not with सहचरी but with क्रौञ्च who represents the विभाव, whereas the आक्रन्द of the female क्रौञ्च is अनुभाव for the शोक of Vālmīki. Cf. Locanā : संनिहतसहचरीति विभाव उक्तः । आक्रन्दितशब्देनानुभावः । (p 28. l. 8.)

1. 10. By introducing here this verse and the story of Vālmiki, Rājaśekhara reminds us of a similar narrative found in the beginning of the Rāmāyana. It is said there that Brahman induced Sarasvatī to bless Vālmiki with poetical skill. After obtaining her blessings Vālmiki began his compositions, and this verse मा निषाद etc was his first metrical composition.

Cf. मच्छन्दादेव ते ब्रह्मन् प्रवृत्तेयं सरस्वती ।
रामस्य चरितं कृत्स्नं कुरु त्वमृषिसत्तम ॥

Rāmāyana 1. 2 31.

As Rājaśekhara wanted to trace the earliest history of metrical composition in this chapter, it is but natural that he should bring Vālmiki's composition after that of Kāvyaपुरusa and S'ukra.

According to Rājaśekhara, therefore, the first Kavi or author of metrical composition is Kāvyaपुरusa; the second is S'ukra who brought up Kāvyaपुरusa in his hermitage and composed a verse; while the third is Vālmiki who led Sarasvatī to the place of her son and began composing verses.

1. 21. कुमारः । Kārtikeya the son of Gaurī was a friend of Kāvyaपुरusa and he felt very uncomfortable when the latter made an attempt to run away.

1. 23. नान्यत् । In this connection, the verse occurring in this work on page 66, is noteworthy —

दृष्ट्वाऽन्येभं छेदमुत्पाद्य रज्ज्वा यन्तुर्वाचं मन्यमानस्तृणाय ।
गच्छन्द्धे नागराज. करिष्या प्रेम्णा तुल्यं बन्धनं नास्ति जन्तोः ॥

1. 25. अनुवर्तस्त्रै नं निवर्तय च । Sāhityavidyā is the realisation of the connections that exist between the S'abda and the Artha. By this statement, Rājaśekhara wants to convey that Sāhityavidyā alone is able to revive the creative faculty in poets even when poetry is extinct.

1. 26. काव्यविद्याज्ञातकाः । Kāvyaavidyāsnātakas are those who after studying the Kāvyaavidyā begin to compose poems.

1. 3. अथ etc. After tracing the origin and history of metrical composition, the author in the next two pages (8-9) seeks to explain the varieties of poetical composition in accordance with the natural surroundings, and customs and manners of the different people. These are called styles and Rājaśekhara classifies them into four distinct groups. These four groups, each consisting of Pravṛtti, Rīti and Vṛtti, are already mentioned by Bharata in chapter 13 of his Nāṭyaśāstra. Rājaśekhara adds to the description of the four groups, four verses of his own, describing women's dress in four parts of India with the preamble—ता ते मुनयोऽमितुष्टु and seeks in these pages to discover scientific explanations for the different styles of writings which existed in early Sanskrit compositions. Incidentally, he mentions also the four Pravṛttis or वेषविन्यास, Vṛttis or विलासविन्यास and Rītis or वचनविन्यास adopted by the people living in the four divisions of India.

In the eastern part of India, there are. Auḍramāgadhī Pravṛtti, Bhāratī Vṛtti and Gaudiyā Rīti

In the Pāñcāla country, there exist. Pāñcālamadhyamā Pravṛtti, Sāttvatī and Ārabhatī Vṛttis and Pāñcālī Rīti.

The Southern part of India has: Dāksinātyā Pravṛtti, Kaiśikī Vṛtti and Vaidarbhī Rīti

Among the Pravṛttis, Vṛttis and Rītis mentioned above Rājaśekhara seems to attach a relative superiority to the Vaidarbhī, Kaiśikī and Dāksinātyā style of the southern India; because he states that Kāv्यapurusa was pleased and brought under control by Sāhityavidyāvadhū only through the style current in South India. It seems, however, strange that he failed to recognize the Lāṭiyā Rīti of the dialects of the countries Avantī etc. though the whole of the Avantī or Lāṭa country had been frequently described by him in his works. (See Kāv्यamīmāṃsā p 34. l. 7 and Bāla-rāmāyaṇa, act X). The reason for this, seems to be that he did not favour the idea of creating a new Rīti of Lāṭiyā as proposed for the first time by Rudraṭa, because there is not much difference between the two Rītis, Pāñcālī and Lāṭiyā. In the history of the development of Rītis, Bhāmaha did not acknowledge the existence of distinct classes of Rīti such as Gaudīyā and Vaidarbhī; while Dandin in his work established the relative superiority of the Vaidarbhī style over that of the Gaudī. To these two, Vāmana added a third, the Pāñcālī, and Rudraṭa a fourth, the Lātīyā. Thus four Rītis were acknowledged by critics in the period when Rājaśekhara flourished, but he recognized only three Rītis after omitting the Lātīyā. This fact he again mentions on p. 10. l. 5.

1 2. For the complete description of the Cakravartikṣetra, see p. 92 of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā.

1 3. Beyond the Cakravartikṣetra, there are the lands called Harivarsa and Kimpurusavarṣa which are the abodes of divine beings

1 5. तिस्रः । Rudrata who flourished before Rājaśekhara and who is often quoted in this work, had acknowledged four Rītis including the Lātīyā in his Kāvya-lāṅkāra (2. 4-6.). The reason why Rājaśekhara did not recognise the fourth Rīti is already mentioned.

पुरस्तात् । Rītis are proposed to be treated of in the third Adhikarana 'Ritinirṇaya' as enumerated on the first page of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. This statement also clearly shows that Rājaśekhara wanted to complete this work in eighteen Adhikaraṇas. For the three Rītis see p 31. l. 6. of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā

1 6. वत्सगुल्मम् । Rājaśekhara thinks that Vatsagulma is a city in the country of Vidarbha. This Vatsagulma may be identified with the Vamśagulma which is situated near the source or first fall of the river Narmadā. Cf. Mahābhārata, Vana. cha. 83. 9. But Vātsyāyana in his Kāmasūtra (5. 6) mentions Vatsagulma and Vidarbha as two distinct countries Cf. प्रेष्याभिः सह तद्वेषाच्चागरकपुत्रान् प्रवेद्यन्ति वात्सगुल्मकानाम् । ३५ । स्वैरेव पुत्रैरन्तःपुराणि कामचारैर्जननीवर्जमुपभुज्यन्ते वैदर्भकानाम् । ३६ । This Vatsagulma of Kāmasūtra may represent the kingdom of Udayana Vatsarāja.

1. 17. पदवाक्यविवेकः । This subject comprises three chapters 4, 5 and 6. The fifth chapter which deals with the Kāvya-pāka must also be taken as a sub-division of the main subject पदवाक्यविवेक; because काव्यपाककल्प is nothing but the selection of such words and sentences as may be appropriate to the Rasa. पाठप्रतिष्ठा the subject of the seventh chapter, therefore, is mentioned after the पदवाक्यविवेक in the first chapter, while enumerating the subjects treated of in this work.

1. 18. शिष्यम् । Vāmana divides poets into two classes as अरोचकि and सतृणाभ्यवहारि, and mentions only the first among the two as शिष्य or one who is fit to receive instructions. (See. Kāvya. Sūtra. 1-2.) Rājas'ekhara follows both Vāmana and Kautilya in this respect and divides poets into three classes as बुद्धिमान्, आहार्यबुद्धि and दुर्बुद्धि. The first two only are stated by him as शिष्य or competent to receive instruction.

Among the subjects to be learnt by scholars, the literary secrets should be attempted only by the most clever persons.

S'yāmadeva who is represented here by Rājaśekhara as laying a special stress on the doctrine of Samādhi as the main factor in poetical composition, may be identified with S'yāmilaka, the author of the Pādatāḍitakabhāṣa For the view of S'yāmilaka on this subject, see the following verse

इदमिह पठं मा भूदेवं भवत्विदमन्यथा कृतमिदमयं ग्रन्थेनार्थो महानुपपादितः ।

~ [1. 18 Cf. अभ्यासो हि कर्मणा निरतिशयं कौशलमाधत्ते । Ibid. 1-3-24].

ll. 19-23. This distinction between समाधि and अभ्यास as inward and outward activities, does not appear to be quite clear. For both are mental activities according to the definitions मनस एकाग्रता and अविच्छेदेन शीलनम् But the author seems to indicate that समाधि relates to the thinking mind while अभ्यास is constant practice Yāyāvāriya thinks that these two faculties only strengthen the literary power or शक्ति which alone can create poetry. This power is different from प्रतिभा and व्युत्पत्ति, because they are the effects of the same power. Here Rājaśekhara follows the view of Rudrata.

Cf. मनसि सदा सुसमाधिनि विस्फुरणमनेकधाभिवेयस्य ।

अङ्घ्रिष्ठानि पदानि च विभान्ति यस्यामसौ शक्तिः ॥ (K. A. 1-15.)

Rudrata differs in this respect from Dandīn and Vāmana both of whom hold that प्रतिभा is the chief requisite in poetical compositions. Cf. नैसर्गिकी च प्रतिभा. (Dandīn 1-103.) कवित्ववीजं प्रतिभानम्, (Vāmana 1-3-16)

l. 25. प्रतिभा is another mental faculty by which those things that are not even perceived by poets are easily conceived and expressed. This is called mental perception or मानसप्रत्यक्ष,

1. 1. Both Medhāvīrudra and Kumāradāsa were born blind but became great poets. Kumāradāsa is well known as the author of the Jānakīharana, an excellent but long Kāvya work comprising 20 Sargas. He is said to have ruled over Ceylon and is believed to be a contemporary of Kālidāsa. Two incomplete editions of the Jānakīharana have been published, one from Jaypore in 1893 and the other from Bombay in 1907. The undernoted verse also occurs in the Sūktimuktāvalī regarding the poetic skill of this blind author :

Medhāvīrudra is known from the references of Namisādhu and Bhāmaha, but more as a rhetorician than as a poet. It is also doubtful whether Medhāvīrudra is the name of a single person or of two, namely Medhāvi and Rudra. The single name of Medhāvi is mentioned by Bhāmaha, while that of Rudra appears as the name of the author of the Śīngāratilaka where the author exhibits his skill as a poet.

1. 2. In this sentence, the meaning of क्विन्न is doubtful because of the two constructions क्विन्न न and क्विन्न. In fact, the author here makes an attempt to prove his contention with two arguments. He seeks to prove that poets endowed with प्रतिभा can mentally conceive everything that they want to describe without ever actually perceiving them. To prove this, he first points out that even those who were born blind have become excellent poets. If we take two words as क्विन्न and न, the second argument will be in the form of a question: Do the poets not visualize and describe the customs and manners of the people belonging to other countries and islands without the personal knowledge of those things? The obvious answer is: they do so describe with the faculty of their प्रतिभा. This fact is stressed upon in the following verses taken at random from the works of Kālidāsa. If the word क्विन्न is taken as one word, it should be construed as an adjective to the word व्यवहृतिम्.

[1. 4. प्राणानामनिलेन (अभिज्ञानशाकुन्तल VII. 12.)]

1. 4. In this verse Kālidāsa describes the sages practising penance on the mount Hemakūta situated in the land of Kimpuruṣavarṣa which could not conceivably be seen by him from Bhāratavarṣa (see p. 92 of this work)

*[1. 8. अनेन सार्धं (रघुवंश VI 57.)]

1. 8. Here also Kālidāsa describes the condition of an island on the opposite side of the country of the king in question and refers to the Lavaṅga flower grown in that island. Did he actually visit the place ?

[1. 12. हरोऽपि (कुमार. III. 67.)]

1. 12. Again, the same poet describes the conduct of Mahādeva when he falls in love with Pārvatī Can such scenes be envisaged ?

[1. 16. तथागतायाम् । (रघु. VI 82)]

1. 16. The feelings of a lady for the first time in the presence of her lover, and the behaviour of her maid servant at that time, are fully described here by the same poet, who, being a male, is not expected to know the true feelings of a female mind.

1. 1. Three kinds of neophytes develop into three different types of poets as under.—

S'iṣya	Poet
बुद्धिमान्=	सारस्वत ।
आहार्यबुद्धिः=	आभ्यासिक. ।
दुर्बुद्धि =	औपदेशिकः ।

1. 4. तन्त्रशेषम् । Several efforts through the aid of Mantras and some Tāntric practices.

1. 5. फणितम्=raw sugar.

1. 10. उत्कर्षः । Yāyavaiya thinks that eminence or superiority is always preferable and that the combination of several qualities brings forth eminence. '

*[1. 19. एकस्य. Read न्यस्याविदग्धवदनेषु cf. तत्कान्यमारोप्य पदं विदग्धवक्त्रेषु विद्यं परिवम्भ्रमीति ॥ (रुद्र-शङ्खारतिलक. II 70.)]

1. 19. All MSS read न्यस्याविदग्धवदनेषु etc. If this reading is accepted the meaning of the second half would be, good poetry, while travelling, tramples upon the faces of the uncultured people with its footsteps (words) like one eager to see the world. Here the introduction of uncultured people does not militate against the context because such men are unable to distinguish between good or bad poetry. Compare also the verse of the S'ringārātilakā above quoted: A better reading as न्यस्यद्विदग्धवदनेषु, therefore, is suggested here instead of न्यस्याविदग्ध etc.

1. 21. भावक is a critic or a सहृदय

1. 23. कः पुनः । There is no real difference between these two functions of कारयित्री and भावयित्री because a poet himself may be a good critic or vice versa.

1. 26. भावकस्तु कवि = that poet who is himself a critic. This remark supports the contention of the Ācāryas stated in line 23.

1. 1. Kālidāsa is here represented as refuting the view accepted by the Ācāryas. He seems to be of opinion that the critical and poetical faculties are quite distinct and are found rarely combined in one and the same person. But Rājaśekhara does not mention the place where Kālidāsa must have expressed this view. Very probably the underlying idea has been drawn from the following verse occurring in his S'ākuntala.

आ परितोषाद्विदुषा न जातु मन्ये प्रयोगविज्ञानम् ।

बलवदपि शिक्षितानामात्मन्यप्रत्ययं चेत् ॥ 1-2.

From this, it appears that Kālidāsa was of opinion that poets do not feel at ease until their composition is well-received by critics. Similar expressions are also made by him in his Raghuvamśa and Mālavikāgnimitra.

Cf. तं सन्तः श्रोतुमर्हन्ति सदसद्व्यक्तिहेतव ।

and सन्तः परीक्ष्यान्यतरद्भजन्ते मूढ. परप्रत्ययनेयवुद्धिः । Mālavikāgnimitra I.

1. 3. This verse also strengthens the view that these two faculties of composition and criticism seldom combine in one person.

* [1. 7. Two verses of मङ्गल are quoted in सदुक्तिकर्णामृत—

यदाख्यानासङ्गादुषसि पुनते वाचभृषयो यदीय सकल्पो हृदि सुकृतिनामेव रमते ।

अरोचकिनः सतृणाभ्यवहारिणश्च etc.

Cf. अरोचकिनः सतृणाभ्यवहारिणश्च कवयः ॥ १ ॥ इह खलु द्वये कवयः संभवन्ति । अरोचकिन. सतृणाभ्यवहारिणश्चेति । अरोचकिसतृणाभ्यवहारिणश्चैवौ गौणार्थौ । कोऽसावर्थः । विवेकित्वमविवेकित्वं चेति । यदाह—

1. 7. The Bhāvakas or critics are divided into two distinct classes by Maṅgala as अरोचकि and सतृणाभ्यवहारि. In Vāmana's Kāvya-lāṅkārasūtra, the same division is found with reference to poets but not critics. It may be surmised from this statement of Rājaśekhara: “कवयोऽपि भवन्ति । इति वामनीयाः” that Maṅgala was earlier than Vāmana (cir. 800 A. D.).

ll. 10-17. Yāyāvāriya disagrees with the contention of Vāmana regarding the division of poets, and sticks to his original classification given in the beginning of the chapter as बुद्धिमानाहार्यबुद्धि etc. He advances two important arguments in rejecting Vāmana's classification of poets. Firstly, that if the quality of अरोचकिता is inherent from birth it cannot be changed by human effort. Secondly, that if it springs through the medium of the knowledge of reality, it is not likely to take effect when a good piece of poetry is placed before him. Similarly, the other quality of सतृणाभ्यवहारिता is common to all in the beginning, but it disappears when one begins to discriminate the best from the worst by virtue of deeper study.

1. 20. Scholarship without jealousy is a rare virtue. It is a truism and with this the author feintly hints at Bāna who in his Harṣacarita 6th Uchhvāsa writes as follows:—

कपिरचपलः कविरमत्सर वणिगतस्करः + + +
× × राजसूनुर्दुर्विनीतश्च जगति दुर्लभः ।

Page. 15.

1. 4. This line must be construed as —

भावक कवे. यन्न भवति तत् किम् । ही चित्रम् ।

1. 5. Cf. किं कवेस्तस्य काव्येन सर्ववृत्तान्तगामिनी ।

*[1 7. Cf. सखं नन्ति गृहे गृहे सुकव्ये (शङ्कारतिलक. 1-17)].

1. 7. Bāna has expressed a similar sentiment in the following verse:—

सन्ति श्वान इवासङ्ख्या जातिभाजो गृहे गृहे । उत्पादका न बहवः कवयः शरभा इव ॥

*[1. 10. सर्वाभिनयनिर्णीतौ दृष्टा नाट्यसृजा न याः । नाट्यसृजा । ब्रह्मणा ।

1 10. Construe as:—

या. सर्वाभिनयनिर्णीतौ नाट्यसृजा न दृष्टा. ता विक्रिया उल्लसन्ति ।

1 11. वाग्भावक and हृदयभावक । Some critics seem to appreciate poetry and express their appreciation while others appreciate at heart but do not express. Some scholars, however, are inclined to interpret the sense of these two terms in a somewhat different manner. The Vāgbhāvakas are those who are apt to lay much stress on the words of poetry, while the Hridayabhāvakas are disposed to lay an emphasis on the essence of poetry.

1. 14. Some critics, while going through a poem, discover simultaneously the existence of qualities that are to be praised and the non-existence of the blemishes to be condemned.

1 18 सात्मानम् । This should be separately read in prose as: स-
आत्मानम् । For similar usages refer to सैष दाशरथी राम and सैष शिष्यहिताय न ।

1. 21 All MSS. read पदान्तरम् । But यदा is here suggested as it is followed by तदा in the next half. The general purport of the whole chapter is stated in this verse

1 23 It has already been said that the two qualities of प्रतिभा and व्युत्पत्ति, essential for poetical excellence, arise from the S'akti or the power of imagination with which only a few are blessed. प्रतिभा has been discussed in this chapter while व्युत्पत्ति will follow in the next.

Adhyāya V.

11. 2-5. बहुज्ञता । Ācāryas define व्युत्पत्ति as बहुज्ञता. Here the word बहु or 'many' represents the subjects such as लोकविद्याप्रकीर्णक etc., a knowledge of which is imperative on a poet who makes an attempt at writing poetry. A list of these subjects, probably for the first time, is given by Vāmana in his Kāvya-lankārasūtra. (1. 3 1-20) The knowledge of these subjects is known as Vyutpatti and is an essential factor in the composition of poetry. This has been acknowledged by such early writers on poetics as Daṇḍin, Vāmana and others. (See Kāvya-darśa 1-103, and Kāvya-lankārasūtra 1-3-1.) Abhinavagupta, however, holds a different view regarding the definition of Vyutpatti. He says in his Locana (p. 137. N S. ed.) समस्तवस्तुपौर्वापर्यपरामर्शकौशलं व्युत्पत्ति ।

While Mammata defines this Vyutpatti as निपुणता, he does not add any further explanation. Rājaśekhara, however, differs from the Ācāryas, and is inclined to take the subjects लोक, विद्या, प्रकीर्णक etc, as the source of काव्यार्थ or the theme of poetry but not the cause of poetry itself. (See chapter 8th of this work). While defining Vyutpatti he follows Rudrata and characterises it as उचितानुचितविवेकः ।

Cf. छन्दोव्याकरणकलालोकस्थितिपदपदार्थविज्ञानात् ।
युक्तयुक्तविवेको व्युत्पत्तिरियं समासेन ॥

In the works of Anandavardhana and Abhinavagupta the definition of Vyutpatti is similar to that of Rudrata (See Dhvanyāloka p 137) According to Rājaśekhara, therefore, the faculty of discrimination which is effected by the study of छन्दो-व्याकरण etc, is known as Vyutpatti.

* [ll. 6—10. आनन्द is आनन्दवर्धन the author of ध्वन्यालोक.

This verse is quoted by Hemacandra in his काव्यानुशासनविवेकः]

ll. 6-14. In order to decide the superiority among these two factors: Pratibhā and Vyutpatti, Rājaśekhara quotes here the views held by two earlier writers Anandavardhana and Maṅgala on the same question. Ānandavardhana records his view on this question in his Dhvanyālokā (pp 137 and 147). He holds that Pratibhā is more important to a poet than Vyutpatti and proves his contention by citing an instance from the Kumārasambhava, where Kālidāsa describes the amorous sports of Pārvatī and Ś'iva. This description, he seems to think, is improper and is the result of the poet's want of Vyutpatti, but the propriety of this portion has been maintained admirably by poet's Pratibhā or genius (Ś'akti). Here, it may be noted that Ānandavardhana uses the word Ś'akti to mean Pratibhā while Rājāśekhara limits the use of Ś'akti to denote the cause of Pratibhā. (See page 11. l 22) In support of this view of Ānandavardhana, Rājāśekhara cites another instance by a verse एतत्किं etc. Here, impropriety due to want of Vyutpatti, may be discovered because the son Kārtikeya is said to have asked his mother Pārvatī certain questions regarding his father when he had the quarters as his garments (दिग्म्बर) This impropriety does not find full expression owing to the Pratibhā of the poet who concludes the topic by saying that the Devī smiled and stopped her son from asking further questions of an improper nature, thus diverting the attention of the reader.

ll 15-22 Maṅgala, another expert on poetics, however, held a different view which made Vyutpatti more important than Pratibhā for a poet. Here all the MSS read: वैदग्धीचित्तचित्तानाम् । The word चित्त or चित्र may be read in the place of चित्त. If this suggestion is accepted, the passage will mean that the readers, while appreciating a poet's वैदग्धीचित्त or चित्र which is the effect of his Vyutpatti, do not care much for his want of erudition in शब्दार्थ-गुम्फना which depends on his Pratibhā. This view is illustrated by means of the verse कृत कण्ठे निष्को नहि etc. In this verse the poet exhibits his power of discrimination or Vyutpatti when he states that a lady removes heavy ornaments, dress, etc. from her body but puts on a light negligé in silk when directly she engages herself in amorous sports.

This descriptive skill arises out of the poet's Vyutpatti which is the result of his study of the Kāmasūtra (4. 1.) where we meet with the following passages

प्रतनुशृङ्खलाल्पदुक्कलता परिमितमाभरणं सुगन्धिता नात्युत्खणमनुलेपनं तथा शुक्लान्यन्यानि पुष्पाणीति वैहारिको वेषः ॥ २५ ॥

In this verse readers appreciate the Vyutpatti of the poet and do not denounce him for his lack of Pratibhā or शब्दार्थगुम्फना ।

* [1. 1. जह्वाकाण्डो also in काव्यप्रकाश VII.]

॥ 1-4. In this verse, the poet has exhibited both Pratibhā and Vyutpatti, and Rājasekhara thinks that the poet who possesses both the faculties, is the best. Here, the poet's Vyutpatti of Nātya can be discovered by referring to the definition of Dandapāda, a kind of dancing described in the Nātyasāstra and the Saṅgītaratnākara. cf. Nātyasāstra-(G.O.S. No. 36.)

नूपुरं चरणं कृत्वा दण्डपादं प्रसारयेत् ।

The Pratibhā of the poet also is well exhibited here by his excellent description of the dance of the Devī in the most appropriate words.

1. 25. In this verse, the author illustrates the skill of a poet in composing complete sentences only with nouns without using any verb.

Bhoja finds in this verse a variety of Parikarālaṅkāra while Rājasekhara quotes this verse to illustrate an Arthakavi.

The two verses quoted here to illustrate an उक्तिकवि indicate that समाधि is the chief factor in उक्ति Samādhi has been defined by Daṇḍin, Bhoja and others as अन्यधर्मस्यान्यत्रारोपणम् । Bhoja, in the second verse प्रतीच्छति etc illustrates Samādhi. In these two verses such words as लव्य, लेह्य, निपेय and प्रतीच्छति, अनुवदति, अवतरति, denote the quality known as Samādhi

11. 4-23. In three chapters 4-6, the author treats of पञ्चाक्षयविवेक and other subjects connected with it. Thus, naturally the topic of पाकप्रतिष्ठा which is subordinate to the main subject of पञ्चाक्षयविवेक is introduced in the 5th chapter. After discussing the nature of Pratibhā, Vyutpatti, and classification of poets, the author starts a discussion in order to determine the nature of the Kāvya-pāka, and records the opinions of earlier authorities on that point. Pāka in poetry means 'maturity' and it originates from the constant practice of composing poems. Maṅgala is of opinion that this maturity consists in the knowledge of nouns and verbs, obtained by constant hearing, and that this kind of knowledge is also called Vyutpatti. The Ācāryas differ from Maṅgala and define Pāka as the competency of a poet to select suitable words and to put them in appropriate places. This view of the Ācāryas is also referred to and, as Rājaśekhara states, rejected by Vāmana in his Kāvyaḷankārasūtra (1-3-15) where he calls this faculty of poets as अवेक्षण. To him शब्दपाक is something different and he defines this in the verse यत्पदानि etc. (Ibid. 1-3-15) Avantisundarī ridicules this view of the Vāmanīyas, but extends the sphere of Pāka further to include the propriety of Guna, Alaṅkāra, Rīti, ideas, words and their senses in consonance with the Rasas Rājaśekhara definitely favours the view of Avantisundarī and quotes a well-known verse in its support. This verse सति वक्त्रि etc. is also quoted by Vāmana in order to prove the superiority of the Vaidarbhī style, but not to characterise Pāka. This very Pāka has been designated by Ānandavardhana and Ksemendra by the term of औचित्य or "propriety" in their works. (See Dhvani. p 145, and Aucityavicāraicā. 1-3.) Vāmana's definition of Kāvyaḷapāka is given in the following verse —

ll. 3-9. Altogether nine varieties of Pāka are recognized and these may be classified under the following three heads:—

High	Middling.	Low.
मृद्वीकापाकः	वदरपाकः	पिञ्जुसन्दपाक
सहकारपाक	तिन्तिडिकापाक	वार्ताकपाक.
नालिकेरपाक.	त्रपुसपाक.	क्रमुक्पाकः

Generally, later writers on poetics recognize only two Pākas मृद्वीका and नालिकेर as the best, and again, among the two the former as superior to the latter.

Adhyāya. VI.

1. 16 पदवाक्यविवेक । In this chapter, the author explains the nature of words and sentences and shows how they constitute poetry. Both these topics relate to the main subject of पदवाक्यविवेक. In the two previous chapters, the faculty by which good words and sentences are distinguished from bad ones has been dealt with.

1. 17. व्याकरणस्मृति । Grammar also is considered as one of the Smṛtis because the grammarians distinguish the correct words from their incorrect forms with the help of memory; and also because they think that by using correct words merit is obtained in the next world. As grammar is regarded one of the Smṛtis from very early times, Jaimini also discussed its validity on Dharma in his chapter on Smṛtis पू. मी. 1 3. (see Kumāri's Tantravārtika on Jaimini 1-3-25 and the Paspasānhika of Patañjali's Mahābhāṣya.)

निरुक्तनिघण्टु । Etymological derivation and interpretation of the words are called निरुक्त. निघण्टु is a glossary of words.

शब्द । Words are of two kinds, namely, वैदिक and लौकिक.

1. 18. तौ पदम् । According to the Naiyāyikas पद is a word with a meaning while grammarians consider it as सुप्तिङन्तम् ।

वृत्ति means प्रवृत्ति (शब्दप्रवृत्ति), and five kinds of Vṛtti are recognized.

1. 22. असत्त्वचना = अद्रव्यवचना लिङ्गसंख्याकारकानन्वयिन ।

This includes also चादि which is known as निपात or अव्यय. अव्यय is defined thus.—

सदृशं त्रिषु लिङ्गेषु सर्वास्तु च विभक्तिषु ।

वचनेषु च सर्वेषु यन्न व्येति तदव्ययम् ॥

1. 23. कर्मप्रवचनीया । This term applies to certain words in the प्रादि group. As these words are responsible for certain peculiarities in the construction of sentences, they are grouped separately. For the term of Karmapṛavacanīya see Pānini 1-4-83.

[1. 3. द्वन्द्वोऽसि is attributed to Bhattamuktikalaśa in the Kavikantbābharana 5th Saṁdhi.]

1. 3. The object in quoting this verse द्वन्द्वोऽसि is two-fold; first, to name the six compounds in one verse and secondly, to compose a humorous sentence with the help of the names of these compounds. This verse is attributed by Ksemendia to Bhattamuktikalaśa who is also known as the great-grand-father of the poet Bilhaṇa the author of the Vikramāṅkadevacarita (See. 18. 75) The reading of this verse in the Kavikantbābharana is as follows.

द्विगुरपि नद्वन्द्वोऽहं गृहे च, etc. The reading preferred here:

द्वन्द्वीऽसि द्विपुरसि च गृहे न मे etc is from the B Ms and the meaning of the verse will be this —The house-holder says that though his family consists only of two members and a couple of cows, there is no reduction in household expenditure, he asks his servant, therefore, to work more in order that his labour may enrich him with a good quantity of paddy. This idea is not brought out by any other reading of this verse now available

1. 17. तेषाञ्च etc.—These five kinds of words, when used in constructions according to special rules for their application, enrich the sentence. Here and in the next verse the word आख्यात denotes a sentence and it is not used in its usual signification of a verb

11. 21-25. Here, the author defines वाक्य or sentence which according to him is an arrangement of words capable of conveying to others the sense of the composer. The followers of Udbhata are of opinion that sentences have three distinct functions in expressing their meanings. These three functions, interconnect the meanings of words or पदार्थ and this connection is known as वाक्यार्थ. The connecting links of the words are supplied by the case-terminations or विभक्ति which are either present, or absent at the end of the words as required by Samāsa rules. उपपदविभक्ति is a case-ending which is due to the presence of another noun, such as the चतुर्थी, due to the combination of nouns नम स्वस्ति etc. कारकविभक्ति is a case-ending which has direct connection only with the verb.

1. 1. The power, inherent in the words without case-endings as in a compound, to express the sense of the omitted case terminations etc. is what is called here the S'akti. In this verse, there are six words in the बहुव्रीहि compound and they retain the power of expressing अन्यपदार्थ with the meaning of one or the other of the six case-endings from द्वितीया to सप्तमी e. g. वित्रस्ता शत्रव यस्मात् । सृष्टयाञ्च लोक यस्मै । प्रपन्ना. सामन्ता यम् ।

1 5 In this verse also, the connecting case-terminations of the words कण्ठ, दोलायित etc. are supplied by the same words which retain the power to express the meaning of the case-endings though they are absent in compound forms.

ll. 17-24 मन्थनिराम्=the noise produced by the churning of the sea. This variety of अनेकाख्यात is called सान्तर because verbs are here interrupted by nouns. The other variety known as निरन्तर is so called because verbs are not so interrupted. The root of the verb सरस्यति in line 23 is not found in the धातुपाठ of Pānini. It may be, therefore, read as समस्यति.

ll. 25-27. Bhojadeva in his S'ṛṅgāraprakāśa (3rd prakāśa) states the same ten-fold division of sentences as found here and illustrates the different varieties with the same verses as are quoted here. He also enters into a very lengthy discussion which is mainly based on the two views held by the Ācāryas and Yāyāvāriya as stated here. The Ācāryas maintain that अनेकारख्यातवाक्य cannot be considered as one sentence when it includes several verbs, because one verb connecting some nouns constitutes a complete sentence. After advancing this view of the Ācāryas along with several authorities from Vararuci's Vārttika, Bhoja, following in the footsteps of Pānini and Patañjali, up-held the view of Yāyāvāriya as correct and denounced the view of the Ācāryas based on Vararuci's theory. Yāyāvāriya holds that there may be one sentence with many verbs provided that all of them are connected with nouns, and provided that the import of the sentence is one.

Cf. S'ṛṅgāraprakāśa :—

ननु च निरन्तराख्यातं समुच्चिताख्यातमेकार्थाख्यातमावृत्ताख्यातमित्यादयो वाक्यविकल्पा नोपपद्यन्ते । वाक्यकारो हि मन्थते नास्त्येव तिङन्तयो सवन्ध । तथा च तिङतिङ इत्यत्रातिद्वचन-मनर्थकम् । समानवाक्याविकारात् । इत्यतिद्वचनं प्रत्याचष्टे । नह्येकत्र वाक्ये द्वे तिङन्ते स्त इति । एवं च वाक्यलक्षणं करोति—आख्यातं साव्ययकारकविशेषणम् ।

After advancing this theory with several authorities, Bhojadeva concludes thus:—

तदेवं सूत्रकारस्य भाष्यकारस्य च दर्शनेऽस्ति क्रियाया क्रियान्तरेण संबन्धः । वार्तिककारस्तु गुण्यदस्मददेशनिघाताद्यर्थमाख्यातं साव्ययकारकविशेषणं वाक्यम् एकतिद्वचनमित्यन्यदेव लौकिका-त्पारिभाषिकं वाक्यलक्षणमारभते । न च तेन लौकिको व्यवहारः सिद्धयतीत्युपेक्ष्यते । तदुक्तम्—

1. 26. After explaining पदवाक्यविवेक, the author concludes the topic and declares the result. A Kāvya, according to Rājaśekhara, is nothing but a sentence having Gunas and Alaṅkāras. All early authors on poetics from Bhāmaha onwards have attached equal importance to both the words and their meanings, in the composition of a Kāvya. Rājaśekhara differs from them and holds that words alone are important in the constitution of the Kāvya. In this connection the definitions of Viśvanātha and Jagannāthapandita are noteworthy, because they also hold that sentences alone are the chief constituents of a Kāvya. Cf. वाक्यरसात्मकं काव्यम् (Sāhityadarpana) and रमणीयार्थप्रतिपादक. शब्द. काव्यम् (Rasagangādhara.)

1. 27. Here Rājaśekhara elaborately discusses the point raised by Vāmana in his first sūtra काव्यं ग्राह्यमलङ्कारात्. He records all the arguments adduced by previous authorities for or against the view above stated. Three arguments have been advanced in this connection by those who wanted to denounce the merits of, and to state the disadvantages in the study of, the Kāvya. These arguments are: first, that Kāvya should not be taught to any one because they contain several untrue statements; secondly, because they encourage immoral practices; and thirdly, because they give teachings on indecent practices. In support of these three arguments they quoted several examples from the Kāvya. Rājasekhara refuted all these hostile views on the Kāvya and proved that the study of Kāvya is irreproachable in every way because of its special merits.

ll. 1-4. स्नेम = moisture Here the poet has employed the figure of speech known as अतिशयोक्ति in describing the fame of a king.

ll 5-9. Here also अतिशयोक्ति is employed in describing the army of a king. The word पाताललाड्य is also used by Vāmana. (See Kāvya-lankārasūtra 1-3-23.)

ll. 10-14. The words वाचाल and तुङ्ग are used here to indicate the imperfection of वार्ता and पुराण in stating real facts. The word अव्याहृतं should be pronounced with the काकु (intonation) which indicates interrogation.

l. 15. The reading in this line is defective in all MSS. It may be emended as:—

>[l. 17. पुष्पिण्यौ. ऐतरेयब्राह्मण 7-15-2. (33-3) शतपथब्राह्मण. 15-19]

l 17. ... rk occurs in the शौन वेपाख्यान where Indra advises Rohita, the son of Hariścandra to wander again in the jungle, and this the boy actually did. This rk is in eulogy of the wanderer.

शेरै=शेरते । प्रपथे=प्रकृष्टे तीर्थक्षेत्रादिमार्गं ।

Here wandering is praised in order that Rohita may be tempted to accept this novel career. It is, therefore, called प्रशंसार्थवाद which may contain untrue statements also.

ll 19-22. This is also another प्रशंसार्थवाद which praises grammar as superior even to Vedas. In this connection the Vedic view of Arthavāda is noteworthy. Vedic scholars are inclined to think that the chief object of अर्थवाद is only to praise the action prescribed in the form of त्विधि or निषेध in order to attract the performer; and, therefore, it does not matter if the Arthavāda contained some untrue statements also.

ll. 23-24. This verse is quoted by Patañjali in his Mahābhāṣya (Paspasānhika) to show the utility of studying grammar. The commentator Kaiyata, however, attributes the authorship of this verse to Kātyāyana. cf. कात्यायनोपनिषद्ब्रह्मजाख्यश्लोक-मध्यपठितस्य त्वस्य श्रुतिरनुग्राहिकाऽस्ति । 'एकः शब्दः सम्यग् ज्ञात सु प्रयुक्तः स्वर्गे लोके कामधुग्भवति' इति ।

ll. 1-16 All these lines are quoted here from the Mahābhāṣya of Patañjali, under the name Gonadiya. Here, it is said that one who speaks in words, which are grammatically correct, enjoys success in the next world, while the other whose speech is ungrammatical is contaminated or polluted. The sentence विषम उपन्यास which is found in the Mahābhāṣya after the words अज्ञानं तस्य शरणम्, is omitted here. In the verse यदुदुम्बरवर्णना, etc. a question is asked: If ordinarily wine cannot bring heaven to those who drink it, how can it do so when drunk in Sautiāmaniyāga? This is one of the arguments advanced by atheists to challenge the testimony of the orthodox. Read प्रमत्तगीत एषः । तत्रभवतो.

l. 19. On moral grounds also the Kāvya is injurious and should be discarded.

l. 20. Read डिंभास्तरुणिमनि This verse is attributed to Vijākā in the Saduktikarnāmita, and it is also recorded in the Subhāsita-bhāndāgāra under the heading of असतीचरित The reading in the 3rd पाद also is found there as अनेनैकपतिना which is better fitted than the reading अमागेण किमिदम् found in the text.

l. 25. A similar explanation is given by Vātsyāyana while concluding the chapter on पारदारिकाधिकरण of the Kāmasūtra where immoral practices are described.

l. 10. पाठप्रतिष्ठा or settling the reading is taken up after the पदवाक्यविवेक according to the list of subjects given in the first chapter. This order seems logical inasmuch as instructions on the reading of sentences are given after indicating their nature in previous chapters

II 11-17 Sentences are again classified here according to the sect to which the speaker belongs, such as the ब्राह्म or शैव or वैष्णव. This classification should be known by the reader as it is a part of his education. Rājasekhara, in writing this chapter, seems to have drawn his information mainly from the Vāyupurāṇa. Bāna, in his Harsacarita and Kādambari mentions this Purāṇa, and the Sārasvateya cult which is inculcated in the Harsacarita and the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, is chiefly derived from the same Purāṇa. Rājasekhara in his description of the five kinds of speech also seems to be indebted to the Vāyu and other Purāṇas. This group is named as Brāhma and is divided into five classes स्वायम्भुव, ऐश्वर, आर्ष, आर्षिक and आर्षिपुत्रक. This classification actually appears in the Vāyupurāṇa (chapter 59), though the definitions and illustrations of these five kinds of speech are not found in it. Through this classification, Rājasekhara seeks to trace the origin and development of human speech.

II. 19-23 Here two kinds of speech स्वायम्भुव and ऐश्वर are differentiated. The first is स्वायम्भुव or the primitive speech in which neither the ideas follow in their logical sequence, nor the language appears to be refined, though it is able to express all objects, and even go so far as to describe the methods leading to salvation. Svayambhū is supposed to be the originator of two kinds of speech, one in the form of the Vedas is the earlier, while the other known as ऐश्वर or the primitive speech is the later. The ऐश्वर speech is more refined than the स्वायम्भुव and in it both the logical sequence and skill in composition are noticeable.

1 1 The next stage of development is represented by the speech attributed to the Ṛsis. In this speech sentences have more nouns and case-terminations than those previously described, and their import finds a ready expression. But this speech is invariably connected with some Mantras.

1. 3. The next stage in linguistic development is represented by the speech of the Ṛsikas in which there is a great volume of short sentences full of Nipātas without any case-terminations. But in this speech there is frequent use of words found only in the Vedas.

1. 5 The fifth or the last stage is represented by the speech attributed to the Ṛṣiputras. This is difficult inasmuch as there are words which cannot be definitely separated, and therefore, the import of the sentences becomes doubtful, thus making their meanings obscure. In this speech, there may be frequent use of Yamaka, Anupīāsa and other S'abdacitras, S'lesa, etc.

ll. 8-15. After explaining the different stages of human speech, Rājaśekhara proceeds to characterise the various grades of development in divine speech which seem to be purely imaginary and fanciful. The creator in the beginning of creation taught a language to his 64 disciples Brahmā and others, and this speech was known as the Pārameśvara or Divya. This speech was adopted by the different grades of divine beings and practised according to their capabilities. The Piśācas and Apsarasas are represented to be using the Divya language in their lands, but they are nevertheless allowed in the Sanskrit drama the use of two other languages namely, the भूतभाषा and the प्राकृतभाषा respectively.

l. 16. The original language दिव्य or परमेश्वर which is spoken by divine beings is divided into four different classes, representing the four styles of writing: वैदुष, etc. Yoginīs are probably the female attendants of S'iva or Durgā and their language is here represented by the word योगिनीगत. The female magicians, such as Kāmandakī, Kapālakundalā etc described, for instance, in the Mālatīmādhava may also be represented by the word Yoginī. It is, however, noteworthy that these four speeches generally resemble the four Rītis वैदर्भी, गौडीया, पाञ्चाली and लटीया respectively.

l. 15. योगीन्द्रदर्पण=mirror of saints. Best saints also obtain the knowledge of their own self in His presence.

ll. 1-4. The main headings under which language is divided, are three Bīāhma, S'aiva and Vaisnava. Under Bīāhma speech are included the dialects of the Ṛsis and their followers, while under S'aiva are mentioned the dialects known as Pārameśvara or Divya. Now, the dialect coming under the Vaisnava or the Mānuṣa form of speech is dealt with. This form of speech is chiefly needed for poets of classical literature. Though Rājaśekhara is primarily concerned only with this third variety of speech, he mentions nevertheless the first two kinds of speech, namely, the dialects of the primitive sages and divine beings, because he wanted to show the different stages of linguistic development and also because these are employed by dramatists in their dramas.

ll. 5-8. Vāmana mentioned three Ritis. But Rudrata who flourished later added a fourth and called it Lātīyā. After him came Rājaśekhara who, though conversant with Rudrata's view, did not accept the Lātīyā Riti, but followed Vāmana in this respect. The reason why Rājaśekhara ignored the view of Rudrata seems to be that he did not see any necessity of acknowledging a separate Riti beyond Pāñcālī, probably because the definition of Rudrata which is given below, did not convince him of the necessity.

(K. A. 2-5)

The three Ritis and the different Kākus form parts of instruction on reading. The reader should observe these Rītis with proper intonations on the Kākus while reading poetry, so that the meaning may be readily understood by the listener.

1. 10. Kākuvakrokti is one of the S'abdālaṅkāras according to Rudraṭa. Yāyāvaiya disagrees with him, but follows the definition of Ānandavardhana who seems to think that Kāku is a variety of intonation which serves to bring out only that sense of a passage, intended by the authors to convey, and no other. (For further information, see pp. 212-213 of Dhvanyāloka and Locana).

1. 15. Again, a sentence may be used with two varieties of Kāku, namely साकाङ्क्ष and निराकाङ्क्ष. In such cases the question raised by the first Kāku will be answered by the second. The verse यदि मे वल्लभा etc. is an example of this kind. Here, a Nāyikā replies to her friend who had put a question as to whether her lover could be made sympathetic towards her by the Dūtī whom she had sent. The reply of the Nāyikā is with आक्षेपगर्भकाङ्क्ष and, therefore, is साकाङ्क्ष. आक्षेप is denoted by the काङ्क्ष which bears an express censure on the Dūtī who had become faithless to her.

The same verse may also denote विधि and, therefore, become निराकाङ्क्ष. Vidhi is indicated in the sense that in case the Dūtī faithfully carries out her wishes the Nāyaka will certainly be drawn towards her (Nāyikā).

1. 18. प्रश्नगर्भा । The verse गतः स काले etc. is found in the Bālarāmāyana of Rājasekhara (3. 2). This verse may be interpreted with two kinds of Kāku, namely, प्रश्न and उत्तर thus making it both साकाङ्क्ष and निराकाङ्क्ष. In this verse an eagle tells his wife that those days when Rāvana was everywhere successful are gone, and that evil days have dawned on him so that his enemies are crowned with success. Here two different intonations on the part of the speaker on the words गतः and वर्तन्ते will indicate both a question and its answer.

1. 21. कित्तर्क etc.—The third and last variety of Kāku is illustrated in the verse नवजलवर, etc. Each pāda of this verse will be read differently with two Kākus denoting doubt and decision, and thus make the sentence both साकाङ्क्ष and निराकाङ्क्ष ।

1. 26. These three Kākus each with two varieties are invariably connected with one another. There are, besides, other varieties of Kāku but they may occur without any definite relation amongst themselves.

*[1. 1. युष्मच्छासन वेणीसंहार 1-12]

ll. 1-4. The first three lines in this verse have the Kāku denoting अभ्युपगम while the last line indicates अनुनय. It may be noted here that the two ideas expressed by the two Kākus are not interdependent.

ll. 5-8. Here first three lines have the उपहास Kāku by which the real intention of the speaker is revealed, though it is quite contrary to the sense expressed by the lines. The Kāku denoting अभ्यनुज्ञा is found in the last line, and here also in reality, the speaker does not intend to have सन्धि as he says.

ll. 10-13. This is a verse with three kinds of Kāku. Here each line contains three Kākus, namely, अवधारण, अपन्हव and अनुशोचन. The words सेय have the Kāku of अवधारण, नो कुरङ्गक etc have the अपन्हव Kāku, while the whole line must be read in a way so as to show अनुशोचन of the speaker.

ll. 14-17. In this verse four kinds of Kāku are expressed. They are quite different from one another and have intonations on four small sentences contained in this verse. By these four Kākus रौक्ष्य, प्रतिबोधन, औत्सुक्य and निवेद are expressed in the four sentences, one following the other in sequence.

ll. 18-19. For the continuation and context of the verse उच्यता etc. see Knātārjuniya 9-40.

किं गतेन न हि युक्तमुपैतुं क प्रिये सुभंगमानिनि मान ।
योषितामिति कथासु समेतैः कामिभिर्वहुविधा धृतिरुहे ॥

The different varieties of Kāku with the same illustrations are also found in the S'rngāiaprakāśa of Bhojadeva (Prakāśa VII) and in the Bhāvaprakāśana of S'āradātanaya (GOS. ed. p 146.). both of whom seem to have drawn their information on Kākus from the present work.

1. 20. The further portion of this chapter shows the importance of the knowledge of Kāku for a clever reader.

1. 21. सत्त्वाङ्गाभिनय= histrionics of Sāttvika and Āngika

1. 23. The accents in Vedic Mantras, and changed accents in compound words for the purpose of obtaining different connotations from the same words, according to the rules of grammar, may be called the Kākus of the S'āstras.

1. 25. The Kāku not only reveals a different sense from the ordinary meaning of the words, but also trains the reader in histrionics in order to enable him to express the different senses conveyed by the words.

11. 26-27. Here Rājasekhara praises the poet or the reader who is able to use appropriate Kākus either in his poetry or in reading. But Ānandavardhana is, however, inclined to characterize such Kāvya as inferior or गुणीभूतव्यङ्ग्य because in this Kāvya the suggested ideas are expressed by the Kāku. (see Dhvani pp 212-213) The substance of Dhvani is held by Ānandavardhana as the best form of poetry, but this theory of Dhvani is not recognized by Rājasekhara in spite of the fact that the theory was well-known in the field of literary criticism even before the 9th century A. D.

[For the ककु and पाठगुण cf. भरतनाट्यशास्त्र chap. 17. ककुस्वरविधान,]

11. 1-2. Here it is said that mastery in the art of reading Kāvya can be obtained only by those persons who are highly cultured. The author even goes further and states that the art of composing poetry appears to be quite easy when compared to its reading.

11. 3-4. Like the art of singing, the art of correct reading is not obtained in one birth, but it is the result of experience in many previous births.

11. 7-8. Here is given an account of the different intonations for reading different types of poetry.

प्रमत्तः । The portion of poetry where the Guna प्रसाद is found. Dandin defines प्रमत्त as प्रसिद्धार्थम्.

तद्विरोधिनि । ओजस् is the Guṇa opposed to the प्रसाद, and it is defined by Daṇḍin as समासभूयस्त्वम् While reading this kind of poetry the intonation should be of the तार variety ll. 9-12. In these two verses an account has been given of good and bad forms of reading.

ll. 1-2. Here also the reading of the Gaudas meets with unfavourable criticism as it does not conform to any of the rules of reading. The reading पाठ is suggested here instead of पाठी owing to the nature of the adjectives नातिस्पष्ट etc, the word वाडव is to be taken here to mean something belonging to a Bīāhmana.

ll. 3-4. Kaiṇātas are criticized here as they are always fond of using the letter 'ta' everywhere without paying any attention to the Rasa or Rīti or Guṇa in the poetry they read

ll. 5-6 काव्यसत्ता =knowing that it is poetry

The reading of the Dīāvidas is said to be always accompanied with music whether they read poetry or prose or Campū ll. 7-10. In these two verses, the methods of reading employed by the people belonging to the countries लट, सुराष्ट्र and त्रवण are stated. All these countries are situated in the western part of India. For त्रवण country see page 94-4 of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā.

Rājaśekhara is inclined to believe that the people of the Lāṭa country hated Sanskrit as they were great lovers of Piākṛta. This is borne out by the quotations above cited, and is probably one of the reasons which led him to disregard the existence of a separate Rīti described as Lāṭiyā by Rudrata (see p. 31-6 of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā).

According to Rājaśekhara the people of Saurāstra and Travana were lovers of the अपभ्रंश language, and while reading Sanskrit they adopted the same method as employed in reading their own dialect ll. 11-14. Here the Kashmirian poets are praised for their excellence in the art of reading. It is also said that some poets in the eastern side of Kashmir employ a nasal tone while reading.

ll. 15-18 In this verse the reading of the Pāñcāla poets is characterized as the best, because their tone is best suited to different Rītis in poetry and possesses all the Gunas required for reading. In their reading all letters are clearly pronounced and properly punctuated ll 19-20. Translate:—

Only Vitas and S'akāras are allowed to use the letters ल and र frequently in their speeches, but not the good readers of poetry.

[काव्यायोनयः

cf. लोको विद्या प्रकीर्णं च काव्याद्धानि । लोकवृत्तं लोक । वामन 1-3 et seq.
 गच्छ हृन्दोऽभिधानार्था इतिहानाश्रया कथा ।

Most of this chapter is quoted in Hemacandra's Kāvyañusāsana-viveka and Vāgbhaṭa's Kāvyañusāsana. Not quite of this but of a similar type, are the various Paricayas in the fifth Sandhi of the Kavikānthābhāṣya. Vinayacandra in his काव्यशिक्षा mentions तर्कपरिचय, व्याकरणपरिचय, चाणक्यपरिचय, धनुर्वेदीय (the quotation is the same as one in the Kāvyañimānsā, स दक्षिणापाङ्ग०) उत्पाद्यसयोग (quotation is the same as in the Kāvyañimānsā, उभौ यदि व्योम्नि) भारतपरिचय, रामायणपरिचय, मोक्षोपायपरिचय, आत्मज्ञानपरिचय, धातुवादपरिचय, पुरुषलक्षणपरिचय, द्यूतपरिचय, चित्रपरिचय, वृक्षपरिचय, वनेचरपरिचय, भक्तिपरिचय, विवेकपरिचय, प्रशमपरिचय, हस्तिपरिचय, वैद्यकपरिचय, शास्त्रपरिचय, धनुर्वेदपरिचय, गजलक्षणपरिचय, तुरगलक्षणपरिचय]

ll. 1-5. काव्यार्थयोनयः ।

The sources of the theme of poetry are detailed in this chapter according to the classification scheme given by the author in the first chapter. The faculty of discovering an appropriate theme for poetry after examining these sources is called Vyutpatti, and this has already been dealt with in the fifth chapter. The early writers on poetics mentioned these sources as काव्याङ्ग or limbs of poetry, and they advise the poets to be sufficiently conversant with them. But this list of 12 or 16 sources adopted by Rājaśekhara is not found in any of the earlier works. Among the lists given in the early treatises, the list of Vāmana seems to be fairly exhaustive and to the point (see 1, 3, 1-20). Rudrata's list is almost similar to that of Bhāmaha (1-9) and is given below :—

छन्दोव्याकरणकलालोकस्थितिपदपदार्थविज्ञानान् ।
युक्तायुक्तविवेको व्युत्पत्तिरियं समासेन ॥

(K. A. 1-18.)

Rudrata holds that there is nothing in the world of words or things which cannot be made use of in poetry, and, therefore, the poet must be conversant with all varieties of subjects. Rudrata says.—

विस्तरतस्तु किमन्यत्तत इह वाच्यं न वाचकं लोके । न भवति यत्काव्याङ्गं सर्वज्ञत्वं ततोऽन्येषा ॥

(K. A. 1-19.)

On this point compare Bhāmaha :—

न स शब्दो न तद्वाच्यं न स न्यायो न सा कला ।
जायते यत्र काव्याङ्गमहो भारो महान् कवे ॥

(K. A. 5-4.)

Also Bharata's Nāṭyaśāstra

न तत् ज्ञानं न तत् गिल्पं न सा विद्या न सा कला ।

न स योगो न तत् कर्म नाद्येऽस्मिन्यत्र दृश्यते ॥

But Dandin in his Kāvyaadarśa condensed the same idea in a remarkably short sentence: श्रुतं च बहु निर्मलम् । 1-103.

Later writers on poetics, such as Abhinavagupta, Mammata and others followed the same list and illustrated each point in the same way as Rājaśekhara did (See commentary of Abhinavagupta on the above verse of Bharata (G O S ed. p. 42) and the Kāvyaṣāstra 1-3)

11. 19-24. प्रमाणविद्या includes, according to Rājasekhara, not only the three Vedic schools of philosophy but also the other heterodox schools, such as the Bauddha, Āihata and Lokāyata which are taken as पूर्वपक्षतर्क on p. 4 1 17 of this work. The Mīmāṃsā has been separated from Tarkas on the ground that this school does not adduce any argument against the injunctions of the Vedas, while the Tarkas attribute greater importance to rational arguments than to Vedic injunctions. The word Mīmāṃsā also means पूजितविचार, or in other words, discussions conducted on the assumption that the Vedas are of superior authority while decisions arrived at by mere arguments are called Tarkas Hence मीमांसा and तर्क are classified as different Pramānas Mīmāṃsakas believe that a word at first means an entity in general and the particular thing meant by the speaker is understood only when it is connected with the meanings of other words in the same sentence. See Jaimini's Sūtra आकृतिस्तु क्रियार्थत्वात् । 1-3-33. Here आकृति is taken as सामान्य or जाति which each noun signifies. See, Kumārila's definition of आकृति

Among the Mīmāṃsakas, the followers of Kumārila are called अभिहितान्वयवादिन् because they hold that a word in a sentence is capable only of expressing its meaning, while its connection with the meaning of other words is decided on seeing the nature of other words in the same sentence. But the Pīābhākara school of Mimāṃsā believes in अन्विताभिधानवाद and holds that the meaning of each word is अन्वित or connected with others. According to this school also अन्वितसामान्य is the expressed meaning of the word, while अन्वितविशेष is the meaning derived by its connection with other words

*[1. 1. नासतो (गीता 2-16.)

ll. 1-6. The Sāṅkhyas are called Satkāryavādins while the Naiyāyikas call themselves as Asatkāryavādins, and the two schools are, therefore, opposed to each other. The theory of सत्कार्यवाद is that the effect produced by a cause is not entirely different from the cause, and that the effect also always exists in the cause. Similarly, the cause of an effect does not entirely disappear after the production of the effect, but it exists in the form of that effect. This may be illustrated by the instance of gold and golden ornaments नासतो विद्यते भाव = a thing that does not exist cannot be produced.

नाभावो विद्यते सत् = the existing one (cause) does not perish (after producing the effect)

In the verse य एते etc. the same theory is illustrated on the analogy of the earth and earthen vessels, thus showing that the effects are not different from the cause which in this case is earth.

*[1. 9. किमीह. कि काय (महिप्रः स्तोत्र 5).]

ll. 7-12. For Rājasekhara's conception of the existence of Īśvara and his creation of the world, see Nyāyasūtra of Gautama 4. 1. 19-21, Nyāyavārttika of Uddyotakara on these sūtras, Nyāyamañjarī of Jayantabhaṭṭa pp. 190-204 and the Praśastapādabhāṣya on Kanādasūtra pp. 48-49 Regarding the ऐश्वर्य of Īśvara, the following verse is quoted by Udayanācārya in his Kusumāñjali fifth stabaka :—

सर्वज्ञता तृप्तिरनादिवोध स्वतन्त्रता नित्यमल्लसशक्तिः ।

अनन्तशक्तिश्च विभोर्विधिजा पडाहुरज्ञानि महेश्वरस्य ॥

ll. 13-18. The Vijñānavādins among the Bauddhas do not believe in the existence of the objective world except the Vijñāna. According to them, therefore, words cannot denote any outward object, but produce a momentary effect and transmit the idea of the speaker to the minds of his hearers. The view of the Vijñānavādins has been clearly explained by S'āntarakṣita and Kamalaśīla in their works Tattvasaṅgraha and its Pañjikā (GOS. Nos. 30-31)

cf विवक्षानुमितिश्छिद्यमाकार वाच्यभावतः ।

व्यवस्यतोः प्रवृत्तिश्चेत्तदेवास्मन्मतं पुनः ॥

Kamalaśīla quotes a line from an earlier work in support of this view.

अन्ये त्वाहु — 'अर्थविवक्षां शब्दोऽनुमापयति ।'

यथोक्तं—'अनुमानं विवक्षाया शब्दादन्यत्र विद्यते ॥'

Tattvasaṅgraha. p. 289.

This view is illustrated by the verse भवतु etc, in which the same words such as न न न ममसा etc., spoken by a lady at one time convey निषेध or denial, while at another her acceptance, according to circumstances

ll. 19-23. Lokāyatikas or the atheists do not recognise the soul or Ātman who may enjoy the fruits of his action either in heaven or in hell after death They also hold that the Vijñāna or consciousness found in living beings arises out of a combination of the five elements, in the same way as a few ingredients produce wine. This theory of the atheists also is quoted and refuted by S'āntarakṣita in the Tattvasaṅgraha.

cf. तस्माद्भूतविशेषेभ्यो यथा शुक्तसुरादिकम् ।

p. 520.

साक्षिचिन्तका =those who meditate on the Supreme Being.

ll. 24-25. The soul, according to the Jains, is the doer and enjoyer of all actions and is of the same size as the body They also consider the futility of the body or Ātman in case the size of the soul is acknowledged as either smaller or larger than that of the body. This is what is shown by an example in this verse.

1. 3. सर्वपार्षदत्वात्='because it is fit for all kinds of cultured associations' The word Pārṣada may refer to the Vedic Sūtra literature belonging to several parisads as well. The Prātiśākhya works are included in the Pārṣada literature. The word generally means grammatical works affiliated to the Vedas. See Nirukta 1. 17 and the Prātiśākhya section of the History of Ancient Sanskrit Literature by Max Muller, (p. 68-70)

11. 7-9. समयविद्या='religious doctrines'.

The terms घोर, घोरतर, ब्रह्म, विद्या, कला, and परापरपद refer to the different tenets of the doctrine of the Śaivites.

11 10-13. That the Pāñcarātra doctrines are based solely on the theory of the four Vyūhas of प्रद्युम्न, अनिरुद्ध, सङ्कर्षण and वासुदेव, is explained here in detail

सर्वज्वर=the sufferings both mental and physical

11. 14-17. The Mahāyāna School of Buddhism enjoins that the Bodhisattva should have great compassion for the suffering humanity and should not receive emancipation, though fully entitled to it, until the whole creation is delivered. Further, the Bodhisattva is required to work continuously for the emancipation of living beings by sacrificing his own merits, and taking the consequence of all bad actions done by others on himself. This theory of the Mahāyānists and the description of the सुखावती heaven, which is above the ten Bhūmis are the subject-matter of this verse कलिकलुष, etc. Kumārilabhatta quotes the same verse in his Tantravārttika and attributes its origin to Buddha (Tantravārttika 1-3. 2.) The Hīnayānists, on the other hand, possess no such compassion for the suffering humanity as Mahāyānists do, and they desire emancipation only for themselves. In this verse the methods of a Mahāyānist Bodhisattva are described. For further information on the two Yānas of the Buddhists compare Tattvasaṅgraha : (p. 872)

l. 18. राजसिद्धान्तत्रयी=The three S'āstras of Artha, Nāṭya and Kāma are mentioned here as of interest only to the royal personages, because it is only the kings who are able to practice, follow and appreciate the doctrines inculcated in these S'āstras.

ll. 19-22. This verse of Rājāśekhara has also been quoted by Abhinavagupta in his अभिनवभारती while commenting on the verse of Bharata न तज्ज्ञानं, etc. see Abhinavabhārati (G.O.S. No.36. p 42.)

For an explanation of this verse, compare the शमव्यायामिक chapter of the Arthaśāstra of Kautilya.

शमव्यायामौ योगक्षेमयोर्योनि ।
कर्मारम्भाणा योगाराधनो व्यायामः ।
कर्मफलोपभोगाना क्षेमाराधन. शम ।
शमव्यायामयोर्योनि षड्बुध्यम् ॥ etc.

आवाप = 'intention of declaring a war'. In this verse Rājāśekhara exhibits his special acquaintance with the Arthaśāstra of Kautilya ll. 23-26. This verse shows that the author was fully conversant with the contents of the Nāṭyaśāstra; for, he describes not only the dancing postures, but also explains such technical terms as लम्बितलय etc. which pertain to the science of music. Cf. Nāṭyaśāstra :

अङ्गभूता हि तालस्य यतिपाणिलया स्मृता ।
त्रयो लयास्तु विश्लेषा. द्रुतमध्यविलम्बिता ॥

31. 331.

*[l. 2. असौ मन्दरतस्त्वं cf. कामसूत्र 2 1.3, 9 and 13]

l. 2. मन्दरत = 'from the Mandara mountain' or 'one with dissimilar conjugal affinity'

समरत = 'from the war' or 'one with similar conjugal affinity'.

ll 3-9 Poets are here advised to mix freely with common folk in order to be acquainted with their mode of life and expression. The mode of life is generally recognized as of two varieties :

the cultured and the uncultured How the uncultured folks behave and how they express themselves are treated in these two verses.

सुटितपिठरी=cracked pan.

Here an uncultured woman talks to her lover regarding the changed treatment she was getting from him of late The following may be cited in this connection as a contrast to illustrate a refined address on the same subject.

पुराऽभूदस्माकं प्रथममविभिन्ना तन्नुरियं
ततो नु त्वं प्रेयानहमपि हताशा प्रियतमा ।
इदानीं नाथस्त्वं वयमपि कलत्रं किमपरं
मयाऽऽप्तं प्राणाना कुलिशकठिनानां फलमिदम् ॥

In the second verse इक्षुदण्डस्य etc a popular mode of expression is illustrated while describing the days of the Phālguna month in which things such as इक्षुदण्ड, etc are very commonly enjoyed by the country folk. See the description of Hemanta and S'ísira on pp. 102-104 of this work. For the correctness of the word सैष see notes on p. 2. l. 6

ll. 10-19. समस्तजनजन्य.=‘pertaining to several groups of people’.

कतिपयजनजन्यः—‘pertaining only to a limited circle’.

The verse पिवन्ति etc exhibits the knowledge of the poet concerning the topography of South India where मरिच, ताम्बूल and मधु are common products of the land.

In the second verse the feelings of women of the Kuntala country in amorous sports are described, while the third gives an idea of the geographical peculiarities of the Nepal country.

ग्रन्थिपर्णकपाली=‘an avenue made up of a kind of fragrant trees’.

ll. 20-23. In this verse are described the actions of a Nāyikā who wanted to put a stop to the conversation of her lover with her friends, in order to secure privacy; as also the action of her lady-friends who knew the Nāyikā's intention and left the place on the plea that they were called by somebody outside.

1. 7. The reading नाथकथा is adopted here as it is found in two Mss B and C. and सर्गे is changed into सर्ग. as it is required to be construed with the word यस्य. The first half of the verse should, therefore, be construed as. यस्य कथासर्गे. न नीचैः, अथ न प्रतिभाक्षयः स कविग्रामणीः ।

According to the reading available in Ms A, however, the construction will be as follows:—

यस्य (कवेः) अर्थकथासर्गे (गौं) न नीचैः, (यस्य) न प्रतिभाक्षयः स कविग्रामणीः ।

This construction also gives a good sense inasmuch as the अर्थ and कथा developed by a poet through his power of imagination and described in the last two verses, are the subject-matter of this S'loka. The only defect in this reading is that the two words नीचैः and प्रतिभाक्षयः do not sound well. An emendation may be suggested giving a better sense as:—नवीनार्थकथासर्गे यस्य न प्रतिभाक्षयः । स कविग्रामणीः । but this emendation is not supported by any of the Mss available.

ll. 9-13. A knowledge of different sciences and common practices is considered necessary for poets by later writers such as Ksemendra, Hemacandra, Vāgbhata and Vinayacandra who have included several varieties under the heading of Prakīrnaka. But Rājasekhara illustrates only four kinds of them and suggests several more worthy of being known by poets, saying: एवं प्रकीर्णकान्तरमपि ।

On Hastiśikṣā, for instance, the verse मेघानां etc. is quoted here as an illustration. Here the well-known habit of elephants while bathing in the river is correctly observed in the description of Irāvana's throwing up water.

ll. 1-5 These last four additional sources for the theme of poetry, introduced by Rājasekhara for the first time, are not referred to by any of the later writers, though the other twelve sources are quoted sometimes with the same illustrations as given by our author. It is not, however, easy to surmise how these four principles उचितसयोग etc. are considered as काव्यार्थयोनि by Rājasekhara. But it is clear that Rājasekhara has shown by these four illustrations the four methods of description. उचितसयोग is 'the appropriate connection (of things)'.

ll. 6-9. योक्तसयोग = the connection of a thing already described as connected with others. In this verse the dust raised up by the march of an army is described as already connected with other things such as सुरदन्तिदानोदक and चक्षुःसहस्र of Indra. This dust is said to have been mixed up with the water of the celestial Ganges where the divine ladies are accustomed to take their bath.

*[1. 10. उमौ यदि व्योम्नि (माघ III. 8)]

ll. 14-19. संयोगविकार:=change due to connection. Imaginary and natural changes are described in these two verses one after the other.

पीयन्ते. This verb is derived from the root पीड्. पाने of श्यन्विकरणि.

Adhyāya IX

*[Pages 42-44. l. 10. are quoted by Hemacandra in his काव्यानुशासनविवेक. pp. 122-123.]

ll. 1-4. सः stands for काव्याय or the theme of poetry. Drauhini's view is cited here for the second time. For the other reference see notes on p. 2. l. 24 of the present work. दिव्य means the activities of divine beings

ll. 5-8 The first half may be construed thus: निजवारवासगतया रम्भया नलकूवरस्य विरहात् (तं) स्मृत्वा उत्कण्ठलं तुम्बुरो वीणासमं यत् उद्रीतम् ।

Kāvyañuśāsanaviveka reads उत्कण्ठसरम्भया instead of उत्कण्ठलं रम्भया ।

ll. 20-23 If the reading कोटिकुण्ड is adopted, प्रणमति should be connected with तद्वक्त्रे. The words कपिल, कुलिक, सस्तिक, पद्म, कम्बल, गङ्गापाद etc. are the names of different serpents in the nether world. Many of the names are found in the Mahābhārata (Ādiparva Adhyāya 35.) गङ्गागल seems to be the same as the father of S'añkhaçūda, the serpent who was given protection by Jīmūtavāhana, the hero of the drama, Nāgānanda. The subject matter of this verse also seems to be connected with the story recorded in the Nāgānanda ll. 24-27. This verse describes the conversation between Karṇa and the serpent Aśvasena. Aśvasena who was an enemy of Arjuna entered the quiver of Karṇa without his knowledge in the form of a serpent-mouthed arrow. When once Karṇa failed to slay Arjuna with that arrow, the serpent Aśvasena requested Karṇa to charge his bow with the same arrow again. But Karṇa refused. This last part of the episode is stated in this verse. For further details see Mahābhārata Karṇa-Parva 90. Out of the two words आर्द्रवले and अपकर्ण used as epithets of the serpent, the significance of the first word is unknown, while the second अपकर्ण denotes that the serpents are devoid of ears. हरशिष्य is Bhārgava Paraśurāma and Karṇa is his disciple.

मल्लैः । This shows that the arrows of the earth also are capable of achieving the same object as those of the nether regions.

I. 1. इहापि etc. The four sub-divisions of the दिव्यमानुष group referred to on page 42 1. 9 are said to be applicable in the case of the मर्त्यपातालीय group also.

II. 7-10. In this verse, events connected with persons belonging to the three worlds are described. For the story of Āstika, the sage who protected the serpents Takṣaka and others from being destroyed in the sacrificial fire of king Janamejaya, see the Āstika-parva, a sub-section in the Ādiparva of the Mahābhārata.

*[I. 13. विचारितसुस्थ of तत्र दशविधश्चमत्कार अविचारितरमणीय विचार्यमाण-रमणीयश्च (कविकण्ठाभरण. Sandhi III.)]

II. 12-14 Followers of Udbhata classify the subject matter of literature under two varieties: विचारितसुस्थ and अविचारितरमणीय and hold that the S'āstric literature deals with the former, while the latter is the subject of kāvya. Probably Udbhata must have expressed this view in his commentary on Bhāmaha's theory as recorded by him in the two verses quoted below:

तज्ज्ञैः काव्यप्रयोगेषु तत्प्रादुर्भूतमन्यथा ।
तत्र लोकाश्रयं काव्यमागमा तत्त्वदर्शिनः ॥
असिसङ्काशमाकाश शब्दो दूरादुपैलयम् ।
तदेव वापी(रि)सिन्धूनामहो स्थेमा महार्चिष ॥

Bhāmaha's Kāvya-lankāra 5, 33-34.

ll. 15-19. Three examples are given here to illustrate Udbhata's theory of काव्यार्थं but not of शब्दार्थं. In the first two verses the colour of ether is described as blue like a blue lotus and like that of a sword, though really ether is devoid of any colour.

तदेव वारि सिन्धूनाम् । etc. The second half of Bhāmaha's verse (5-34) is quoted here as the third example. The readings वापीसिन्धूनां or वापिसिन्धूना as found in the editions of the Bhāmaha's KāvyaĀlaṅkāra may be read as वारि सिन्धूनां which seems to be the correct reading. Here it is said that the water of all rivers is always the same and that the heavenly lights such as the moon and the stars are wonderfully fixed in their proper places. Followers of Udbhata hold that these descriptions are अविचारितरमणीय because in reality ether has no colour and water of all rivers is not the same at all times and the heavenly bodies also are not fixed in one place, and also because on scientific examination ether is found to be without any colour while the stars are also found moving from place to place.

ll. 20-25. Yāyāvāriya does not agree with the view of Udbhatas because they hold that the Kāvyaas only describe unreal aspects of things, and this means that the Kāvyaas are valueless. He holds, therefore, that the authors of both S'āstras and Kāvyaas describe objects as observed by them.

ll. 1-2. Following the rules of Vyākaraṇa and Ālaṅkāra śāstras here the simile between the moon and swan, stars and Kumudas, sky and water, cloud and mud, is given. This is a description of the moon which shines on a clear sky with stars but appears as a swan moving on the surface of a lake where there are many lotuses.

ll. 3-9. Āparājiti who seems, in all probability, to be a follower of the Rasa school of Bharata advises poets not to indulge in a lengthy description of the rising sun or the moon etc. because it is likely to obstruct a natural outflow of Rasas in the minds of the audience or readers. Evidently this view of Āparājiti is to be applied only to the drama, because the best poets such as Kālidāsa, Bhāravi, Māgha and others, are found 'devoting some chapters in their Kāvya for the lengthy descriptions of such things, and also because the earlier writers on poetics such as Bhāmaha and Daṇḍin have laid down rules on the same lines for Mahākāvya. The word इह occurring in the two verses of Āparājiti also denotes the lengthy description of मञ्जनपुष्पावचय etc is disallowed only in a particular class of poetry, namely the drama, and not in the Kāvya as a whole. In fact, Āparājiti is to be identified with लोहट as Hemacandra attributes the second of these two citations definitely to लोहट. (see Kāvyaṅanusāsana p. 215) Lollata belonged to the Rasa school and a commentary on the Nāṭyaśāstra is also attributed to him. (see Sangītaratnākara 1-1. 19. and Abhinavabhāratī. G.O.S. ed. pp. 266 and 274).

ll. 10-12. Yāyāvāriya agrees with Āparājiti and adduces another reason in support of the same view that it is the method of presentation only which is responsible in rousing up the different Rasas, and not the actual things that are so presented in the poetry. In order to prove this dictum he cites some verses where the authors of high poetical skill are able to rouse up the different Rasas by means of excellent presentation of common-place happenings, whereas, inferior poets are unable to do so even though they may handle very sublime topics.

ll 13-26. Here the method adopted in describing the river Tāmraparṇī is such that the Rasa of S'rngāra becomes immediately roused through the उद्दीपनविभाव of the same Rasa. In the next two verses, similarly the Rasas S'rngāra and Adbhuta are aroused with the help of the उद्दीपनविभाव रोधोभुव =shores.

ll. 1 -7. All Mss read अतिरसवत्ता which ought to be read as अरसवत्ता. This latter reading is more suited to the context and more in harmony with the subject matter of the verse cited below than the former. Rājasekhara here makes an attempt to prove on the principle of अन्वयव्यतिरेक that the methods of poetical representation of things alone are responsible for rousing or obstructing the Rasas, but not the actual topics described. He cites, in support, three verses and shows on the principle of अन्वय, that an able delineation of commonplace things such as mountain, river etc. is capable of rousing the Rasas. Again, on the principle of व्यतिरेक he wants to show that an inexperienced poet is unable to rouse the desired Rasa even by handling such delicate subject as the विप्रलम्भशृङ्गार. This context will not be supported by any other reading than विप्रलम्भेऽप्य-रसवत्ता as shown above. It will be evident that the reading अरसवत्ता is meant by the author himself when he concludes his arguments, saying: कुकविर्विप्रलम्भेऽपि रसवत्ता निरस्यति । 1. 6.

The poet, in this verse विधर्माणो भावा. etc. describes the plight of a lover consequent on the separation of his beloved and attempts to delineate the विप्रलम्भशृङ्गार. But he failed to achieve his object as his poetical skill was not up to the mark. This is explained in the verse कुकविः etc. where the author concludes his arguments. The following explanation of the stanza विधर्माणो भावा. etc. will evidently show how the poet's method of representation of विप्रलम्भशृङ्गार failed to rouse the same Rasa.

“Where can my mind tormented by the separation of my beloved (Nāyikā) find happiness ? Objects both similar and dissimilar to her, have failed to make it happy. The former failed because they could not give complete satisfaction, and the latter because my mind is always attached to nothing except her.”

ll. 8-14 Āparājiti seems to think that poets should make use of such things alone as are रसवत् which help in rousing the Rasa, and not those that are entirely devoid of Rasa. (see. p. 45. ll. 3, 4.) Rājasekhara's view is somewhat modified when he says that there are things both suited and unsuited to the Rasa but they have nothing to do with the enjoyment of Rasa in the poetry, because the poet's skill in presentation alone is responsible for that enjoyment. The contentions of Rājaśekhara and Āparājīti are objected to by the followers of स्याद्वाद or अनेकान्तवाद of Jainism. According to this theory there is no entity which is endowed with only one form or quality. On this point, however, there is quite a great deal of controversy among the philosophers of different schools. For details see Tattvasangraha (G.O.S. Nos 30 and 31), Syādvāda-parīkṣā pp 486-503. The Buddhists hold that one entity cannot have two qualities or forms. Brahmins attribute two or even more qualities while the Jains hold that an entity can have as many as seven of them (सप्तभङ्ग). Pālyakīrti, the Jain Grammarian, therefore, objects to the view of Rājaśekhara and Āparājīti, saying that the quality of an entity cannot be fixed as रसवत् or otherwise; because the same thing may be रसवत् in one, while it will be नीरस or उदासीन in another. This is illustrated by the example of the moon in the verse येषां वल्लभया etc.

ll. 15-21 Avantīsundarī follows in the foot-steps of Pālyakīrti, and thinks that especially in Kāvya the nature of things is not fixed, because, if the poet is clever he is able to present the same thing in different forms to suit different contexts. For instance, the same moon is described by poets at one time as अमृताक्षु and at others as दोषाकर. Rājaśekhara, however, ultimately agrees with the views of both Pālyakīrti and Avantīsundarī.

ll. 22-26 For the sub-divisions of Kāvya see Dhvanyāloka 3, 7. Ancient writers on Alankāra such as Bhāmaha and Vāmana, divide Kāvya into two either as अनिवद्ध, and निवद्ध or as मुक्तक and प्रबन्ध respectively. See Bhāmaha 1-18 and Vāmana 1-3-27. Daṇḍin, however, mentions several kinds of Kāvya as मुक्तक etc, but he does not attempt to define them, as these do not possess any appreciable difference from the सर्गबन्ध. see Kāvyaśāstra 1-13. The अनिवद्ध or मुक्तक is only illustrated by Bhāmaha thus:

अनिवद्धं पुनर्गथाश्लोकमात्रादि तत्पुन (1-30)

But Gopendratippabhūpāla in his Kāmadhenu while commenting upon Vāmana's Kāvyaśāstra (1-3-27) quoted a verse defining मुक्तक and attributes the same to Bhāmaha. This verse, however, is not found in the present editions of Bhāmaha's Kāvyaśāstra. The verse in question is quoted below:—

मुक्तकलक्षणमुक्तं भाग्येन—

प्रथमं मुक्तकादीनामृजु लक्षणमुच्यते ।

यदेव गांभीर्यौदार्यशौर्यनीतिमतिस्पृशा ॥

भवेन्मुक्तकमेकेन द्विकं द्वाभ्या त्रिकं त्रिभिः ।

Abhinavagupta in his commentary on Dhvani (3-7,) however, gives a definition of मुक्तक in the following words —

मुक्तमन्येन नालिङ्गितम् । तस्य संज्ञाया कन् । तेन स्वतन्त्रतया परिसमाप्तनिराकाङ्क्षार्थमपि प्रबन्धमध्यवर्ति मुक्तकमित्युच्यते ॥

The same idea is also expressed by Rājasekhara when he says:—मुक्तेतिवृत्तः शुद्धः ।

ll. 1-4 Here is described the behaviour of a सुगधानायिका when she finds fault with the conduct of her lover for the first time.

*[l. 5. दूरादुत्सुकमागते (अमर. 49) attributed to रतिपाल in कवीन्द्रवचन-समुच्चय.

*[ll. 9-12. दत्त्वा रुद्रगतिः records a historical incident. ध्रुवस्वामिनी or ध्रुवदेवी was the queen of चन्द्रगुप्तविक्रमादित्य and mother of कुमारगुप्त I] ll. 9-12 The subject matter of this verse is styled by Rājasekhara as कथोत्थ वृत्तेतिवृत्त । The word Kathā is controversial in the sense that it may either denote an actual historical fact or may record mere tradition. But the incident alluded to in this verse may be taken as an historical fact. Evidently, it refers to the event connected with king S'rīśarmagupta, his queen Dhruvasvāminī and one Khasādhipati who was hostile to S'rīśarmagupta. All these persons excepting Dhruvadevī or Dhruvasvāminī who was the queen of Candragupta II and the mother of Kumārāgupta I of the Gupta dynasty are unknown to history. But the literary evidence culled from such ancient works as Harṣacarita of Bāna, (अरि(अलि)पुरे च परकलत्रकामुकं कामिनीवेगगुप्तो गुप्तः चन्द्रगुप्तः शकपतिं प्रशशास । 6th Uccvāsa); Devīcandragupta of Viśākhaḍaṭṭa (fragments of which are available from the S'ringārāprakāśa of Bhoja and the Nāṭyadarpaṇa of Rāmacandra and Gunacandra. (G O.S No. 48), and Sañjan copperplates of king Amoghavarṣa I dated S'aka 795 (E. I. Vol. XVIII p 248) points to all these being names of historical personages. From the information obtained from different sources it appears that there was a king Rāmāgupta by name who had contracted a humiliating treaty when he was attacked and defeated by a S'aka invader. By this treaty he was compelled to surrender his crowned queen Dhruvadevī. When the king consented to sacrifice his queen in order to save himself and his subjects, Chandragupta his younger brother to save the honour of his family volunteered to go to the enemies' camp under the guise of queen Dhruvadevī and killed the S'aka king. For further information refer to the Nāṭyadarpaṇa; pp 223-253, of the Journal of the B. O. R. S. 1928 and the Journal Asiatique for Octo.-Dec. 1923.

In the verse quoted by Rājāśekhara, however, the king is named as S'rīśarmagupta or S'rīsenagupta and the invading king is reported as Khasādhipati instead of S'rīrāmagupta and S'akādhipati respectively. On the strength of the evidences adduced above the readings as खस and शर्मगुप्त here may be taken as scribe's errors for शक and रामगुप्त respectively which seem to be the correct names. It is also suggested in the above mentioned journals on the evidence of the Devīcandragupta, Sañjan copper-plates, and some coins of Candragupta and Dhruvadevī, that Candragupta II must have married Dhruvadevī the queen of his brother Ramagupta after killing him. But the verse quoted by Rājāśekhara, however, has no direct connection with the incident referred to above.

But this verse certainly makes valuable contribution to the controversy regarding Rāmagupta's history by clearing two points namely, the identification of the particular S'aka king who invaded Rāmagupta's territory and the identification of Candragupta. The words खसाधिपति, यस्मात् and तस्मिन्नेव हिमालये in this verse undoubtedly show that खस king as spelt in the Mss of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā may be better identified with one of the Kuṣāna kings of the Western Punjab and not with the S'aka Ksatrapas either of Mathura or Malwa and that the war between the खस king and Rāmagupta or S'armagupta took place exactly in the portion of the Himālayas lying between the two kingdoms. In this case the word शक in the Harsacarita and Devīcandragupta may be taken to denote the खस or Kusāna king as the term शक is often loosely used to denote even the non-S'aka foreign tribes.

The word कार्तिकेय also in this verse may refer to Skandagupta of the Gupta dynasty who is addressed in this verse and is known to be the grandson of Candragupta II. This leads us to believe that Candragupta II who was styled as S'akārāti was the hero of the drama Devīcandraguptam. In this verse the reign of Skandagupta is described to be so prosperous as to permit even the society ladies of the town freely to sing his fame without any danger coming from even the interior parts of the Himalayas where once king S'armagupta being defeated by the Khasa king was forced to give up even his queen Dhruvadevī. It may be remembered here that Skandagupta also bore the title Vikramāditya and inflicted a crushing defeat on the barbarous Huns. In this case the word कर्तिकेय should be taken in vocative.

This interpretation should be abandoned if the word कर्तिकेयनगर is taken as a compound and identified with the कर्तिकेयपुर mentioned in Pāndukesvar copper plate and Talesvara charters. This कर्तिकेयपुर is also reported to be the modern village of Baijnath or Vaidyanath in Kumaun. (See Ind. Ant Vol. XXV. p 178. and Ep. Ind. Vol. XIII pp. 115 and 118.)

There is also another plausible solution regarding the identity of the Khasādhipati.

The Rājatarāṅgiṇī of Kalhana, mentions the Khasas as a foreign tribe settled in widely diffused parts of the Himalayan regions even previous to the accession of king Mihirakula, the despotic ruler of Kashmir (cir. 6th century A. D.). Thus the readings as ञकपति in the MSS of the Harsacarita, S'ṛngāraprakāśa and Nāṭyadarpana may be ascribed to scribe's error for खसपति. Because it is clearly known from the verse quoted here that the Gupta king returned from the Himalayan regions after promising his queen to the Khasādhipati. Rājatarāṅgiṇī also states that the kings of the Khasas were known as the rulers of राजपुरी or खसालय or खसालि. These names indeed, bear a striking resemblance to the names denoting the head-quarters of Khasas such as खसाधि(लि)पतये quoted in this verse or अरिपुर, अलिपुर and अलिस्कन्धावार as found in the MSS of the Harsacarita and the S'ṛngāraprakāśa (स्त्रीवेषनिहृतश्चन्द्रगुप्त. ञन्नो. स्कन्धावारमलिपुर ञकपतिवधायगमत् ।) (For further information regarding the tribes Khasas who settled in the Himalayan regions, and once usurped the throne of Kashmir and whose descendants are known to-day as Khakhas in Kashmir, see notes by M. A. Stein in vol. I. 317 of the Rājatarāṅgiṇī translation.)

Some scholars, however, maintain that the war between Rāmagupta and the Ś'aka king took place not in the Himālayas as stated above but near the city of Girnar or Girnagara in Saurāstra, on the strength of the readings अरिपुरे or अलिपुरे in the Harṣacarita and the S'rngāraprakāśa, emended as गिरिपुरे. In addition to this emendation of Aripura into Giripura (Girnar) they propose further to change this verse in the following manner —

दातुं रुद्रगति शकाधिपतये देवीं ध्रुवोपाधिकां यस्मात्खण्डितसाहसो निवृते श्रीरामगुप्तो नृपः ।
तस्मिन्नेव हि रैवते गुरुगुहाकोणक्वणक्कीचके गीयन्ते वत ते कुमार शबरस्त्रीणां गणै कीर्तय ॥

These emendations lose much value since there is no MS material in their support. Also, the word स्कन्धावार in the passage of the S'rngāraprakāśa as quoted above denotes that Candragupta went only to the camp of the enemy and not to his capital in Saurāstra. These emendations, therefore, have to be accepted with caution.

नामधातुपारायण is the same as शब्दस्मृति or grammar. The works of Bhāmaha, Daṇḍin, Udbhṭa, Vāmana, Ānanda and Rudrata are meant by the word अलङ्कारतन्त्रम् । Vāmana uses the word शास्त्र (1-1-4) with reference to works dealing with poetics. These four Vidyās are the most important branches of knowledge for poets. The other branches required for them are enumerated by Rājasekhara in the eighth chapter of this work. Sixty four Kalās as mentioned by Vātsyāyana in his Kāmasūtra (1-3. 16) are here considered as Upavidyās. Vāmana includes Kalās among the principal Vidyās. Another set of sixty four Kalās and 104 Upakalās are enumerated by Gopendraṭippabhūpāla in his commentary on Vāmana's Sūtra (1-3. 7) on the authority of Bhāmaha's verses Cf. कला — वृत्तगीतादयश्चतु. षष्टिः । उपकलाश्चतु रातम् । कलानामुद्देश कृतो भाम-

This list of Kalās is similar to that of Vātsyāyana. The editions of the Kāvya-lāṅkāra of Bhāmaha, as at present available, however, do not contain these verses.

1. 17. सातवाहन seems to be another name of हल who is the author of the गथासप्तशती and ruled the Kuntala country. The compilation of this Mahārāstrī Piākṛta Kośa itself stands as a proof of his love for that Prākṛta language. S'ripālita was his court-poet and several Gāthās of his are incorporated in the Gāthā-Kośa by Hāla S'ātavāhana. Here the word प्राकृतभाषा denotes महाराष्ट्रीप्राकृत because the Kuntala country is included in Māhārastra, and also because the other two Piākṛtas S'auasenī and Māgadhī are already mentioned. Regarding the king Hāla and the poet S'ripālita see infra.

1. 19. There were, however, several Vikramādityas in ancient times, and the word Vikramāditya being an epithet, the most powerful kings could always assume that title. There is a verse in the Gāthāsaptas'atī (cir. 1st century A. D.) where the author mentions the name of a king Vikramāditya.

cf. सवाहणसुहरसतोसिएण देन्तेण तुह करे लक्खम् ।

चलणेण विक्कमाइत्तचरिअ अणुसिक्खियं तिस्सा ॥ (5. 64)

Sāhasānka here seems to be the same as Candragupta Vikramāditya II of the Gupta dynasty, who also assumed the title of Vikramānka which appears on his coins. The name Sāhasānka is further justified by the story of the Devīcandragupta and the Sanjan Copperplates where the daring actions of Candragupta II are recorded. Rājaśekhara makes it clear on

p. 55-7 that Sāhasānka or Candragupta II was a patron of Sanskrit learning and encouraged men of letters. The fact that the king Sāhasānka was also a poet will be evident by the following verses:—

भासो रामिलसोमिलौ वररुचि श्रीसाहसाङ्ग कवि· etc. and

All these materials are to be kept always near a poet as he is required to write down whatever verses he may compose mentally at any time. Yāyāvāriya thinks that the collection of materials mentioned above is not the real requisite for the composition of poetry as suggested by the Ācāryas, but the poetical genius or प्रतिभा alone is its chief necessity. see Vāmana's sūtra 'कवित्ववीजं प्रतिमानम्' । 1-3-16.

किं करोति कियत्कालं वेद्यावेदमनि कामुक । कीदृशं वदनं वीक्ष्य तस्या कर्णायते क्षणम् ॥
(p 57. of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā).

Dandin also introduces similar methods of प्रहेलिका in the third chapter of his Kāvya-darśa. In the 18th line read काव्यसमस्या, धारणा-मातृकाभ्यास instead of काव्यसमस्याधारणा, मातृकाभ्यास ।

These two functions are included by Vātsyāyana as two distinct fine-arts or कलास in the list of 64 Kalās (काम-सू. 1-3-16). Jayamangala comments upon the word धारणामातृका as follows —

“धारणामातृकेति—श्रुतस्य ग्रन्थस्य धारणार्थं शास्त्रम् । यथोक्तम्—

‘वस्तु कोशस्तथा द्रव्यं लक्षणं हेतुरेव च ।

इत्येते धारणादेव्या पञ्चाङ्गचरि वपु ॥’ इति ॥

In the list of Kalās quoted by Gopendratippabhūpāla from Bhāmaha’s work, this word धारणामातृका also occurs, (see Vāmana 1-3-7) and the verse there should be read as धारणामातृका यन्त्रमातृका काव्यलक्षणम् । instead of धारणा मातृकायन्त्रं मातृकाकाव्यलक्षणम् । as printed there.

For an explanation of यन्त्रमातृका see Jayamangala’s commentary on Kāmasāstra 1-3-16

चित्रा योगाः are those that are mentioned exhaustively by Dandin in the third chapter of his Kāvya-darśa, and by Rudrata in the fifth chapter of his Kāvya-lankāra Rājaśekhara also proposes to treat this subject चित्र in the sixth Adhikaraṇa of his Kāvya-mīmāṃsā

यावदार्तिं स्त्रियमभिमन्येत । Here the word आर्ति denotes राग or इन्द्रियदौर्बल्य.

Rājaśekhara instructs poets not to indulge in sexual excesses and advises them to have recourse to women only to remove their आर्ति or mental weakness. Similar usage can be found in the Mahābhāṣya of Patañjali (1-1-1) where the word खेद is used instead of आर्ति.

Cf. खेदात् स्त्रीषु प्रवृत्तिर्भवति । समानश्च खेदविगमो गम्यायां चागम्यायाश्च ।

The word खेद is explained by Kaiyaṭa while commenting on the Mahābhāṣya Paspasānhika as below:—

खेदादिति । खेदयतीति खेदः रागः । इन्द्रियनियमासामर्थ्यं वा खेदः ।

11. 14-16. Avantisundarī, the wife of Rājaśekhara was a cultured lady, a poetess and a critic. Rājaśekhara also introduces in his dramas many female characters who are adepts in composing verses in different dialects. The word दृश्यन्ते in addition to श्रूयन्ते clearly shows that ladies gifted with poetic skill and culture were found in abundance during Rājaśekhara's life-time. In addition to four poetesses शीलाभट्टारिका, विक्रान्तितम्बा, विजयाङ्गा, and प्रभुदेवी one more poetess सुभद्रा also is praised by Rājaśekhara in one of his verses quoted in the Sūktimuktāvali p. 47 :

पार्थस्य मनसि स्थानं लेभे लघु सुभद्रया । कवीनां च वचोवृत्तिचातुर्येण सुभद्रया ॥ and यत्र श्लोककृतो युक्तिसमुदायो रसान्वित ।

एकप्रघटके सोऽयं सङ्घात इति कथ्यते ॥

Daṇḍin mentions सङ्घात as a sub-division of सर्गबन्ध and his commentator Tarunavācaspati defines it as follows.—

सङ्घात एकार्थविषय. एककर्तृक पद्यसंघात. । शरत्संघातद्रविडसंघातादिवत् ॥

Kāvyaḍarśa. 1-13.

Mahāprabandha has been defined by all earlier writers on poetics, but Abhinavagupta's definition, as given below, seems to be the best: महाकाव्यरूपः पुरुषार्थफल समस्तवस्तुवर्णनाप्रबन्ध सर्गबन्ध. सस्कृत एव ॥

(Locana on 3, 7 of the Dhvani)

ll. 5-6. This is a verse quoted from the second canto of the S'isupālavadhā where Uddhava gives counsel to Kīṣṇa and differs from the views expressed by Baladeva. It may also be suggested here, as Rājas'ekhara interprets, that Māgha, the author of the Kāvya, being proud of his composition or प्रबन्ध, criticises in this verse the attempts of other poets in order to humiliate them.

ll. 7-10. The fundamental principles of poetry are recorded here on the lines indicated by Vāmana. Vāmana thinks that Rīti, Guṇas and Sūktimudrās only are the most important factors for the composition of poetry, but he does not consider the Alankāras to be so important. See Kāvyaḍarśa-sūtra 3, 1, 1-3 and the verses quoted there:—

युवतेरिव रूपमङ्ग काव्यं स्वदत्ते शुद्धगुणं तदप्यतीव ।
 विहितप्रणयं निरन्तराभि सदलङ्कारविकल्पकल्पनाभिः ॥
 यदि भवति वचश्च्युतं गुणेभ्यो वपुरिव यौवनवन्ध्यमङ्गनायाः ।
 अपि जनदयितानि दुर्भगत्वं नियतमलङ्करणानि संश्रयन्ते ॥

Bhāmaha and Dandin consider both Guna and Alaṅkāra equally important in poetry.

cf. न कान्तमपि निर्भूषं विभाति वनितामुखम् ॥ (Bhāmaha. 1-13.)

काश्चिन्मार्गविभागार्थमुक्ता प्रागप्यलङ्कियाः । साधारणमलङ्कारजातमद्य प्रदर्श्यते ॥

Bharata, Ānanda and Rudraṭa observe that a poet should principally make an attempt to develop the Rasas in his composition. Though Rājasekhara is acquainted with the views of these writers, he does not point out here the importance of Alaṅkāra, Rasa and Dhvani in poetry, and his silence in this respect is due, very probably, to the fact that his professed object was to impart lessons on elementary matters in this verse, rather than to waste his time in scholastic discussions.

1 7. सातवाहन । Sātavāhana or S'ālivāhana is a family name. Several princes belonging to the Āndhrabhṛtya dynasty ruled the Mahārāstra country and bore the title of Sātavāhana. There are several literary traditions connected with the Sātavāhana kings who were recognized patrons of poets in Prākṛta languages, such as Paisāci, Mahārāstrī etc. The Brhatkathā of Gunādhyā, Kātantra grammar of Sarvavarman, and Gāthāsaptasatī of Hāla-Sātavāhana, were composed under the patronage of Sātavāhana kings. For further information regarding the Sātavāhanas see Dr. R. G. Bhandarkar's 'The Early history of the Deccan' and Vols. XVI and XVIII of the J. B. O. R. S.

शूद्रक । S'ūdraka is well known as a king and the author of the drama Mrcchakatika. Several stories are recorded in the Brhatkathā where S'ūdraka plays an important part. The शूद्रककथा or the biography of S'ūdraka has been written by two authors रामिल and सोमिल conjointly. This fact is known only from a verse occurring in the Sūktimuktāvalī, where it is attributed to Rājāśekhara. This verse is given below:—

 काव्यं ययोर्द्वयोरासीदर्धनारीश्वरोपमम् ॥

Sūktimuktāvalī. p. 43.

One सोमिल is also mentioned by Kālidāsa in his Mālavikāgnimitra along with Bhāsa and Kaviputra and very probably he may be the author of the शूद्रककथा. From the remark शूद्रकादिरचितेषु प्रबन्धेषु occurring in Vāmana's Kāvya-lankārasūtra-Vṛtti (3-2-4,) it appears that S'ūdraka had composed several other works in addition to the Mrcchakatika. Kṣīrasvāmin in his commentary on the Amarakośa (2. 8. 2) quotes a set of anonymous verses where the word S'ūdraka is mentioned as the name of a Cakravarti king, who is identified with Agnimitra. The verse in question is as follows.—

शुद्धकस्त्वग्निमित्रो वा हालः स्यात्सातवाहन ॥

Now, it is well known that Agnimitra was the son of the S'unga conqueror Puṣyamitra who flourished in the second century B. C. That S'ūdraka was a very noble and highly respected king like Harṣa and Udayana, is known from a reference found in the Hṛdayaṅgamā, a commentary on the Kāvyaḍarśa, (1-15) which runs as : सदाश्रयम्—हर्षशुद्धकोदयनादिसत्पुरुषाश्रयम् ।

The prologue of the Mrcchakatika mentions that S'ūdraka performed a horse-sacrifice or Aśvamedha, saw his son ruling the country and entered the fire after having lived for 100 years and ten days. The above leads us to infer that the hero of the Mālavikāgnimitra was probably identical with king S'ūdraka the author of the Mrcchakatika. The fact that Agnimitra also was a great poet and was as far-famed as Bhāsa and others, is borne out by Vākpatirāja in his verse :

भासस्मि जलणमित्ते कुन्तीदेवे अ जस्स रहुआरे । गौडवहो—800.

Here ज्वलनमित्र is no other than Agnimitra.

The introduction of a Buddhist monk to save the life of Vasantasenā in the Mrcchakatika, and the part played by Paṇḍita Parivrājikā, presumably a Buddhist nun, as the adviser of queen Dhārīnī in the Mālavikāgnimitra, also show that during the reign of Agnimitra or S'ūdraka, Buddhism was held in high esteem. The following facts, mentioned in the prologue of the Mrcchakatika, (1) द्विजमुख्यतम (2) ऋग्वेदं सामवेदम् (3) राजानं वीक्ष्य पुत्रं परमसमुदयेनाश्वमेधेन चेष्ट्वा लब्ध्वा त्रायुः शताब्दं दशदिनसहितं शुद्धकोदयि प्रविष्टः । tally in principal details with the historical facts known about the S'ungas. We know from history that Puṣyamitra and his son Agnimitra were the Brahmins of the S'ungagotra and belonged to the Sāma Veda, and that Puṣyamitra performed an Aśvamedha sacrifice in order to assume the title of Cakravartin. It is worthy of note that the same facts are recorded in the Mrcchakatika. If the proposed identity of Agnimitra with S'ūdraka is accepted, it should be assumed that Agnimitra also had performed the Aśvamedha like his father, had seen his son Vasumitra rule the country and entered into the fire. The long age of 100 years and ten days attributed to Sūdraka, is also not improbable in the case of Agnimitra because according to the Mālavikāgnimitra, he was only a governor of the southern provinces during his father's life-time, and he had at that time a youthful son Vasumitra who was at the head of the army and had followed the sacrificial horse of his grand-father. Agnimitra, therefore, must have lived long enough to rule the country after the lengthy reign of Pusyamitra, and to see his son Vasumitra installed after himself as king whose reign was for some time interrupted by the rule of one Vasujyēṣṭha probably Agnimitra's brother. Now the date of composition of the Mīchakatika also falls, according to the above stated evidences, somewhere in the beginning of the first century B. C. In this connection, it may be said that the tradition, attributing the verse लिम्पतीव तमोऽङ्गानि वर्षतीवाञ्जनं नम । found in the Mīchakatika and quoted by Dandin in his Kāvyaḍarśa to one Vikramāditya on the authority of the Subhāsītāvalī and the Sūktimuktāvalī, should not be taken as correct because S'ūdraka or Agnimitra is not known to have assumed the title of Vikramāditya

1. 20. चन्द्रगुप्तौ. Who is this Candragupta? Is he a different poet from Candragupta II of the Gupta dynasty or is he the same as Candragupta himself? We know that Candragupta bore the epithet of Sāhasānka and there is one Sāhasānka who is also described as a poet in the verse—

Sūktimuktāvali.

It seems probable, therefore, that Candragupta of this verse may refer to the same Sāhasānka who is to be identified with Candragupta II of the Gupta dynasty.

विशाल=Ujjayini.

1. 22. Here the names उपवर्ष etc. seem to have been arranged in a strictly chronological order, because otherwise, according to the rules of Pāṇini. अल्पाक्षरम्, the word वर्ष must precede उपवर्ष in the compound द्वंद्व. उपवर्ष is known as the earliest commentator on the Mīmāṃsāsūtras of Jaimini and Bādarāyana. Vaisa is mentioned as the teacher of Pāṇini in the Kathāsaritsāgara. Pāṇini and Pīṅgala are the Sūtrakāras on grammar and prosody.

Vyādi is the author of a work called "Sangraha" which is quoted by Patañjali and Bhartrhari. cf. संग्रहो व्याडिकृतो लक्षश्लोकसंख्याको ग्रन्थ इति प्रसिद्धिः (Nāgeśa's Uddyota on Mahābhāṣya Kaiyata 1-1-1).

Rājaśekhara deals in the following three chapters with the subject of शब्दार्थहरण or plagiarism of both words and ideas. It is interesting to note that no author before Rājaśekhara had dealt this subject with such a wealth of detail as is done here. Only Vāmana and Ānandavardhana touched this subject and warned the poets to be very careful in ridding themselves of this pernicious practice. It is, therefore, difficult to discover the source of Rājaśekhara's information. Among later writers, Ksemendra treats of this subject in his Kavīkanthābhāṣaṇa with different details, while Hemacandra incorporates all these three chapters in his commentary on the Kāvyaṅuśāsana (pp. 8-10)

l. 4. Examples of plagiarism in respect of वृत्त or metre and प्रबन्ध or lengthy poem are not cited in this connection. The view attributed here to the Ācāryas, is traceable in Ānandavardhana's work as well as in the commentary thereon.

ll. 7-12. Here the words शिलीमुखम् and किंकिरतान् having two meanings are plagiarised in the second verse मा गाः पान्थ etc.

ll. 13-19. An example of borrowing of a part of a द्वयर्थ word in the same sense is given in these two verses. The second line of the first verse has two meanings. The first is: how one who favours low class people can make use of me. The second is: how one without hunger can make use of the mutton. These two meanings are made possible from the combination of the word मां and the letter सो (मांसोपयोगम्=मां सोपयोगम् । क्षुत् रहित =क्षुद्रहितः।). From this combination, a part मा is borrowed by another poet in the next verse and combined with सरसं to express the identical meanings as shown above (मासरसम्=मां सरसम् ।).

ll. 20-27. Here the word निरवधीरितम् has two meanings: (1) 'repelled' and (2) 'unlimited spreading'. These two senses are expressed with reference to (1) the army of the Asuras and (2) the fame of Baladeva. The word हल in the first line may be read as बल and the words आसुर and अपारपयोनिधिविस्तृतम् may be connected with that as adjective. The same word निरवधीरितम् and the two other words आकूल and आसुर which also have two meanings owing to श्लेष with reference to the army and fame in the first verse, are borrowed in the next verse which forms an example of यमक and expresses the same sense.

ll. 1-4. Here the word कर्णायतेक्षणम् is ऋष्ट and as such this line bears the following two meanings: (1) the crowd of paramours is behaving for the moment in the same manner as Karna and (2) the face of the lady has eyes long up to her ears. The same word कर्णायतेक्षणम् is borrowed in the next verse to supply an answer to the three questions put forth in the same verse. The first two questions are "what does the paramour do in the house of a prostitute and for what time?" The answer is: कर्णायते, क्षणम्. He acts as Karna and for a moment. The third question is "what kind of face he looked at?" The answer is कर्णायतेक्षणम् i. e. the eyes of which are long enough to reach the ears.

1. 8. चक्रं दहतारम् (रुद्रटकाव्यालङ्कार. III. 4.)]

ll. 5-10. Rājasekhara's suggestion that Rudrata in his verse चक्रं दहतारम् etc. borrowed words from the Mānānka's verse वरदाय नमो हरये etc, makes it probable that the poet Mānānka the author of the Vṛndāvanayamakakāvya (printed in the Kāvyaśaṅgraha by Jivānanda Vidyāsāgara) flourished before Rudrata (cir. 850-900).

आरं=अरिसंबन्धि । अरं=शीघ्रम् ।

ll. 11-19 From the passages नन्विदमुपदेश्यमेव न भवति etc., it appears that in the opinion of Avantisundarī, plagiarisms from earlier authors of higher reputation were considered as much greater offence than ordinary thefts. But she permitted borrowings from inferior authors by those who are superior in reputation, etc.

ll. 20-28. Ācāryas think that the borrowing of more than three अश्लिष्ट words in sequence is to be considered as plagiarism. An illustration of this is स पातु वो यस्य borrowed in the second verse where all the four words occur in the same order as in the first. The two इव words, in the first verse, show the वाक्यार्थोपमा in this verse. This figure is defined by Dandin as एकानेकेवशब्दवात्सा वाक्यार्थोपमा द्विधा.

ll. 1-14. Rājasekhara disagrees with the Ācāryas on this point and thinks that any word used in a special expression in an earlier poem, should not be borrowed by later poets, even a pāda or one fourth of a metre consisting of one or two words which can be readily recognized as the composition of an earlier writer, should be considered as an instance of plagiarism. इत्युक्तवानुक्तिविशेषरम्यम् occurring in these two verses, is an example of the second kind, while शङ्करक्षीरसिन्धवे is an instance of the first kind. Here, the figure of speech known as रूपक applies to both शङ्कर and क्षीरसिन्धु which have several adjectives each with two meanings This is the special feature of a particular poet. The same idea finds expression in the work of a later poet in the second verse, though only one word शङ्करक्षीरसिन्धवे is borrowed from the former verse. The reading नाप्रत्यभिज्ञायात् as found in the A and B MSS, however, gives quite a different meaning, and this is almost diametrically opposite to the meaning given above. According to this the sentence should be construed as —

अप्रत्यभिज्ञायातः पादोऽपि न परिहरणीयः । तस्यापि साम्ये न किञ्चन दुष्टं स्यात् ।

That being the case, the pāda इत्युक्तवान् etc, is not to be considered as an instance of actual borrowing The reading of the C. MS, is adopted here because of the context in which Rājaśekhara particularly refutes the view of the Ācāryas who maintain that for the purposes of plagiarism the number of words should be more than three. It may be noted here that the pāda इत्युक्तवान् etc. has only three words and according to the Ācāryas this is not an example of plagiarism. But Rājaśekhara thinks that this also is to be avoided.

ll. 15-25. Here also Rājaśekhara rejects the view held by the Ācāryas. The line may be construed as अन्यथात्वकरणकारणं पादः नैव हरणम् । अपि तु स्वीकरणम् । The same pāda त्यागो हि सर्वव्यसनानि हन्ति used in the first verse in praise of त्याग is quoted in the next verse in order to denounce it. The verse त्यागो हि सर्वव्यसनानि हन्तीत्यलीकमेतत्. etc is attributed to S'ūdraka in the Subhāṣitāvalī but it cannot be traced to his Mrccakatika. The Ācāryas hold that this is not an example of plagiarism, but only an adaptation of a pāda from an earlier verse by a later writer. Rājaśekhara's view is that such adaptations without acknowledgment also are to be avoided.

ll. 1-6. Rājaśekhara exemplifies here another instance of plagiarism Here, out of the two halves of the verse, the first half पादस्ते नरवर etc, is taken over bodily and the second is changed by a later writer. सीवनी=a line connecting the scrotum and anus.

l. 17 अरण्ये निर्जने, Subhāṣitāvalī (No. 555).]

ll. 16-23. These are instances where later writers have borrowed the same verse composed by earlier authors after changing only one pāda which may either be the 3rd or 4th. This also comes under the list of borrowings.

The verse अरण्ये निर्जने etc. is quoted from the Nāradaśmṛti, 2. 30.

ll. 1-16. In striking contrast to the above citations of plagiarisms, Rājasekhara treats of here one peculiar case which he considers as original even though there is promiscuous borrowing. In the fourth verse, three pādas are taken from three different verses mentioned above and are connected with one pāda which alone is composed by the author.

ll. 17-23. In this verse, another instance of borrowing is illustrated. Here a later writer makes an attempt to pass off the composition of an earlier author as his own by the substitution of a few words in one pāda. For the explanation of the verse या व्यापारवती etc, see Locana p 227 on Dhvanyāloka.

ll. 1-4. The example cited here has an interesting historical background. It appears from this that the great poet Kālidāsa acted as an ambassador of his patron, king Vikramāditya, who may be identified with king Candragupta II of the Gupta dynasty. It also appears probable that Vikramāditya sent Kālidāsa to the court of the king of the Kuntala country as an ambassador. It is also probable that Kālidāsa on his return from the Kuntala king composed a poem recording all the events connected with his mission. This work is known as कुन्तलेश्वरदौसम्, and only three verses from this work are now available. The two verses असकलहसितत्वात् etc. are cited here as an example of पदैकदेशोपलक्षण, and a third is quoted by Ksemendra in his Aucityavicāracarcā and these three belong to the work of Kālidāsa's Kuntaleśvaradautya. The conclusions drawn from an analysis of the three verses in question, are given above and the verses are quoted below for ready reference, from the S'ringārapiakāśa of Bhojadeva and the Aucityavicāracarcā of Ksemendra, along with explanatory notes as found in the respective works.

शृङ्गारप्रकाश प्र. ८

The conversation as quoted above, between Vikramāditya and Kālidāsa regarding the attitude of Kuntaleśvara appears to have been recorded in the work Kuntaleśvaradautya of Kālidāsa from which Bhojadeva seems to have quoted in order to illustrate the ऊहनैयायिकी. This is further supported by a verse quoted from the same work and the explanations thereon given by Ksemendra. The passage runs thus:—

अधिकरणौचित्यं यथा-कुन्तलेश्वरदौत्ये कालिदास—

इह निवसति मेरु शैखर क्षमाधराणा
इह विनिहितभारा सागरा सप्त चान्ये । इदमहिपतिभोगस्तंभविभ्राज्यमानं
धरणितलमिहैव स्थानमस्मद्विधानाम् ॥

अत्र महाराजदूतोऽपि सामन्तास्थाने स्वप्रभुसमुचितगौरवपूजार्हमासनमनासाद्य कार्यवशेन भूमावेवोपविष्ट प्रागल्भ्यगाभीर्येणैव ब्रूते—यथाऽस्मद्विधाना वसुधातल एव भुजगपतिभोगस्तंभप्राग्भार-निष्कम्पे धरासने स्थानं युक्तम् । यस्मादिहैव मेरुचलचक्रवर्ती समुपविष्ट । सप्तमहाब्धयश्च । तत्तुल्य-तैवास्माकमिति औचित्यमधिकरणपदसंबद्धमेव. p. 139.

From this statement of Ksemendra: महाराजदूतोऽपि सामन्तास्थाने स्वप्रभुसमुचितगौरवपूजार्हमासनमनासाद्य कार्यवशेन भूमावेवोपविष्ट. etc. it may be surmised that Kuntaleśvara had secret hostility against his sovereign king Vikramāditya and that Vikramāditya had sent Kālidāsa, his ambassador, to Kuntaleśvara to remove that hostility by establishing new bonds of friendship. Kālidāsa became successful in his mission, and made Kuntaleśvara faithful to his overlord king Vikramāditya. This fact, Kālidāsa conveys to his patron through the stanza: असकलहसितत्वात् etc. as stated by Bhoja in the above quotation. The approval: पित्तु मधुसुगन्धीन्याननानि प्रियाणां etc, expressed by Vikramāditya with reference to the request conveyed through Kālidāsa by Kuntaleśvara, shows that Vikrama had established friendly connections with Kuntaleśvara. Now the question arises as to who this Kuntaleśvara is.

From the History of the Vākātaka Empire (cir. A. D. 284-550) as given by Mr. K. P. Jayaswal in J B O. R S vol. XIX. I. II., it may be surmised that Prthvīsenā I (cir. 348-375 A. D.), who subjugated the king of Kuntala or the Karnātaka country and the Kadamba kingdom, was hostile to the Gupta kings, because Samudragupta defeated and killed his father Vākātaka Rudrasena I or Rudradeva I (cir. 344-348 A. D.) who was the reigning sovereign Samudragupta, however, later re-instated Prthvīsenā on the vacant throne of his father, as one of the समन्त kings under the Gupta sovereignty. During the reign of Candragupta II, this Vākātaka king Prthvīsenā gained much power due to his victory over the Kuntala country and the Kadambas Candragupta who initiated a policy of political marriages with families of subjugated kings, wanted, at that time, to remove the hostile feeling and establish friendship with the Vākātaka prince Prthvīsenā. This idea, very probably, prompted Candragupta to send Kālidāsa as an ambassador to the court of the Vākātaka king Prthvīsenā who was then called Kuntaleśa also due to his victory over the the Kuntala country. We have, however, another testimony for this Gupta Vākātaka relation. Prabhāvati-guptā, the daughter of Candragupta II through the Nāga princess Kubera Nāga, was given in marriage to Vākātaka Rudrasena II, (cir. 375-395) the son of Prthvīsenā I, and her son was Pravarasena II (cir. 405-435) To this Pravarasena is attributed the Setubandha Kāvya which is generally believed to have been composed by Kālidāsa on behalf of Pravarasena at the request of his patron Vikramāditya Candragupta, the grand-father of Pravarasena II of the Vākātaka dynasty.

It may be remembered here that the Rāmasetupradīpa, the commentary on the Setubandha, records an interesting fact in this connection that Kālidāsa composed the Setubandha-Kāvya at the request of Vikramāditya, but published the same under the name of king Pravarasena. The relevant passages from the commentary are quoted below :

धीराणां कान्यचर्चाचतुरिमविधये विक्रमादित्यवाचा
यं चक्रे कालिदासः कविकुमुदविद्यु सेतुनामप्रबन्धम् । etc.

इह तावन्महाराजप्रवरसेननिमित्तं महाराजाधिराजविक्रमादित्येनाज्ञप्तः निखिलकविचक्र-चूडामणिः कालिदासमहाशयः सेतुबन्धप्रबन्धं चिकीर्षुः etc.

These passages make it abundantly clear that these three persons ; Vikramāditya, Kālidāsa and Pravarasena were intimately connected and had some hand in the composition of the Setubandha.

It may be suggested here that Kuntaleśvara, mentioned in the verse असकलहसितत्वात् etc. and referred to by Bhoja and Kṣemendra in their works, must be no other than king Pithvisena I, of the Vākātaka dynasty. Pravarasena, to whom the Setubandha Kāvya is generally attributed, is his grand-son being the son of Rudrasena II and Prabhāvatīguptā, the daughter of Candragupta II. It may be remembered in this connection that both Daṇḍin (Kavyādarśa. 1-34) and Hemacandra (Book VIII. Grammar) consider the style of the Setubandha as the best available in the Mahārāṣṭrī dialect. These two references, also prove that among the two Pravarāsenas of Kashmir none can be the author of this Setubandha because being Kashmirians they are not expected to write excellently in the Mahārāṣṭrī dialect. Another reason for not considering any of the two Pravarāsenas of Kashmir as the author of the Setubandha, is that they are not contemporaries of either Vikrama or Kālidāsa since they ruled over Kashmir in the first and second centuries A. D. according to the Rājataranginī. The Kuntala country being a part of Mahārāstra, the authorship of the Setubandha may well be attributed to the Vākātaka Pravarasena II, who ruled over this part of the Mahārāstra country in the beginning of the fifth century A. D. as suggested by Mr. K. P. Jayaswal in his 'History of India cir. 150 to 350 A. D.' (J. B. O. R. S. vol. XIX 1933. Pt. I. II.), and General Cunningham (Archaeological Reports Vol. XI. p. 123), and confirmed by Dr. G. Bühler (Indian Antiquary Vol. XII. p. 239). In this case, Pravarasena II of the Vākātaka dynasty who ruled over a tract of land to the south of the Narmadā becomes a junior contemporary of Candragupta Vikramāditya who belonged to the same period, and in whose court poet Kālidāsa flourished as is commonly supposed. Another support for this suggestion regarding the authorship of the Setubandha comes from the Bharatacaritakāvya of Kṛṣṇakavi in which the Setubandha is attributed to the king of Kuntala. The verse in question is:

जलाशयस्यान्तरगाढमार्गमलब्धवन्धं गिरिचौर्यवृत्त्या ।
लोकेष्वलंकान्तमपूर्वसेतुं ववन्ध कीर्त्या सह कुन्तलेशः ॥

Trivandrum Series No. 86 (1. 4)

Under these circumstances, it is possible that Pravarasena II ruled over the two countries Vidarbha and Kuntala in the beginning of the fifth century A. D.

The verse : असकलहसितत्वात् etc, the original of Kālidāsa is borrowed with slight modifications in two words पिवति and त्वयि as पिवतु and मयि by Vikramāditya in order to provide an answer to the request of Kuntaleśvara conveyed through Kālidāsa.

Here, it may be noted that the last verse of Vākpatirāja आसंसारं etc. has been sanskritized by Rājasekhara with a few changes and quoted under his name.

ll. 13-16. The views of some thinkers regarding the necessity of a careful study of the early poetical works on the part of a poet, are to be linked with the view of the Ācāryas on the point, and not with that of Vākpatirāja above stated.

ll. 17-24. Rājasekhara disagrees with the views of the other thinkers on this subject. The explanation given by him is more or less based on the statement made by Vākpatirāja on the same subject in verses 88-92 of his Gaudavaho. The views expressed by Vākpatirāja and quoted by Rājasekhara are already mentioned by Ānandavardhana in his Dhvanyāloka.

ll. 2-5. Rājāśekhara approves of all the above mentioned views as correct. Vāmana seems to have analyzed अर्थ in poetry for the first time, and discovered that there are three distinct divisions of it.

Cf. अर्थो द्विविधोऽयोनिरन्यच्छायायोनिश्च ।

Kāvya-lankārasūtra III. 2, 7-9.

Ānandavardhana, further developed this idea of three divisions of Artha and, therefore, his is a definite improvement on the older theory. This is found in the Dhvanyāloka 4-12.

Cf. संवादो ह्यन्यसादृश्यं तत्पुनः प्रतिविवक्त ।
आलेख्यप्रख्यवतुल्यदेहिवच्च शरीरिणाम् ॥

Taking advantage of the already existing theories, Rājāśekhara develops upon them, puts the whole on a more scientific basis, and illustrates his points by a number of verses in these two chapters. The word अध्यगीष्महि also shows that Rājāśekhara here alludes to the views of some earlier writers on this subject. The examples of निन्दुतयोनि and परपुरप्रवेशसदृश are an improvement on Vāmana and Ānandavardhana.

The word एकादश may be read as एकादत as अयोनि is used by only one author. Hemacandra incorporated all these four divisions as recorded by Rājāśekhara along with their definitions and illustrations in his Kāvya-nuśāsanaviveka. p. 8.

ll. 7-14. प्रतिविवकल्पार्थं is defined by Ānandavardhana as अनन्यात्म and explained by him as तात्त्विकशरीरशून्यम् । see. Dhvani 4-13. The same definition is given here in this verse by Rājāśekhara as अपरमार्थविभेदम्. It is worthy of note here that the two verses cited here as examples will express identical meaning in case the reading in the second verse is changed as चन्द्रामृतांतु instead of गलद्रङ्गांतु ।

ll. 15-19. Ānandavardhana defines this division as तुच्छात्म, and advises poets not to take recourse to this method of writing. But Rājāśekhara does not agree with him, and defines this kind of poetry in a better manner than the प्रतिबिम्बकल्प and shows good artistic taste in the verse illustrating this class. The fact that he differs from Ānandavardhana in this respect becomes manifest by the word अर्थचतुरैः in this definition and by the passage सोऽयमेतुग्राह्यो मार्ग on p. 71 l. 12.

ll. 20-25. The third variety is approved of by Ānandavardhana as suitable for adoption, and is defined by him as प्रसिद्धात्म ।

Dhvanyāloka. 4-14.

That the same view of Ānandavardhana is adopted by Rājāśekhara is evident from the word सुधियोऽपि mentioned in this definition.

ll. 1-4. This method of description of the jewels is similar to that of the elephants adopted in the preceding verse. This kind of borrowing alone is permitted by Ānandavardhana.

ll. 5-14. This fourth division is not mentioned by any early writer. मूलैक्यम्=sameness of basic principles.

In the following two verses, the appearance of the Kadamba flower, the sign of the rainy season, becomes a source of enjoyment to the queens, because kings do not undertake war during that season and remain at home. Relying on this fact, two poets have composed two different verses where the second excels the first in description.

l. 16 अयस्कान्तषत् । Four kinds of poets who have special fondness for the use of these four kinds of Artha in their descriptions are named after these four Arthas in the same way as अयस्कान्त (magnet) which attracts iron and is called by that name.

पञ्चमः । The poet is said to belong to the fifth variety when his attention is always drawn to the अयोन्यर्थ or the method of description not adopted by any earlier poet.

ll. 18-25. Here Rājasekhara quotes a set of anonymous verses giving definitions of five classes of poets who are named differently as: भ्रामक, चुम्बक, कर्षक, द्रावक, and चिन्तामणि.

l. 7. कोशकार=a kind of sugarcane.

This description is called लौकिक as it is concerned with terrestrial things.

~[l. 11. देवीपुत्रमसूत attributed to योगेश्वर in सदुक्तिकर्णामृत].

ll. 11-14. It is called अलौकिक since it is concerned with celestial beings. This verse is quoted once before while describing an Arthakavi (p. 18).

ll. 15-18. मिश्रः because it pertains to both celestial and terrestrial beings.

ll. 19-23. अर्थानां should be connected with प्रत्येकमष्टत्ववशात्. Each of these four Arthas is subdivided into eight and, therefore, the total number of sub-divisions is thirty-two.

ll. 1-8. Here, the समर्थ्यसमर्थकभाव required for the figure of speech known as अर्थान्तरन्यास, is shown in the first half of the second verse, and this is quite contrary to that shown in the last line of the first verse. It is, therefore, called व्यत्यस्तक.

ll. 9-17. It is called खण्डप्रतिविम्बकल्प because the three stages पाण्डुप्रायं, कपिशिन्ना कृतपदं and वीतामोदं are not stated in the second verse, though all the other stages are adopted as given in the first verse.

Read आपादितस्थपुटसस्थिति शोषपोपात् ।

ll. 18-24. तन्त्र denotes here an army. The same idea expressed in the first verse, is developed upon, and enlarged in the second verse.

l. 25. नटनेपथ्यम् । When a later poet borrows an idea from earlier writing, but deviates totally from the original language, he is compared here to an actor who appears in a different dress from his original one.

l. 26. नेच्छइ पासासंकी is read as पाशासंकी काओ नेच्छइ in the Gāthā-saptaśatī. (3-5.)

ll. 2-5. The same idea, embodied originally in the Prākṛta language in the first verse, is expressed in Sanskrit in the subsequent verse.

ll 15-19. In these two verses, the brightness of the moon is described as similar to the paleness of a lady's cheek. But the cause for the paleness of a lady's cheek, is mentioned in the first verse as emaciation due to the influence of passion, and, in the next, due to her being in a delicate condition. This is what is called हेतुव्यत्यय.

ll. 20-26. The behaviour of the swans described in the first verse, is transferred in the second verse to the deer.

ll. 3-15. Combining in a concise manner, the imports of two different sentences belonging to early writers, is called सम्पुट.

The river Narmadā is called here a नदी, but, in fact, it should be called a नद as it flows towards the west.

ll. 1-10. It should be noted here that Dhvanikāra denounced this borrowing tendency on the part of poets as तुच्छात्म, saying तदनन्तरमालेख्यप्रख्यमन्यत्साम्यं शरीरान्तरयुक्तमपि तुच्छात्मत्वेन त्यक्तव्यम् ।

But Rājāsekharā thinks that this practice is not unsuitable for poets.

It is worthy of note that समक्रम, the first division of आलेख्यप्रख्य is almost the same as the seventh division सङ्गमिति of the प्रतिविम्बकल्प.

An example of समक्रम is then given. The glorious aspects of the setting sun described in the first verse are transferred to the rising moon in the second verse. This gives rise to संक्रमिति.

ll. 11-19. The author of the first verse describes the flame of a lamp, and this description is accompanied with several similes; while in the second verse only the nature of the flame is described with all similes omitted. This kind of borrowing is not very different from the second variety known as खण्ड of the प्रतिविम्बकल्प where also the borrowing of a portion of the complete description is illustrated.

ll. 20-24. The third variety व्युत्क्रम of this section does not seem to be different from the व्यत्यस्तक of the प्रतिविम्बकल्प.

l. 25. विशेषोक्ति also does not differ from the तैलविन्दु, the third division of the previous section. The examples of these divisions also show an exact similarity, because in both the forms, things described in a concise form in the first verse, are explained in detail in the second verse.

ll. 7-15. In the first verse, the simile comparing the moon with the breast of a lady is mentioned as subsidiary to the principal simile comparing the moon with the golden pot. In the second verse, however, the subsidiary simile of the first verse has been adopted as the principal simile. It is, therefore, called उत्तंस.

ll. 16-24. This नवनेपथ्य is exactly similar to the नटनेपथ्य of the प्रतिबिंबकल्प class. In the नटनेपथ्य the same import of the first stanza is expressed in the second verse in a different language by a different poet. But, here, the same description of a thing adopted in the first verse, is reproduced in the second in a slightly modified style.

It is described in the first stanza that तिलक on a woman's cheek which resembled the dark spot in the moon, is removed by the drops of her tear when she wept at the delay of her lover. But, in the second verse, the same idea is represented in a modified style and पत्रलताs or leaves and creepers in the cheeks of the ladies are said to have been destroyed by the hot tears coming from the eyes of the खण्डिता नायिकाs.

l 25. एकपरिकार्य is said to take place when a later writer borrows a method of description from an earlier poet and changes the principal object of description. The first verse is exploited while the second shows the exploitation.

In both the verses, cited as an illustration of this class of borrowing, the elephant's trunk of Ganeśa is described as similar to the stalk of a lotus when it is raised up by him. But the author of the first verse makes the sun resemble a lotus to which Ganeśa's trunk is said as the stalk; while the author of the second verse represents the tip of the elephant's trunk as the lotus

*[l. 6. रविसङ्क्रान्त. in ध्वन्यालोक II, attributed to Vālmīki.]

ll. 6-11. The author of the first verse, compares the winter-moon to a mirror which is made dirty by the sighings of on-lookers. The same idea has been borrowed by the author of the next verse where he describes the happy countenance of a lady as similar to a mirror which becomes natural when the dirt due to the tears and sighings of the on-lookers, is cleared off. This borrowing is, therefore, called प्रत्यापत्तिः ।

ll. 12-14. सोऽयमनुग्राह्यो etc. Rājasekhara approves of this kind of borrowing on the part of poets, while he denounces the other kind of plagiarism already described by the name of प्रतिविकल्प. He quotes in support of his view, a verse सोयं etc.

1. 17. नमन्नारायण etc. The purport of this verse seems to be that the ten nails of God Rudra's feet, by the reflection of black colour of Nārāyana who bowed before Rudra, resembled the ten moons on the heads of the ten Rudras and they seemed to have come to worship the moon which is on the head of the eleventh Rudra.

Construction in this case may be made thus:—नमन्नारायणच्छाया- च्छुरिताः पादयो. नखाः दश रुद्रेन्दवो (भूत्वा) रुद्र त्वच्चन्द्रं सेवन्त इव ।

The reading suggested as रुद्रेन्दव. in the text makes a slight change in the purport. In that case it may be construed thus:—

नमन्नारायणच्छायाच्छुरिताः (अत एव) रुद्रेन्दवः पादयो दश नखा हे रुद्र त्वच्चन्द्रं सेवन्त इव.

If the word Nārāyana is changed to Nārāyanī, then this verse will give quite a different sense. The face or the moon on the head of नारायणी or पावती who bowed before Rudra, being reflected on the ten nails of his feet resembled the ten moons worshipping the moon on the head of Rudra.

The purport of the next verse उमैक etc. is, however, quite clear, where it is said that the moon on the crown of Rudra seems to have taken six forms on being reflected on the five nails of उमा when he bowed before one of her feet

The metaphor or रूपक in this verse is between the moon and the चूडामणि and in support of it, a simile or उपमा comparing the broken pieces of bamboos with the rays of the moon, is given. The word त्वक्षीर may also be read as तवक्षीर which means arrow-root and is known in vernacular as तव्खीर.

1. 9. The reading भासिनि may be preferred here as the stars are similar to the कुमुद flowers and they provide themselves as signs to determine the position of the tank.

ll. 3-8. The poet Surānanda, on this point, seems to follow Ānandavardhana whose views are already stated. This Surānanda belonged to the Yāyāvaragōtra to which Rājaśekhara belonged, as can be inferred from the verse contained in the Bālarāmāyaṇa and cited below.

स मूर्तो यत्रासीद्गुणगण इवाकालजलदः सुरानन्दः सोऽपि श्रवणपुटपेयेन वचसा ।

He was in the court of the rulers of the Cedi country, and was probably a contemporary of king Ranaviṅṅha of Cedi (cir. 875-911 A. D. see Bhandārkar Report VI. p xix.)

There is a verse bearing on this point, in the Sūktimuktāvali and is attributed to Rājaśekhara.—

नदीनां मेकलस्रुता नृपाणा रणविग्रह । कवीना च सुरानन्दश्चेदिमण्डलमण्डनम् ॥

p. 47. (G. O. S. edition).

The preamble 'तदाह' shows that the verse सरस्वती etc. is quoted from the work of Surānanda. Similar sentiments are also expressed in the Dhvanyāloka.

Vāmana. 2. 23, 24.

Rājaśekhara, however, permits the use of अलौकिक and अशास्त्रीय descriptions, which he deals with in these three chapters and calls them as कविसमय. These varieties are, however, quite distinct from those included in the Doṣas by such earlier writers as Bhāmaha and others. Vāmana, for the first time, uses the word काव्यसमय in his 5-1 of the Kāvya-lankārasūtra and under this heading he instructs poets to observe certain rules in order that errors relating to grammar, metre and gender may not creep into their composition. The कविसमय explained by Rājaśekhara in these chapters seems to be different from Vāmana's काव्यसमय also. Rājaśekhara seems here to indicate that though all the कविसमयस are generally against the Śāstras as well as usage, there are certain varieties which are worthy of being adopted, while there are others which are to be totally avoided. He intends saying that though his कविसमय seems to be लोकशास्त्रविरुद्ध, it is worthy of adoption in poetical composition because such things had actually existed either in early ages or in different parts of the world and also because earlier poets have adopted such descriptions in their works. Yet, another kind of description which is included amongst the Doṣas by Bhāmaha and others as अशास्त्रीय and अलौकिक should necessarily be avoided by poets, because in such cases the things described are purely imaginary and they neither existed at any time or at any place, nor such method as this was followed by any of the early poets. This is the real sense of the term Kavīsamaya. Some dishonest poets, however, have used the same term in different ways so as to suit their own selfish ends.

Rājaśekhara appears to be the first writer to deal with this subject exhaustively, and the later writers such as Hemacandra and others have borrowed freely from him, and in doing so they merely added some new verses as illustrations.

But Nārāyaṇa, the commentator on the Viddhasālabhāñjikā, commented upon this reading somewhat differently as: यत्रेण तैलेक्षुरस-निष्कासनार्थे सम्पादितदारुशिलादिनिर्मितोपकरणविशेषेण द्रावितानि etc.

1. 8. Reading अवहंस may be adopted here in consonance with the statement contained in the verse त्वद्विप्रयोगे किरणैस्तथा etc. There it is said that the S'ephālkā trees let fall their flowers in the presence of the moon, as if to complain to the moon with drops of tears against the cruel treatment of the sun they receive during the day.

The line सतोऽपि क्रियार्थस्यानिवन्धनम् may be interpreted in the following manner.—

सतोऽपि क्रियार्थस्य=though S'ephālikā flowers do fall during the day also; अनिवन्धनम्=they are not, however, described as falling during the day.

ll. 5-13. All MSS of this work cite only the first verse वन्द्या विश्वसृज etc. to illustrate this Kavisamaya. Hemacandra who borrows all these chapters in the same order as found here in his Kāvyaṅuśāsanaviveka, includes the second verse यदिन्दोरन्वेति etc.
also. This verse is quoted from the Anargharāghava of Murāri.
It appears from this that Murāri, the author of the Anargha-rāghava may be placed before Rājasekhara (cir. 900 A. D.) on the strength of this quotation from his work.

It is worth remembering in this connection that Murāri is supposed to have flourished before 850 A. D. on the doubtful testimony of a verse in the Haraviyaya of Ratnākara. The verse in question runs thus —

अङ्गे कुनाटक इवोत्तमनायकस्य

नागं कविर्व्यधित यस्य मुरारिरित्थम् ।

आक्रान्तकृत्स्नभुवन. क्व गतः स दैत्य-

नाथो हिरण्यकशिपु. सह वन्धुवर्गैः ॥

38-68.

Although the words मुरारि, नाटक, कवि etc. do clearly refer to the poet Murāri the author of the Anargharāghava drama, yet the event mentioned in the verse does not agree with the theme as found in the drama Anargharāghava, because Rāma, the hero is not stated there as being killed in any of the Aṅkas as required by this verse. It is, therefore, difficult to take the words मुरारि etc. in the verse to represent the author of the Anargharāghava.

The construction of this verse of Ratnākara may, therefore, be taken thus —

कवि कुनाटके अङ्गे उत्तमनायकस्य नाशमिव मुरारिरित्थं यस्य नागं व्यधित सः आक्रान्त-कृत्स्नभुवनः दैत्यनाथ. हिरण्यकशिपु सह वन्धुवर्गैः क्व गत ॥

It may also be pointed out, here, that the present context is not complete unless this verse is accepted as a genuine part of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. Because the verse वन्या विश्वसृज् etc. relates only to the moon born from the eye of अग्नि and not to the moon born from the ocean as required by the statement अग्निनेत्रसमुद्रोत्पन्नयोरैक्यम्. But the second verse यदिन्दोरन्वेति etc. refers to the moon born from the ocean and thus both the verses together illustrate this कविसमय. The verse यदिन्दो etc., therefore, is a genuine part of the work. Relying upon the accuracy of Hemacandra in quoting these chapters of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā which is amply borne out by other instances such as in line 19 of this page as कामस्य मूर्तत्वममूर्तत्वञ्च, this verse also may be taken as a genuine quotation made by Rājasekhara from the Anargharāghava of Murāri.

Reading सोन्यादिष्टभुजङ्गहारवलय as found in C MS. is correct. In the case of उमाधव construe as:—इष्टानि भुजङ्गा एव हारा वलयानि च यस्य स ।

In the case of माधव, इष्ट भुजङ्गहा (गरुड) यस्य स, रवे शब्दब्रह्मणि लयो यस्य स .

Here Nārāyana and Mādhava are described as one and the same

ll. 12-15 Construe as.—दोभ्यां मन्दं ईरित मन्दर येन स ।

In the first half of this verse दामोदर and कूर्म are described as identical, and in the second half the identity of Laksmi with wealth and earth is described.

कविसमय of वामन is different from that of राजशेखर. The following

देवेश्वर—कविकल्पलता pp. 40, 41 and 42.]

ll. 12-13. Here Rājasekhara declares that he is the first writer to deal with this kind of Kavisamaya which the early writers on poetics failed to notice. But they included other varieties of Kavisamaya which readily form part of the Dosas or blemishes in poetical composition or ungrammatical usages.

The passages - काव्ये सुप्त इव स्थित । स साम्प्रतमिहास्माभिर्यथाबुद्धि विबोधित् ॥ clearly show that early authors were not opposed to it, and that Rājasekhara alone took up this subject to be treated of in detail.

Adhyāya XVII.

Chapters 17 and 18 are reproduced by Hemacandra in his Kāvyaṅanusāsana-viveka (pp.126-135) and he followed the same order as found here

ll. 19-22. In this verse, the firmament and the earth are described as forming one world. This is shown by the words क्रमपरिमिता भूमिर्विष्णोः and जगति सकले.

It is alluded here that in the whole world there can be no other family than this where the members such as Bala, Hara and Visnu of the family could not till their little land due to want of a second ox.

l. 25. Jambūdvīpa is situated in the middle of the other द्वीपस having three Dvīpas on both the sides. The names of all the seven द्वीपस and their order of precedence are mentioned in this verse.

ll. 1-2. Each of these seven द्वीपस are surrounded by seven concentric oceans.

l. 6. Kāvyaṅuśāsanaviveka reads as तस्मिन्नप्याजिकेलिव्यतिकरविजयोपार्जिते वीरचर्ये पर्याप्तं मे न दातुः etc. but Vāgbhata's Kāvyaṅuśāsana reads as कस्मिन्नव्याजकेलिव्यतिकरविजयोपार्जिते वीरचर्ये. Both वीरचर्ये and वीरचर्ये do not give any clear sense of that passage and therefore, it may be changed as वीरचर्य which may be construed with यः in the next line. The purport of the verse, then will be as follows :-

'The great warrior, probably Paraśurāma, became dissatisfied with Brahman because he thought that all these eighteen islands, earth with its nine sub-divisions, one mighty ocean, and the fertile country all around, acquired by him through his prowess in battles, seemed to him to be insufficient for his liberality'.

The reading :- चक्रे पुञ्जेन दातुं तदिदम् may be construed thus:—यः वीरचर्यः 'तदिदं पुञ्जेन दातुं चक्रे' इति धिया वेधसे चुक्रोप 'Paraśurāma became dissatisfied with Brahman because he could create very little for being given away in charity'.

*[l. 7. MSS of काव्यानुशासनविवेक read पर्याप्तं मे न दातुः instead of चक्रे पुञ्जेन दातुम् ।] ll. 13-16. This verse सातज्ञानामभावे etc. is not quoted by Hemacandra in his Kāvyaṅuśāsanaviveka. The import of this verse is that the enemies of a king were defeated and driven out to the shores of the three oceans where also they had the riches of a king in the form of elephants of the quarters, Cintāmaṇi jewels and Kalpaka trees etc. although they lost their own elephants, jewels and gardens.

[l. 22. MSS of विवेक read अगस्त्यचुल्लकोत्क्षिप्तम् ।]

l. 23. Read प्रस्तरायितम् instead of पृतरायितम्.

प्रस्तर means a small stone.

The reading उत्क्षिप्त also is quite suited to the emendation as प्रस्तरायितम् । The purport of this verse would then be as follows :

God Keśava assumed the form of a small stone in the hand of Agastya when he commenced drinking the water of the seven oceans, lest Agastya may drink him too.

*[1. 1. For देवेनाम्बुजजन्मना. MSS. of विवेक read ब्रह्मणा पुण्यकर्मणा.]

ll. 1-7. For a detailed description of जम्बूद्वीप see the Vāyupurāna chapter 34 from which this portion of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā seems to have been drawn.

ll 8-17. Compare the version in the Vāyupurāna with the description of Bhāratavarsa here—

भारतस्यास्य वर्षस्य नव भेदा प्रकीर्तिता । समुद्रान्तरिता ह्येयास्ते त्वगम्या परस्परम् ॥

Vāyupurāna. Chapter 45, 78-88.

The similarity is so remarkable as to leave very little room for doubting that the description of Bhāratavarsa, as given here, is wholly based on the information supplied by the Vāyupurāna.

1. 20. Here Rājāśekhara divides India into five parts, and gives topographical information relating to these parts. His conception of the country dividing itself in five parts, is probably derived from the position, boundary and description of Madhyadeśa as found in such earlier works as Manusmṛiti, Kāmasūtra, etc. The countries lying in the four directions from the Madhyadeśa constitute four groups each consisting of several divisions.

*[ll. 21-27. Viveka and Vāgbhata read सुदूरक, माहिष्मक, वेहर]

1. 3. For the things produced in Southern India see the products of the four Malaya mountains already enumerated on pp.92-93.

*[ll. 2-17. Viveka reads भैरवी वेणी कृष्णवेणी and वनायुजकम्बोज. Vāgbhata reads उपलावती, while Viveka has पलावती. Vāgbhata reads हययवन, करकण्ठकुहक. Viveka and Vāgbhata have तुवार and हरहूर, and add जालन्धर after हिमालय. हरहूर is the correct reading as हरहौर is mentioned by वराहमिहिर].

1. 17. यदाहुः etc. This verse is quoted from the Manusmṛiti (2-21). Madhyadeśa is also mentioned in the Kāmasūtra thus.-

मध्यदेश्या आर्यप्राया. शुच्युपचारा ।

2-5-21.

The same verse हिमवद्विन्ध्ययोर्मध्यम्, etc. (Manu. 2-21) is quoted in the Jayamaṅgalā on this Sūtra and is attributed to Bhṛgu there but not to Manu. According to Vasistha, Jayamangalā gives a different reading as गङ्गायमुनयोरिलेके इति वसिष्ठ. । instead of हिमवद्विन्ध्ययोः of this verse.

ll.23-24. The portion of this country, called अन्तर्वेदी, is situated within the four boundaries of the Sarasvatī in the west, Prayāga in the east, the Ganges in the north and the Yamunā in the south. For similar demarcation of अन्तर्वेदी,

Cf. इमेऽन्तर्वेदीभूपणं पाञ्चाल । पाञ्चालस्तव पश्चिमेन त इमे वासा गिरा भाजनास्त्वदृष्टेरतिथी- भवन्तु यमुनां त्रिन्नोतनञ्चान्तरा ॥

Bālarāmāyana x. 86.

Kānyakubja or modern Kanauj is called महोदय or गधिपुर and is situated on the bank of the Ganges.

Cf. verses 88-90 of the Bālarāmāyana act X.

ll. 25-27. Here Rājaśekhara mentions four places: वामनस्वामी, ब्रह्मशिला, गधिपुर, and कालप्रिय in order to show that the directions are to be taken only as relative, and not as always accurate. These four places seem to be situated in the four directions of the Kanauj city, and these are used here to prove the inaccuracy of the directions.

He says, for instance, that the direction east of Vāmanasvāmi corresponds to the west of Brahmaśilā, similarly, the south of Gādhipura corresponds to the north of Kālapriya. Excepting Brahmaśilā the other three limits of the city of Kanauj are already well-known. It is not, therefore, difficult to imagine that all the four boundaries refer to the city of Kanauj. This is further strengthened by the additional references given below.

(1) Vāmanasvāmi is an incarnation of Viṣṇu. According to the Padmapurāna, (Śiṣṭikhaṇḍa, 35 and Uttara. 53) Rāma, the king of Ayodhyā, once built a temple for Vāmanasvāmi in the city of Mahodaya or Kānyakubja. (see the Geographical Dictionary of N. L. Day. p. 89). Rājaśekhara refers, very probably, to this temple of Vāmana, and according to him it was situated in the western part of the city and towards the west of Brahmaśilā.

(2) Gādhipura is also mentioned by Rājaśekhara in his Bālarāmāyaṇa (act X, 88), and apparently he means by that word the city of Kanauj. Here, he mentions further that Gādhipura is situated towards the north of the Kālapriya temple. Gādhipura, therefore, appears to be a suburb of Kanauj in the northern part, while Kālapriya appears to be situated in its southern part.

(3) The temple of Kālapriyanātha also must have been a part of Kanauj, and the deity is referred to in the three famous dramas of Bhavabhūti, who mentions that his dramas were staged before an audience assembled in connection with festivities in honour of Śīlī Kālapriyanātha. It is well-known that Bhavabhūti was a contemporary of king Yaśovarman of Kanauj (8th century A. D.) and was patronized by him. It is not unnatural, therefore, on the part of Bhavabhūti to refer to the presiding deity Kālapriyanātha belonging to the capital city of his patron king Yaśovarman. The testimony of Rājaśekhara also makes it clear that the temple of Kālapriya was situated in the southern part of Gādhipura which is again a suburb of Kānyakubja.

These evidences militate against the views of some of the commentators on Bhavabhūti who are disposed to identify Kālapriyanātha with the deity of Padmapura in Vidarbha, the birth-place of Bhavabhūti, or with Mahākāleśvara of Ujjayinī. As there are not strong reasons to support either of the two theories mentioned above, these may be dismissed as fanciful.

(4) Now the position of Brahmaśilā mentioned by Rājaśekhara may be determined on the strength of the position of the other three places, and its exact situation may be located in the eastern part of the city of Kanauj. It is also probable that Rājaśekhara, being a teacher of king Mahendrapāla of Kanauj, was well acquainted with the topography of the city, and thus mentioned the four parts of the city of Kanauj to prove the relativity of directions. For his appreciation of the city of Kanauj see introduction page xxi.

* [pp. 93-94. With the five divisions of our author cf.

“The five Divisions of India, or the “Five Indies,” as they are usually called by the Chinese, are as follows:—

I. Northern India comprised the Panjab proper, including Kashmir and the adjoining hill states, with the whole of eastern Afghanistan beyond the Indus, and the present Cis-Satlaj States to the west of the Saraswati river.

II. Western India comprised Sindh and Western Rajputana, with Kachh and Gujarat, and a portion of the adjoining coast on the lower course of the Narbada river.

III. Central India comprised the whole of the Gangetic provinces from Thanesar to the head of the Delta, and from the Himālaya mountains to the banks of the Narbada

IV. Eastern India comprised Assam and Bengal proper, including the whole of the Delta of the Ganges, together with Sambhalpur, Orissa, and Ganjam.

V. Southern India comprised the whole of the peninsula from Nasik on the west and Ganjam on the east, to Cape Kumari (Comorin) on the south, including the modern districts of Berar and Telingana, Mahārāshtra and the Konkan, with the separate states of Haidrabad, Mysore and Travancore, or very nearly the whole of the peninsula to the south of the Narbada and the Mahānadi rivers. Cunningham's "The Ancient Geography of India" pp. 11-12.

ll. 12-14. विवक्षापरतन्त्रा=depending on the desire of the speaker. When an astronomer explains the position of directions, he takes recourse to the position of heavenly bodies such as Citrā, Svāti, Dhruva, etc. The direction east is decided by seeing the intermediate distance between the two stars चित्रा and स्वाती.

Here the word चित्रास्वात्यन्तर denotes also the day on which the sun's position is between these two stars. That day is known as विषुवान् when the day and night are equal. There are two such days in a year and they are known as चैत्र or शारदसम्पात and रैवत or वसन्तसम्पात. Only on these two days the sun's position is exactly to the east of the earth at the time of rising, and exact west at the time of setting. In all the other days of the year the sun rises either to the north or to the south in the eastern horizon and the day or night is either longer or shorter according as it is either the Summer Solstice or the Winter Solstice. People in ancient days used to determine the correctness of the eastern direction by the rise of the sun on the विषुवत् day when the sun rises between the चित्रा and स्वाती constellations, or in other words, when he is in the last degrees of the sign of Virgo. Kātyāyana and his commentator Karkācārya, for instance, have adopted this method of चित्रास्वात्यन्तर to determine the correctness of the eastern direction for the Vedic rites.

Here Rājasekhara seems to have introduced a change in his own verse to suit the context.

1. 15. Hastināpura, where Kurupāṇḍavas ruled, is situated in the Madhyadeśa according to its situation mentioned on page 94.l.17.

l. 18. The same verse युधिष्ठिर etc may be taken to show मध्यदेश्यश्यामता also, as poets do not differentiate the two colours कृष्ण and श्याम according to the statement made in कविसमय. see. p. 84. l. 23.

ll. 21-22. Construe —उत्तरकोसलेन्द्रपुत्र्या. तव नवनवनीतपिण्डगौरे अलिके प्रतिफलत् मृगाङ्गविं वृगमदपत्रनिभेन लाञ्छनेन अवगतम् ।

ll. 25-26. The Videha country is included in the list of countries in the eastern part of India. The colour of Jānakī therefore is expected to be black or कृष्ण. But she is described here as white or गौर because she belonged to a royal family. This verse is also found in the drama Mahānātaka or Hanumānnātaka, and describes the state of Rāma's mind when he was awaiting the arrival of the army of Khara and his brothers at Pañcavatī. From this quotation, found originally in the Mahānātaka and quoted subsequently by Rājasekhara, it should not be presumed that the text of the Mahānātaka as available to-day is the genuine one, or was composed before the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. The drama as at present available seems to be a compilation of verses pertaining to the story of Rāma by a later writer who flourished in the 10th century or later. The present drama contains verses of early dramatists such as Bhavabhūti, Rājasekhara and others, and it is thus reasonable to suppose that the author flourished a little after the time of Rājasekhara. The verse पृथिवि स्थिरा भव of the Bālarāmāyaṇa (1-48) occurs in the Mahānātaka (1-29) and the verse चूडाचुंबितकङ्कपत्र etc of Bhavabhūti appears in the Mahānātaka (2-3). It cannot, however, be denied that there was a Mahānātaka quite different from the available text because some writers on dramaturgy cite a Mahānātaka as one of the best dramatic compositions. S'āradātanava, for instance, in his Bhāvaprakāśana gives the description ^{of the} Mahānātaka thus:-

P. 241-5.

P. 279-22.

It cannot, therefore, be definitely said that this verse कपोले etc. formed part of the genuine and the original Mahānātaka composed earlier than the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. It is also possible that it belonged to some other drama dealing with the Rāma-story which was composed earlier than the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā and later on added to the Mahānātaka.

Construe this verse thus. —

ll. 3-4. Rukmiṇī, the daughter of the king of Vidarbha, is expected to be of black complexion as the Vidarbha country is included in the southern India. But, here, she is described as गौर or पाण्डु because she belonged to a royal family.

l. 5. एवमन्यदपि etc. Hemacandra quoted the whole chapter upto this line without expressing his indebtedness to Rājaśekhara but omitted the two verses. निगदित etc in his Vīveka.

ll. 6-9. It is said here that any description contrary to the geographical peculiarities of any country is considered as a blemish in composition and, therefore, poets are advised to be careful in avoiding this Doṣa in their works.

cf. Bhāmaha 4,29-30, Daṇḍin 4,40-44 and Vāmana 2,2,23.

तदुदाहृतयस्तु दोषेषु । Instances of देशविरोध are illustrated by the author in the chapter dealing with the blemishes of composition or the 16th Adhikaraṇa of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. This passage also shows that Rājaśekhara, intended to complete this Kāvya-mīmāṃsā in 18 Adhikaraṇas as enumerated in the first page of this work.

सूत्रित । This word also indicates that the author's intention was to write this work in the form of Sūtras on the model of the Arthaśāstra and the Kāmasūtra.

मद्भवनकोशम् । According to the list of subjects given on p. 2. l. 4., Bhuvanakośa seems to be the subject-matter of the last chapter of this Adhikaraṇa कविरहस्य, and it immediately follows देशकालविभाग of 17th and 18th chapters. But instead of that, Kālavibhāga is treated as the last subject and the chapter-colophon also shows that the first Adhikaraṇa कविरहस्य ends with the chapter on Kālavibhāga. It may, therefore, be surmised that probably there were some more Adhyāyas dealing with the Bhuvanakośa even after the Kālavibhāga chapter in order to complete the first Adhikarana, and these are irretrievably lost to us just as the other 17 Adhikarāṇas. This Bhuvanakośa does not seem to be a separate work of Rājasekhara because he mentions this as a part of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, and also because the author is known to have composed only six works as mentioned in the Bālarāmāyaṇa. cf. विद्धि नः षट् प्रबन्धान् । 1-12. Such being the case, the Bhuvanakośa cannot be included in this list of six works, and it is very improbable that Rājasekhara should compose an independent work by name Bhuvanakośa in addition to this voluminous work Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. The following six works may be taken as his composition: the four dramas, the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā and the Haravilāsa Kāvya. For detailed information, see introduction.

l 13. This line is not found in any of the MSS of this work. On the authority of Hemacandra who quoted the whole chapter in the same order in his Kāvyaṇuśāsanaviveka, this line has been added on to the text.

*[l. 14. काष्ठा etc. cf. with this, the division of time in कौटिलीयार्थशास्त्र p. 108. Read समेते ।]

ll. 14-15. This verse is found in the Vāyupurāna with slight modifications:

काष्ठा निमेषा दश पञ्च चैव त्रिंशच्च काष्ठा गणयेत् कलान्तम् ।
त्रिंशत्कलश्चैव भवेन्मुहूर्तः तैस्त्रिंशता रात्र्यहनी समेते । chapter 50-169.

द्वौ त्रुटौ लव । द्वौ लवौ निमेष । पञ्च निमेषाः काष्ठा । त्रिंशत्काष्ठाः कला । चत्वारिंशत्कला नाष्टिका । द्विनाडिको मुहूर्तः । पञ्चदश मुहूर्तो दिवसो रात्रिश्च ।

It may be noted that Kautilya states five Nimeṣas as equivalent to one Kāsthā, and eighty Kalās as equivalent to one Muhūrta. But according to Vāyupurāna 15 Nimesas make one Kāsthā while thirty Kalās make one Muhūrta.

ll. 16-25. Compare Arthaśāstra 2. 20. 38 on the subject of देशकालमान ।

ll. 1-3. The names नभानभस्य etc. are Vedic terms for twelve months.

l. 4. पूर्वो वायुः । The wind originates in the eastern horizon.

The Ācāryas think that the wind originates from the west in the rainy season, and that by the eastern wind the clouds are dispersed and therefore the rains are obstructed.

ll. 7-8. अम्भोमृत=filled with water.

ll 24-27. Rājasekhara seems to have changed the reading of this verse from the version adopted by him in his Bālarāmāyaṇa in order to suit the present context.

The last line in the Bālarāmāyaṇa reads.—हैमना वान्ति वाता ।

According to the list of countries given above on page 94, the countries Limpāka, Valhava and Kulūta mentioned in this verse, are situated in the northern part of India.

l. 5. Reading मिलितमलयज seems to be better than मलितमलयज and it means that the southern wind comes in contact with the products of the Malaya mountains.

सीमन्तिनीनाम्, must be connected with मानचौर ।

l. 11. वीतार्णसाम्=bereft of water.

l. 15. कुकूलम्=a fire made of chaff.

l. 16. कार्शानवै =weapon made of fire.

l. 17 Here Rājasekhara describes the six seasons of the year and enumerates the customs adopted in those seasons, and asks poets to follow the same method in their poetry. He also records the effects on the natural and seasonal changes on the produce of the country and on men, women and animals. He further describes the seasonal changes as recorded by early poets, and the practices of civilized people and rich men during these seasons.

1. 18. The fact that the Balākās or cranes conceive under the influence of the clouds and that the growth of bamboos is dependent on the clouds, is handed down by tradition alone and is alluded to by the early poets.

1. 24. This remark चकोरहर्षी seems to be new inasmuch as the Cakorās are known traditionally to feel happy in a moon-lit night but not in the rainy season, or is it a scribe's error for the word मयूरहर्षी?

[1. 26. MSS. B. and C. of Viveka read किल कामिनीभिः]

1. 26. The reading किल कामिनीभिः seems to be better than करिकामिनिभिः for the context.

1. 27. चतुः समम् । An unguent in which the four things, sandal, agallochum, saffron and musk are mixed. The things mentioned in this verse are the primary luxuries of the rainy season.

1. 1. The चातक birds are believed to drink only the rain-water.

1. 4. विषम्=water.

1. 8. घर्माख्य =the end of summer.

1. 10. Peacocks are known to become happy at the sight of the clouds or in the rainy-season but not when the clouds disappear in Autumn. But, here in the description of the Ś'arat season the reading गर्जयन्ती विमदान् मयूरान् seems to go against the tradition.

The reading तर्जयन्ती is, therefore, suggested here and this means that the S'arat season threatens the peacocks by removing the clouds. The reading द्रगर्जयन्ती is also suited to the context.

1. 21. विवेक reads सुरेभवीथी दिवि सावतारा-।]

[1. 21. The meaning of this line is not quite clear. सुरेभ refers to Airāvata the elephant of India. The reading of the Kāvyañu-sāsanaviveka दिवि सावतारा suggests the meaning that a row of stars begins to appear in the sky.

1. 25. बुध्यते च etc. mean that god Viṣnu gets up from his sleep on the day of उत्थानैकादशी while आषाढैकादशी is known as देव-शयनैकादशी or the day on which Viṣnu goes to sleep.

1. 26. कलमा=the first paddy crop.

1. 27. The old आमलक is preferable for medicinal purposes. This verse केदार एव etc. is quoted in the S'uktimuktāvali (G. O. S. edition, p. 229) with the remark कस्यापि.

11. 1-2. Both the words एवार्क and त्रयुसीफल mean cucumber.

*[1. 7. तीक्ष्णम्- attributed to Bhāsa in S'ārngadharapaddhati p. 593.]

11. 9-10. चित्तमन्त. instead of धर्मचिन्ता, पङ्कः instead of पङ्कम् are the different readings.]

11. 7-10. This verse also is quoted in the Sūktimuktāvali. The reading धर्मचित्तम् seems to be better than धर्मचिन्ता. Read पङ्कः for पङ्कम्.

1. 11. नयो वहन्ति is quoted in the Sūktimuktāvali as anonymous,

1. 14. फाल=tilling.

1. 26. वराहवर्माणि नवौदनानि may mean rice cooked along with the flesh of a boar].

1. 26. वराहवर्माणि etc. Rājasekhara seems to describe here the habits of uncivilized people. Similar description is found on page 39 lines 8-9 of this work. Cf.

1. 6. त्रिशङ्कु is a star which is believed to represent the king Triśaṅku of Ayodhyā who rose to heaven by the spiritual power of Viśvāmitra. This star becomes visible in this season.

1. 9. खाण्डवः=sugar-candy.

1. 13. The word हेमन्तधर्मा is grammatically correct according to the rule 'धर्मादनिच् केवलात्' 5-4-124 of Pānini.

1. 18. पृथुरतक्कमपीतशीतम् । This word may be taken as an adverbial clause to स्वपन्ति or an adjective to रजनी when it is changed to °शीताम् ।

॥ 5-6. The worship of Gauṇī and the love-god or Manmatha is introduced here.

l. 11. माहारजनांशुक=clothing with golden embroidery.

ll. 23-26. The purport of this verse is that ladies learn from the spring how to twist their hair into a braid on seeing the Mādhavī buds which grow on the advent of the spring; also, how to speak sweetly on hearing the sweet tone of the cuckoos and to worship Manmatha with the flowers of Damanaka tree.

*[1. 18. च्युतसुमनसः attributed to मालवकुवलय in औचिखविचारचर्चा; quoted in वामनालङ्कारः III. 2, 5. There the second pāda is मलयमस्तः सर्पन्तीमे वियुक्तवृत्तिच्छिदः । The Vṛtti runs as: ऋतुसन्धिप्रतिपादनपरेऽत्र द्वितीयपादे प्रक्रममेदः । एवं द्वितीयपादः पठितव्य. 1. 20. Construe: सवितुः मरीचयः शीतोह्लासं लुनन्ति । नच क्रमोदयदायिनीं जरठतां मालम्बन्ते ।

अत्र शिशुतरवसन्तकान्तोपवननवरसोह्लाससूच्यमानमनसिजोत्कण्ठावर्णनायामृतुसंधिसमुचिताः कुन्दा कुसुमावसानशून्यतनवः, किञ्चुकाशोकाः कलिकोद्रमभरालसा, मनसि कोकिला कलकूजितान्यनुसन्धति, रवेर्भरीचयः शीतोह्लासमथ च निवारयन्ति नच सन्तापदायिनीं प्रौढतामालंबन्ते ॥

*[1. 2. साम्यम् Cf. विद्वशालभञ्जिका. 1-25]

1. 2. The first line alone of this verse is taken from 1-25 of the Viddhasālabbhañjikā, while the other three lines are newly composed in order to suit the context.

ll. 9-12. In this verse the commencement of the rainy season is described. Here the blossoming of the lotus which happens in summer, is described as continued in the rainy season also.

ll. 14-19. Here Rājaśekhara states some other signs of previous seasons which are described as continued in subsequent seasons. Here धूलीकदम्ब, a sign of the summer, is described in this verse to represent वाराकदम्ब of the rainy season. In this verse all adjectives apply to the subject represented by the word समरवारिधरागमस्य ।

ll. 20-25. Here it is stated that the Jāti flower which is known in the rainy days as कर्दमी or 'muddy', continues blossoming even in Autumn when its fragrance is enriched.

ll 1-2. In this verse, the commencement of S'arat and a new-comer from his wanderings, are described as similar by the उपमा and श्लेष figures of speech. Here the days of S'arat season are stated as similar to the legs of the new-comer.

1. 4. Bāṇā, Āsana and Kuruntakas represent different kinds of plants.

1. 7. All the signs of Hemanta are here said to continue even in Śiśira, as these two are not generally considered as separate seasons.

1. 9. सुरभि.=the spring or वसन्त.

The three verses beginning from गेहे वाहीकथूनाम्, illustrate an instance of descriptive method in which the signs of Hemanta and Śiśira are said to continue even in the spring.

11. 11-14. In this verse, the flowers of दमनक etc., are described as continued even in the spring.

11. 17-18. Construe —श्रवणकटु रटत् नवमधुपटलीलम्पटं षट्पदानां चक्रं कर्पटेन धुन्वन् सोत्कण्ठ. अभ्येति ।

1. 2. कलाची=fore-arm.

The Bālarāmāyana reads the second line as :—कण्ठे माला विशाली वपुषि च नलिनीमूलकाण्डा कलापा ।

1. 9. एवमुदाहरणान्तराणि ।

For the other examples illustrating natural sceneries of different countries and the costume and manners of ladies inhabiting them, a reference may be made to the author's other works such as the Bālarāmāyana, Karpūramāñjarī, Viddhasālabhañjikā and Bālabhārata where he has exhibited his profound knowledge of the subject, particularly, of the seasonal changes and the topography of the different parts of India.

11. 10-11. Here Rājasekhara says that the commencement, development and continuation of the different seasons are described here only in a very concise form, and that the other characteristics of the seasons, therefore, should be imagined by the poets themselves.

नामग्रहं कियद्भूम् । The author regrets here his inability to deal in detail with everything that he happened to know. This testifies to his vast knowledge and his love of the subject. It may further be said that there is no other work in the Sanskrit literature, superior to this portion of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā on the subject of the description of the different seasons. The inferiority of such works as the R̥tusamhāra will be quite apparent when it is compared with this chapter.

ll. 12-13. Here the author advises other poets not to record their observations indiscriminately in their compositions but to adopt only the method followed by the early poets as their chief guide while describing.

l. 14. Rājasekhara wants to close this chapter on seasons and their divisions after noting down two more points regarding the flowers and fruits which also belong to the main theme of this chapter. According to Rājasekhara flowers are required to serve six different functions, such as:—(1) शोभा beauty (2) अन्वस् food (3) गन्ध smell (4) रस essence (5) फलम् fruits (6) अर्चनम् worship. There is no seventh function to be served by them except to wither and decay in the forest.

ll. 16-23. A period of four months is to be allowed by poets while describing the process of transformation from a flower to a ripened fruit. This period of four months refers only to the case of the flowers of the trees and not to those of the creepers in which case the period of maturity is two months only.

ll. 24-25. Here Rājasekhara classifies fruits under six heads according to their form. The word व्याज here means pretence. In every fruit the kernel is hidden in the useless and rough skin and this is what is known as pretence. This pretence also varies in six ways by its position in the fruits, either inside or outside or in both places, and so on. All fruits are divided into six groups following the nature of the pretence of the fruits.

ll. 1-4. The fruit of the Lakuca tree has व्याज only in the middle and all other portions of it are useful. This fruit may be like the Ciku (चिकु) fruit of the present day.

Mocā or plantain has its व्याज only on the skin.

Āmra or mango fruits have their व्याज both in the seed as well as in the skin, and the fruit कङ्कुम has the व्याज everywhere. This seems to be the fruit of the अर्जुन tree.

The Panasa fruit has many व्याज both in and out, and, therefore, it is called बहुव्याज । नीलकपित्थ seems to be a variety of the Kapittha fruit and it has no व्याज anywhere.

ll. 5-8. Here Rājāśekhara advises poets to take more care to keep up the propriety (औचित्य) in description than the rules of poetics. For example, all the different seasons should not be, as a rule, described together in one particular place; but one or two only may be dealt with in different places in the composition, not necessarily in the same order as the seasons appear.

ll. 9-10. अवधान is शक्ति or Pratiḥhā.

Cf. अवधानातिशयवान् रसे तत्रैव सत्कविः ।
भवेत्तस्मिन् प्रमादो हि ज्ञगित्येवोपलक्ष्यते ॥

Dhvanyāloka. 3-29.

ll. 11-12. Here the author mentions the subject of this chapter as the division of time, and states that due to the lack of accurate knowledge, poets are apt to be confused while handling this subject. An accurate knowledge of this subject often makes poets superior.

“रातावद्याधिराज्या विसरररसविद्याजवाक् क्षमापकारा
राका पक्ष्माभशेषा नयननयनस्त्रा रवया स्तव्यमारा ।
रामा व्यस्तस्थिरत्वा तुहिनननहितुः श्री. करक्षारधारा
राधा रक्षास्तु मह्यं शिवमममवशिव्यालविद्यावतारा ॥”

तत्राङ्को राजशेखरकमल । सरस्वतीकण्ठाभरणे, द्वितीये-परिच्छेदे ।]

ll. 13-15. The colophon and the post-colophon statements, here, indicate the ending of the first section or Adhikarana of the Kāvyaṁimānsā dealing with the Kavirahasya. In this connection it should be remembered that there must have been another chapter belonging to this Adhikaraṇa and dealing with the subject of Bhuvanakośa as enumerated in the first chapter p. 2. l. 4 and which now seems to be lost. According to that statement: भुवनकोश. । इति कविरहस्यं प्रथममधिकरणम् इत्यादि । Bhuvanakośa seems to be the last subject dealt with in this Adhikarana. There is another passage also :

यस्तु जिगीषलधिकं पश्यतु मद्भुवनकोशमसौ ॥

which confirms the above view. Some scholars hold that the Bhuvanakośa is a separate treatise of Rājaśekhara, but this does not appear to be correct for reasons already cited. It is, therefore, to be concluded that the last portion of the Kavirahasya dealing with the Bhuvanakośa as well as the other 17 Adhikaranas of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, as enumerated in the first chapter 'शास्त्रसङ्ग्रह' of this work, have been entirely lost. Very probably, the reason why this extent portion alone out of the bulky volume of 18 Adhikaranas of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā has been preserved in the Jain Bhandars of the Patan town in the territory of Baroda Raj, is that the greater portion of this section is borrowed by the great Jain Ācāryas such as Hemacandrācārya, Vāgbhaṭa and Māṇikyacandra in their Kāvya-anuśāsanas and in the commentary on the Kāvya-prākāśa and, therefore, to prove the authenticity of the writings of their Ācāryas, the later Jain scholars might have taken more care to preserve this portion alone; or, it is also quite possible that only the extant portion of the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā was available when the Jain Bhandār Libraries were being organized. Another plausible explanation is that probably Rājaśekhara did not live to complete his Kāvya-mīmāṃsā which was projected in 18 Adhikaranas—a very ambitious scheme, and the chapters available to-day is the portion which he could complete during his life-time.

Kāvya-mīmāṃsā.

Vāgbhata has not borrowed wholly from Rājaśekhara like Hemacandra, but in some places has substituted his own and the verses of others and has summarised in prose the chapter on कालविभाग. The portions which seem to have been borrowed from this work by the authors of the Sarasvatikanthābharana, Ś'ingāiprakāśa and the Bhāvaprakāśana are referred to in the Notes

APPENDIX I.

Identification of geographical names occurring in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā.

1. *Anga*The country lying between Bhagalpur and Monghyr. Its capital was Campāpurī which is now located within two miles west of Bhagalpur.
2. Antarvedi ...The tract of country surrounded by the Ganges in the north and the Yamunā in the south, and Vīnaśana (or the place where Sarasvatī disappears) in the west and Prayāga in the east.
3. *Andhra*The country lying between the river Godāvarī in the north and the Kṛsnā in the south. Pratisthānapura was its capital.
4. Ayodhyā... ...Situated on the river Sarayū in the United Provinces.
5. *Arbuda*Mount Abu in the Aravalli range now included in the Sirohi state of Rajputana. According to Rājāśekhara the part of the country surrounding Mount Abu is also called Arbuda, because he makes Arbuda both a mountain and a Janapada.
6. *Avantī*The country of which Ujjain was the capital. It is said to be the kingdom of Vikramāditya.
7. *Aśmāka*Rājāśekhara mentions this among the countries of South India. The Brahmāṇḍapurāṇa also places it in the southern India. But the Kūrmapurāṇa and the Brhatsamhitā mention this country as a part of North India and locate it near the Punjab. The Daśakumāracarita, Harsacarita and Bhaṭṭasvāmin—the commentator on the Arthaśāstra, include Aśmaka as a part of the Mahārāṣṭra country. It appears, therefore, that Aśmaka was situated between the Godāvari and Māhiṣmatī, and formed part of Vīdarbha.

8. *Ānarta*Includes northern Gujarat and portions of the Malwa country; its capital was Ānartapura, afterwards called Ānandapura, the modern Vadnagar.
9. Āryāvartta ...The northern part of India lying between the Himālayas in the north and the Vindhya range in the south; and between the eastern and western oceans.
10. *Irāvati*This may be identified with the river Ravi on the banks of which Lahore is situated. Some scholars identify this with the river Rapti in Oudh, but this does not seem to be correct, since Rājaśekhara locates the river in the northern India.
11. Plāvātavarṣa ...The country surrounding the Mahāmeru, or the mountain situated in the middle of the Jambūdvīpa. The Meru is said to have three Varṣas in the north and three more in the south. Among the six, the Bhāratavarṣa is regarded as the third to the south.
12. Indrakīla ...One of the peaks in the interior of the Himālayas.
13. Indradvīpa ...One of the nine parts of the Bhāratavarṣa. The division of Bhāratavarṣa in nine parts occurs in the Purāṇas, as well as in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā which depends for its information on the Purāṇas with regard to this topic. Some scholars are inclined to identify this with Burma as it is situated in the east, the direction of Indra.
14. *Ujjainī*Modern Ujjain.

15. Utkala ... Orissa or the northern part of the Kalīṅga country. The river Vaitaraṇī forms its northern boundary.
16. Uttarakośala ... The kingdom of Oudh had two divisions, Uttarakośala and Kośala. Ayodhyā and Kuśāvati were the capitals of the two Kośalas.
17. Uttarakuru .. The Purānas consider this to be a Varsa surrounding the Varsa Parvata S'rngavān which is the third mountain range from the Mahāmeru in the north. Rājasekhara follows the same view. According to the Rāmāyaṇa and the Mahābhārata, Tibet and eastern Turkistan were included in the Uttarakuru.
18. Uttarāpatha ... The country to the north of Pithūdaka (or Pehoa in the Karnal district of Punjab on the river Sarasvatī) is called Uttarāpatha. Prthūdaka is fourteen miles to the west of Thāneśvara.
19. Utpalāvati ... This is a river in the Tinnevely district in the southern India. The river runs parallel to the Tāmraparnī.
20. Rkṣaparvata ... This is one of the Kulaparvatas of the Kumārīdvīpa or India. This mountain forms part of the eastern range of the Vindhya extending from the bay of Bengal to the source of the Narmadā.
21. Kacchīya ... Cutch. It was known also as Maru-Kaccha in the Bihatsamhitā.
22. Kapis'ā ... The river Suvarṇarekhā in Singbhum and Orissa. (see Raghuvamśa IV. 38). The source of the river is said to be the Rkṣaparvata.
23. Karakanṭha ... One of the countries in the Uttarāpatha. It may be identified with the valley of Karakoram. As Karachi is situated in the western India, its identification with Karakanṭha will be hazardous. But the Kārāpatha or Karabagh as it is now called, on the right or the west bank of the Indus at the foot of the salt range locally called Nili hill in the Bannu district may, however, be identified as an alternative with the Karakanṭha of Rājasekhara.

24. Karatoyā ... A sacred river flowing through the districts of Rangpur, Dinajpur and Bogra in Bengal and joining the river Brahmaputra near the Gangetic delta.
25. Karnāṭas ... People living in the Karnāṭadeśa which includes the Mysore state, Coorg and part of the Ceded districts.
26. Kalīṅga ... The northern Circars, a country lying between Orissa in the north and Andhra in the south and bordering on the sea Rājasekhara includes this amongst the countries situated in the southern and the eastern India.
27. Kalīṅda ... A part of the Himālayas known by this name. It is the source of the river Yamunā which is called Kālindī in consequence.
28. Kaserumān ... One of the nine parts of the Bhāratavarṣa. This division is referred to in the Purānas and in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. It is identified by some with Singapore in the Malaya States. (see Cunningham's A. G. Notes p 752)
29. Kāñcī ... Kāñcīpura or Conjeevaram, the capital of the Draviḍa or the Cola country on the river Pālār. It is situated at a distance of forty three miles south west of Madras.
30. Kāmarūpa ... Assam. Rājasekhara mentions Kāmarūpa as one of the mountains situated in the eastern part of India but not as a Janapada.

Prāggyotisapura was the capital of Kāmarūpa. (see Raghuvamśa IV. 83-84). Very probably this Kāmarūpaparvata represents the Nīla hill or Nīlakūtaparvata where the temple of the celebrated Kāmākhyādevī is situated.

31. Kāamboja... ..Afghanistan, or at least its northern part.
Rājaśekhara mentions this among the countries in the Uttarāpatha. According to the Raghuvamśa (IV. 68-69) this country is situated between the river Oxus and the Himālayas. (see Hūṇa).
32. Kārtikēyanagāra Baijanātha or Vaidyanātha in the district of Kumaun about eighty miles from Almora. (see notes p. 194).
33. Kālapriya ...Kālapriyanātha is the name of the Mahādeva worshipped in a temple situated in the southern part of the city Kānyakubja or Kanauj. This Kālapriyanātha is mentioned in the dramas of Bhavabhūti who was a court-poet of king Yaśovarman of Kanauj (see notes p. 243).
34. *Kāvera*Some districts of the Dravidadeśa on the banks of the Kāveri, and especially the delta of the river.
35. *Kāveri*River Kāveri in the southern India which rises from a spring called the Candratīrtha on the Brahmagiri mountain in Coorg.
36. Kāśmīra... ..Kashmir.
37. Kimpuruṣa arṣa This Varṣa is situated immediately to the north of the Himālayas encircling the Hemakūta Parvata. This is the second Varṣa from the Mahāmeru on the southern side Mr. Nandlal Dey identifies this Varṣa with Nepāl, but this is against the statement of Rājaśekhara. Nepal is mentioned by him in the eastern part of the Bhāratavarṣa, while he places the Kimpuruṣavarṣā to the north of the Himālayas. Some scholars are inclined to identify this Varṣa with Tibet which seems to be more probable.

38. Kīra Bajnātha or Kīrāgrāma in the Punjab. This may also be identified as the country round about the Kirthar range in North-west India beyond Sindh. But Rājaśekhara includes this amongst the countries of the Uttarāpatha. It is, therefore, possible to locate this country in South Afghanistan to the north of the Kirthar range. One 'Śāhi' is said to have been the king of Kīra country (Epi. Ind. Vol. I. p. 122) who is identified as a ruler of Afghanistan and the Punjab during 9th and 10th centuries A. D. For further information about Kīras (see IHQ. Vol. IX. No. 1).

39. Kuntala Rājaśekhara locates Kuntala in the southern India and Sātavāhanas are mentioned as the rulers of the country. The tract of country between the two rivers Godāvārī and Kṛṣṇā is the country of the Kuntalas, and sometimes a portion of Karnāṭaka as also of Vīdārbha are included in this country.

40. Kumārīdvīpa ... One of the nine parts of the Bhāratavarṣa. According to Rājaśekhara's conception, this Dvīpa seems to represent India, situated between the Himālayas in the north and the Cape Comorin in the south, because he mentions the seven Kulaparvatas such as Vindhya, Pāriyātra, etc. as situated in the Kumārīdvīpa. (see p. 92).

41. Kumārīpuram Cape Comorin, also known as Kanyākumārī.

42. Kailūta This country is situated in the northern India or Uttarāpatha. This is undoubtedly the modern Kulū in the Kangra district in the upper valley of the Bias in the Punjab. The kingdom of Kia-lu-to is placed by Hiuen Tshang at 700 li or 117 miles to the north-east of Jalandhar, which corresponds exactly with the present position of the Kūlu. Its old capital was at Nagarkot, while Sultanpur or Sthanpur is its present headquarters.

43. Kus'advīpa ... One of the seven Dvīpas of the world, and this is said to be surrounded by the Sarpis-samudra.
44. Kuhū ... A river in the Uttarāpatha. This is very probably the same as the Kabul river which is also known as the Kubhā in the Vedas or Kophes of the Greeks. This is an affluent of the river Indus and rises at the foot of Kohi Baba.
45. Kṛṣṇavenā ... The Kṛṣṇā. This is also called the Kṛṣṇavenā at the point where it is united with the river Venā. The river flows through the Dakṣiṇāpatha or the southern India.
46. Kekaya ... The country lying between the Bias and the Sutlej in the Punjab.
47. Kerala ... The Malabar coast or the Cera country comprising Malabar, Travancore and Cochin states.
48. Kollagiri ... Coorg which is now included in the Mysore state. The river Kāverī rises from this place. It is also known as Kolagiri or Kodagu.
49. Kośala ... The southern part of the kingdom of Oudh. Kośala was divided into two kingdoms called Uttarakośala and Kośala. Ayodhyā and Kuśāvati were the capitals of these two divisions respectively.
50. Kaurikana ... Same as the country known as Paraśu-nāmakṣetra. This is the tract of land - lying between the western Ghats and the Arabian sea. Kālidāsa names this country as Aparānta (Raghuvamśa IV. 58).

51. Krathakais'ika The country of Vīdarbha is called the land of Krathakais'ikas (Raghuvamśa V. 39-40). But Rājasekhara mentions these two countries separately in the Dakṣiṇāpatha. According to the Mahābhārata, a Vīdarbha king had two sons Kratha and Kais'ika, and after their names the country was known as Krathakais'ika (see Sabhā. ch. 13). Rājasekhara very probably means that Krathakais'ika was only a part of the Vīdarbha country.
52. Krauñcadvīpa One of the seven Dvīpas of the world. It is said to be encircled by the Dadhi ocean.
53. Gaṅgā ... The river Ganges. Rājasekhara mentions Gaṅgā in the list of rivers of the northern and western India, probably because the Ganges flows through both.
54. Gandharva ... One of the nine parts of the Bhāratavarṣa. In some Purānas, it is also mentioned as Gāndharva. On the authority of chapters c̄xiii, 10-11 and c̄xiv 11. of the Uttara-kānda of the Rāmāyana, some scholars, identify this part as the country of Gāndhāra or the valley of the Kabul, with a small tract of land to the east of the Indus. (see Cunningham's A. G. Notes. p. 752).
55. Gabhastimān ... One of the nine parts of the Bhāratavarṣa. Some scholars locate this part in the southwest of India following the order of the nine parts mentioned in the Purānas and the Kāvyaṁimāmsā. (see Cunningham's A. G. Notes p. 752).
56. Gāṅga ... This country is located in the Dakṣiṇāpatha. This may be identified as the Koṅgu country of the southern India which comprises the districts of Coimbatore and Salem. The name Gānga or Koṅgu seems to have been derived from the name of the dynasty of the Western Gāngas who ruled over the south of Mysore with Salem, Coimbatore, the Nilguis and parts of Malabar, from the 2nd to the 9th century A. D. Evidently, therefore, it should not be identified, as some scholars have done, with the Rādha country and Saptagrāma which form part of South Bengal and which is also known as Gānge or Gānga according to Ptolemy and Harihara and Belur inscriptions (Rice's Mysore Inscriptions pp. 70,222). The Kaliṅga country which was also ruled over by the Eastern Gānga dynasty during the 7th century A. D. cannot be taken to represent the Gānga country mentioned here by Rājaśekhara, as he had already included Kaliṅga, or the districts of Ganjam and Vizag amongst the eastern countries of India.

57. Gādhipura ...According to the Bālarāmāyana, (X 88) Gādhipura is another name of the city of Kānauj, while Kāvyaṁimāmsā takes it to be a suburb of Kanauj, and as situated on the northern side of the city. (see p. 243).
58. Girinagara ...Girnar. Rājaśekhara places this hill in the western India, and this has been identified with the well-known Gunar hills situated at a small distance from the town of Junagadh in Kathiawar. This is now presumed to be the Raivatakagiri of the Purānas.
59. Godāvari ...A river in South India. Its source has been traced to the Brahmagiri situated on

60. Govardhana ...Mount Govardhana eighteen miles from Br̄ndāvana in the district of Mathura.
61. *Gauḍa*According to Rājasekhara, the Gauḍas are a people inhabiting the whole tract of country lying between Benares and the bay of Bengal. According to him the word Gauḍa is not the name of any particular country. He describes the costume of the Gauḍa ladies and mentions the fondness of the Gauḍas for the Sanskrit language. Mr. N. L. Dey, however, thinks that the whole of Bengal is known as the Gauḍa country with its capital at Gauḍ, the ruins of which have been discovered near Malda in Bengal at a distance of about ten miles. He also thinks that the kings of the Pāla and Sena dynasties made this city of Gauḍ their capital on several occasions. This city was also known as Lakṣmaṇāvati or Lakhnauti after the name of King Lakṣmaṇasena of the Sena dynasty of Bengal.
62. *Calora*A mountain in the eastern India according to the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā. It may be identified as Caraṇādri or Cunar, the hill-fort in the district of Mirzapur, which was built by the Pāla Kings.
63. Cakravartikṣetra Rājasekhara designates the whole country of India from Cape Comorin in the south to the Bindusaras in the Himālayas in the north, as the Cakravartikṣetra. This land consists of 1000 Yojanas. One who conquers and rules over the whole of this land is called a Cakravartin. This seems to be the same as the Kumārīdvīpa, one of the nine parts of the Bhāratavarsa. The Purāṇas as well as Rājasekhara use the word Bhāratavarsa in a wider sense, so as to include Greater India, that is to say, India proper along with her eight colonies, Indradvīpa, etc. These colonies are bounded by the southern sea or the Indian ocean and the Himālayan range and are separated from one another by oceans.

64. Candanagiri ...Malayagiri or the southern portion of the western Ghats. Rājasekhara mentions that Rāmasetu was built in continuation of the Candanagiri. (see Bālarāmāyaṇa, VII. 45.)
65. Candrabhāgā...The river Chenab, a tributary of the river Indus. Rājasekhara places this river in the Uttarāpatha.
66. Candrācala ...A peak of the Himālayas wherefrom the river Candrabhāgā rises. This is also called Candrabhāgā in the Purānas. The Candragiri, the sacred place to the Jains which is situated near Seringapatam is apparently different from this, since Rājasekhara locates this mountain in the northern India.
67. Coḍa ... Rājasekhara's Coḍa country is represented by the districts of Tanjore and south Arcot in the Madras Presidency, because the other parts of the Cola country are given different names, such as, Kāñchī and Kāvera.
68. Jambūdvīpa ...One of the seven Dvīpas of the world, situated in the middle, with three Dvīpas on both sides. The mountain Mahāmeru is situated in the middle of the Jambūdvīpa and this Dvīpa may be identified with the Asia of the present day. Jambūdvīpa, according to the Purānas and in the opinion of Rājasekhara, consists of seven Varṣas or parts and seven mountains. The Bhāratavarṣa is the southern-most Varṣa or country in the Jambūdvīpa and includes within its boundary the mighty Himālayas. For other Dvīpas, Varṣas and mountains, see pp. 90-92 of the text.

69. *Jānhavī*The river Ganges.
70. *Takka*The country lying between the two rivers, the Vipāsā and the Sindhu. It was the country of Vāhikas or Takkas. S'ākala was the capital of the Takkadeśa which included the Madra and Āratta countries. The Rājatarāṅginī locates this country on the banks of the Chenab or Candrabhāgā. According to Rājāśekhara the people of this country used to talk in a language which had an admixture of Apabhraṃśa.
71. Taṅgaṇa... ...According to Rājāśekhara, this is a country in the Uttarāpatha. Mr. N. L. Dey identifies this as the land extending from the Rāmgāṅgā river to the upper Sarayu.
72. *Tāpī*The river Tapatī or Taptī. It rises from the Vindhya and falls into the Arabian sea near Surat.
73. Tāmraparna ...One of the nine parts of the Bhāratavarṣa. It is identified with Ceylon.
74. Tāmraparṇī ...The river Tāmraparṇī which rises from the Agastikūta on the Malaya hills and flows through the district of Tinnevely in the Madras Presidency.
75. Tāmraliptaka...Tamluk, situated on the western bank of the Rūpnārāyana in the district of Midnapur in Bengal.
76. Tuṅgabhadrā ...A tributary of the Kṛṣṇā river. Kiṣkindhā is said to be situated on the banks of this river.

77. Turuṣka ... Eastern Turkistan. It is mentioned by Rājaśekhara in the groups of countries included in the northern India.
78. Tusāra ... Rājaśekhara located this country in the northern India. According to Dr. Stein, the upper Oxus valley, including Balkh and Badakshan was called Tikhāra or Tuṣāra. (Rājatarāṅginī, Vol. I., p. 136).
79. Tuṣāragiri ... A peak of the Himālayas near Gaṅgotri. Rājaśekhara states that Sarasvatī got a son Sārasvateya Kāvya-puruṣa here who was later, married to the daughter of Gaurī at this place.
80. Tosala ... It is identified with Dakṣinakośala, as Tosali is mentioned in the Aśoka inscription at Dhaulī. Rājaśekhara includes this country among the eastern countries of India.
81. Travaṇa... This country is located in the western India. Rājaśekhara informs us that the people in Surāṣṭra and Travaṇa countries could speak Sanskrit fluently with an Apabhramśa accent.
82. Dakṣiṇades'a ... Southern India bounded by the Narmadā in the north and the Cape Comorin in the south.
83. Dakṣiṇāpatha Same as Dakṣiṇadeśa. According to Rājaśekhara this represents the portion of the Indian peninsula lying to the south of the Māhīsmatī.
84. Dandaka ... It is difficult to identify this with Dandakāvana of the Rāmāyana, since Rājaśekhara mentions Mahāiāṣṭra, etc. comprising the real Dandakāranya according to modern conceptions, as separate countries. Thus, Tonḍaimandala or Dinḍivanam, which is situated in South India between the countries of Cola and Kāñchī, may be identified with the Daṇḍaka of Rājasekhara.

85. Dardura... ...Kālidāsa mentions in his Raghuvamśa that both the mountains of Malaya and Dardura are situated in close proximity in the southern-most part of India near Tāmraparṇī. (IV. 50-51). Mount Dardura, thus, can be with little difficulty identified with the Nilgiris in the Madras Presidency. But, since Rājasekhara locates the Dardura hills in the eastern India, it ought to be identified with the Deogarh peak in the eastern part of the Vindhya.
86. Das'apura ...Mandasor in Malwa. It is locally known as Dasore from which the Dasora Brahmins derive their names.
87. Dās'eraka ...Malwa.
88. Devasabhā ...Rājasekhara locates Devasabhā in the western India and from this point onwards, the whole of the western part of India is considered by him to be the पश्चिमदेश. Devasabhā is also the name of a mountain in the western India, and as such this may be identified with the mountainous parts of either the Dewas state or Udaipur where the Dhebar lake is situated. The rivers Sarasvatī and Sabarmati rise from these parts near Udaipur and flow through the western India. Kautilya in his Arthasāstra (p. 78) mentions a variety of sandal as दैवसमेय. By this, he very probably means either the hills or the country of the same name देवसभा mentioned by Rājasekhara where excellent sandal wood may be obtained.
89. *Devikā*It is a river in the northern India, and may be identified with the present river the Deeg, which is a tributary of the Ravi.

90. *Dramila*Same as Draviḍa.
91. *Draviḍa*The words Dramila and Dravida are mentioned by Rājaśekhara to denote the inhabitants of the southern India, and not the name of the country. The use of these words is the same as in the case of the word Gauḍa.
92. *Dronācala*The Doonagiri mountain in Kumaun.
93. *Narmadā*Rājaśekhara includes this amongst the rivers of South India. It rises from the Amrakantaka hills in the Vindhya range, and flows into the gulf of Cambay.
94. *Nāgadvīpa*One of the nine parts of the Bhāratavarṣa. It may be placed in the western part of India if we are to take into account the sequence of the nine parts mentioned in the Purāṇas.
95. *Nāsikya*Nasik. Same as Pañcavatī.
96. Niṣadha... ...This is mentioned as a mountain in the Jambūdvīpa or Asia, and as situated immediately to the south of the Mahāmeru. It is said to be the principal mountain of the Harivarsa in the same way as the Himālayas may be called the principal mountain of the Bhāratavarṣa. It is identified with Hindukush by Mr. N. L. Dey.
97. *Nilagiri*One of the Varsa mountains of Jambūdvīpa or Asia. Rāmyakavarṣa is attached to this, and the position of the mountain is immediately to the north of the Mahāmeru.
98. *Nepāla*Nepal. Rājaśekhara includes this in the list of the mountains and also of the countries in the eastern India.

99. *Payoṣṇī*A river in the southern India and may be identified with the Pūrṇā, a tributary to the river Tāpī.
100. *Pallava*This name often denotes a dynasty which ruled over the southern India from the 5th to the 9th century A. D. with the capital at Kāñchī. The country surrounding Kāñchī very probably was known as the Pallava country after its rulers, because Kāñchi is mentioned by Rājaśekhara as a separate country in the southern India.
101. *Pas'cāddes'a*Western India. This comprises Sindh, Western Rajputana, Cutch, Gujarat and a portion of the adjoining coast on the lower course of the Narmadā. Devasabhā is mentioned as its eastern boundary.
102. *Pāñcāla*The Pāñcāla country is located in the Central India or Madhyadeśa which is extended from the foot of Himālayas to the Yamunā and between Vinasana and Prayāga. It is divided into north and south Pāñcālas with Ahiccatra and Kāmpilya as their respective capitals. The two portions of the Pāñcāla country are separated by the river Ganges. According to Rājaśekhara, however, the Pāñcālas of Anturvedī (see No. 2) were highly civilized and their capital was at Kanauj, On page 8 of this work he used the word Pāñcāla to denote the country comprising the whole of the northern and central India.
103. *Pāṭalīputra*Patna, the capital of Magadha.
104. *Pāṇḍya*The modern districts of Tinnevely and Madura in the Madras Presidency. Kālidāsa mentions Urugapura as the capital of the Pāṇḍya king (Raghuvamśa, VI. 59-60).

105. Pāryātra ... One of the Kulaparvatas in the Kumāri-dvīpa. This may be identified with the north-western part of the Vindhya range extending right upto the gulf of Cambay.
106. Pāla ... The words Pāla and Mañjara occur in two places in this work, and in both the places they appear joined together, and are said to be the Janapadas as well as mountains situated in the Dakṣiṇāpatha. These two, therefore, may be taken as one word and identified with Pāl near Mahād. The author of the Periplus mentions Palaipatmai as a sea-port in the Deccan and this is identified by Dr. R. G. Bhandarkar with Pāl near Mahād (see Bhandarkar's History of the Deccan, VIII.). It is quite possible that Rājāśekhara's Pālamañjara represents the same place. But this word certainly does not denote the Pāla dynasty of Bengal since Rājāśekhara locates this Pāla in the southern India.

An alternative identification of this obscure word may also be offered. The Janapada Pālamañjara may represent the Palaesimundus (of the Greeks) mentioned in the Periplus. It is commonly identified with Pārasamudra and is supposed to have been the capital of Ceylon. (see M. N. L. Dey's Geo. Dictionary).

107. Puṇḍra ... Puṇḍravardhana. The district of Malda in East Bengal.
108. Puṣkaradvīpa One of the seven Dvīpas of the world. Jambūdvīpa is situated in the middle, while the Puskarā is the third from Jambū.
109. Pūrvades'a ... Eastern India. This portion lies to the east of Benares and includes within it Assam and Burma.

110. Prthūdaka ...Pehoa in the Karnal district of the Punjab on the river Sarasvatī. Rājasekhara mentions that the Uttarāpatha or the northern India is to be considered as the country lying beyond Prthūdaka. Modern Pehoa is on the northern side of the Sarasvatī and is fourteen miles to the west of Thanesvar.
111. Prayāga ... Allahabad. This is the eastern boundary of the Madhyadeśa or Central India which is bounded by the Himālayas, the Vindhya and the Vinasana.
112. Prāgjyotiṣa .. Kāmarūpa or Kāmākhyā in Assam. According to Kālidāsa (Raghuvamśa. IV. 83-84) Prāgjyotiṣa and Kāmarūpa are the same. Rājasekhara mentions Kāmarūpa as one of the mountains in the eastern India. (see Kāmarūpa).
113. Plakṣadvīpa ...One of the seven Dvīpas constituting the world This is the first Dvīpa from the Jambū which is in the middle of the earth.
114. Barbara ...It is mentioned as one of the countries in the northern India. The Puriāṇas also locate this country in the north or in the north-western provinces. Ptolemy and the author of the Periplus mention the Barbari and Barbarike as an emporium in India, and Cunningham identifies this with Bhambūra (see Cunningham's A. G. p. 339.) on the bank of Sindhu. The country of Barbara is said to be a famous place for sandal-wood which was known as Barbarikacandana. (Ibid. Notes, p 695). Thus, the country of the Barbaras may be identified with the Barbari, Barbarike, or Barbaricum which is situated in the north-west province on the bank of the river Indus on its western course. In this connection, it is worthy of note that since Rājasekhara places this country in the exact north, the northern part of Baluchistan may also be taken as the Barbara country.

115. Bālhaveya ... Rājasekhara locates this country in the northern India. This may be the same as Bhātia near Multan. Native historians and the early Arab geographers mention Bhātia as a strong fortress near Multan on the Indus. Cunningham also mentions it as Bhātia or Bāhiya or Bāhatiya and locates it between Multan and Alor or Aror. (see Cunningham's A. G. p. 294 and Map. ix.).
116. Bālhika ... See Vāhika.
117. Bmdusaras ... A sacred spot in the Himālayas two miles south of Gangotrī. (see Cakravartiksetra).
118. Brhadgrha ... Rājasekhara calls it a mountain in the eastern India. This may represent the mount Everest in the eastern range of the Himālayas.
119. Brahma ... A country in the eastern India. This is presumably the modern Burma including the upper and lower portions.
120. Brahmas'ulā ... Brahmaśilā formed the eastern boundary of the city of Kanauj (see Notes p. 244).
121. Brahmottara ... A country in the eastern India. The northern portion of the Brahma country or the Upper Burma. It may be noted that the Brahma country included both the upper and lower Burma.
122. Brāhmaṇavāha Rājasekhara mentions this as one of the countries in the western India. Cunningham identifies this as the city of Brāhmana captured by Alexander, and called by the Greek historians as Harmatalia, a corrupt or foreign pronunciation of the Sanskrit word Brāhmanasthala. Brāhmanavāha seems to be the Hindu name of the city which the Muhamadans afterwards called Brāhmanābād. It was situated on the eastern reaches of the river Indus. Its present position seems to be in the neighbourhood of Hala in Sindh at two-thirds of the distance from Multan to the mouth of the Indus and it lies parallel to Hala. Here, the ruins of a large city have been excavated recently, where various pre-historic remains have been discovered. This ruined city lies at a distance of 47 miles to the north-east of Hyderabad, and 28 miles north-east of Hala. The place is now known as Bambhraka-thul or the 'Ruined Tower' and this name is derived from a broken brick tower which is the only building now standing. It was undoubtedly one of the oldest cities in India; the historian Bilādhura writing a thousand years ago calls it 'Brāhmanābād-al atiqah' or Brāhmanābād the ancient. (see Cunningham's A. G. pp. 306-318; Map. ix., and Ibid. Notes p. 691).

123. Bhādānaka ... Rājasekhara does not give its exact location but mentions that the people of Bhādānaka talked a language which had an admixture of Apabhramśa like the people of Maru and the Takkas. Bhādānaka, therefore, appears to be the same as the Bhādiya or Bhādiyanagara of the Pāli books. Mr. N. L. Dey identifies this Bhādiya with Bhadaria eight miles to the south of Bhagalpur in Bihar. Mahāvīra, the last Jain Tirthankara is said to have visited this - place. But this identification is open to objection since Rājasekhara mentions Bhādānaka along with Ṭakka and Maru countries, which are situated in North India. Bhādānaka, therefore, may be the same as Bhātadhāna, a country mentioned in the Mahābhārata (Sabhā. ch. 32.) as situated in the northern India. It may be located somewhere between the river Śatadru and Vinaśana. (see Pargitar's map. J. R. A. S. 1908).

124. Bhāratavarṣa This is one of the Varṣas in the Jambūdvīpa or Asia with the Himālayas as the Vaisaparvata. The Himālayas is the third mountain on the southern side of the Mahāmeru which is situated exactly in the middle of the Jambūdvīpa. The Bhāratavarṣa again is divided into nine parts. India is one of them, and is called the Kumārīdvīpa.
125. Bhṛgukacca ...Broach and its surrounding parts.
126. Bhaimarathī ...The river Bhīmā in the Dakṣiṇāpatha which joins with the Kṛṣṇā.
127. Magadha ...The province of Bihar or South Bihar.
128. Mañjara... ...See Pāla.
129. Madhyades'a ...The country bounded by the river Sarasvatī in Kuruksetra, Allahabad, the Himālayas and the Vindhya.
130. *Maru*Rājaputana or Marwar.
131. *Malada*A portion of the district of Shahabad in Bihar. Rājasekhara mentions this as one of the eastern countries.
132. *Malaya*The southern ranges of the western Ghats lying south of the river Kāveṛī.

133. Mallavartaka... Rājasekhara mentions this among the eastern countries. This, therefore, cannot be identified with either Malladeśa or Multan, or Malava or the country inhabited by the Mallois of the Greek historians, since we have to seek for its identification a country situated in the eastern part of India. It is, therefore, probable that the Mallavartaka represents the country in which Mallaparvata or Pārśvanātha hills are situated, namely the portion now forming the districts of Hazaribagh and Manbhum in the province of Bihar and Orissa.
134. Mahārāṣṭra ... The Marāṭhā country or the country watered by the upper Godāvāri, or the land lying between this river and the Kṛṣṇā. This was also called Daṇḍakāranya in ancient days. (see Ramāyaṇa, Āranya, ch. I. and Bhandarkar's Hist. of Deccan. II.).
135. Mahī ... The river Mahī which springs in Malava and falls into the gulf of Cambay.
136. Mahendra ... Rājasekhara mentions Mahendra among the mountains of South India. According to Kālidāsa (Raghuvamśa. iv. 39-40) Mahendra is situated in the Kalinga country. But Rājasekhara includes Kalinga both in the group of eastern as well as southern countries. It, thus, appears probable that Mahendragiri near Ganjam was the northern boundary of the Kalinga country.
137. Mahodaya ... Kanauj or Kānyakubja.
138. Mālava ... Malwa or Avanti. Its capital was Ujjayini.
139. Mālyas'ikhara Rājasekhara mentions this as a mountain in the western India. It cannot, therefore, be identified with mount Mālyavān supposed to be situated near Kīṣkindhā in South India. According to the Rāmāyaṇa, Rāma stayed on this mountain at the request of Sugiīva during the rainy season. Mālyasīkhara of Rājasekhara, therefore, seems to be different from the mount Mālyavān of the Rāmāyaṇa, and its identification may be sought for in the Vindhya range, as a peak near about the Mālava country on the west.

140. Māhiṣaka ... This is a country on the lower Narmadā with Māhiṣmatī as its capital.
141. Māhiṣmatī ... Maheśvara or Mahesh on the right bank of the Narmadā forty miles to the south of Indore. From this city onwards to the south, begins the Dakṣiṇāpatha of Rājasekhara.
142. Mudgara ... The country of Mudgara is identified with Monghyr in Bihar. Rājasekhara locates this in the eastern India.
143. Murala ... Rājasekhara locates this country in South India and characterises the complexion of the ladies of this country as black. It cannot be identified with Kerala, as Kerala is mentioned separately by him. Muralā is the name of a river in South India and it is different from the Narmadā. Kalidāsa mentions (Raghuvamśa. iv. 53-55) the river Muralā as flowing near the Sahya mountain and the Aparāntadeśa. The land lying between Kerala and Aparāntaka near Sahya on the Muralā may, therefore, be taken to be the present equivalent of the Murala country. The country of Murala may, therefore, be identified with the country of Mnaj through which the river Mūlamuthā or Muralā flows and joins as a tributary with the river Bhīmā.

144. *Mekala*It is a part of the Vindhya range called Amarakantaka wherefrom the river Narmadā rises. This fact accounts for its name Mekalakanyakā.
145. *Meru*Mahāmeru, or the mountain situated in the middle of the Jambūdvīpa. It is encircled by the Ilāvṛtavarsa.
146. *Yamunā*The river Jumna.
147. *Yavana*Rājaśekhara locates the Yavana country in the western India. It is well known that the Yavanas were foreigners and they were originally living in countries beyond the Indus Kālidāsa mentions in his Mālavikāgnimitra that the Yavanas were ruling in the western bank of the river Sindhu. Very probably, the south-eastern part of Baluchistan may represent the Yavana country as mentioned by Rājaśekhara and not Gīrnar, Saurāstra, etc. since they are mentioned by him separately.
148. *Ratnavatī*A city on the southern ranges of the Malaya mountain.
149. *Ramatha*This country is situated according to Rājaśekhara in the northern India. (see Bālabhārata 1. 7.). This may represent the country parts near the Raumaka mountain. (see Cunningham's A. G. map vi.) The Viṣṇu-Purāna mentions Rāmas along with the Hūnas, Sālvas, S'akalas and others in the northern India These Rāmas may belong to a foreign tribe and may be identified with the people living at Aornos or the ruined fortress of Ranigat according to Cunningham's A. G. pp 67-84. In that case, it is also probable that Ramatha of Rājaśekhara may represent the Rāma tribe of the Viṣṇu Purāna.

150. Ramyakavarṣa This is the first Varṣa to the north of the Mahāmeru which is situated in the middle of the Jambūdvīpa. Mount Nīla forms the principal mountain of this Varṣa.
151. Rāvaṇagaṅgā According to Rājaśekhara, this is a river in South India. It is difficult to identify this river, but it is likely that it was situated in Ceylon or the Lankā of Rāvaṇa. The Rāvanahrada situated in the Himālayas with an image of Rāvaṇa on its bank seems, however, to be different from this Rāvaṇagaṅgā.
152. Lankā This Lankā seems to be situated in the southern-most parts of the Indian peninsula, as an island somewhere in the Indian ocean. The description of this island in the Rāmāyaṇa as well as in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā and the Bālarāmāyaṇa, does not favour its identification with Ceylon or Sindhala. In the Rāmāyaṇa, it is stated that the river Tāmraparṇī has to be crossed in order to reach Lankā, but this river does not lead to Ceylon. In the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, it is said that the monsoon current starts from Lankā and reaches the Kerala country immediately after. This will not be possible should Ceylon be identified with Lankā. In the Bālarāmāyaṇa also, while describing the returning journey of Rāma on the Puspaka chariot towards Ayodhyā, Rājaśekhara mentions Lankā and its surrounding places first, then in succession the ocean, the bridge or the Setu and the Sindhala island. He also states that Rāma and others espied Sindhala when the Vimāna deviated from the original path in a different direction. cf. तिर्यग्निमानगतिनाटितकेन विभीषण — पश्यस्यग्रे जलधिपरिखं मण्डलं सिंहालानाम् etc. It is clear from this sta-

- ment that according to Rājasekhara the island of Laṅkā is situated on the western side of the peninsula beyond Travancore, while Simhala or Ceylon is on the eastern side of it. The identification thus seems to be improbable.
153. Lāṭa Southern Gujarat including Khandesh or the tract of territory situated between the river Māhī and the lower Narmadā. According to the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, the Lāṭas talked in Prākṛta language and hated Sanskrit. According to the Bālarāmāyaṇa, also, Lāṭa is situated in the western India to the north of the lower Narmadā.
154. Limpāka... .. Rājasekhara places this country in North India. Cunningham identifies (A.G. p. 49) this with the Lapo of Hiuen Tshang and Lambatōe of Ptolemy or the present Lamghan which is a small tract of country lying along the northern bank of the Kabul river and bounded on the west and east by Alingar and Kunar rivers and on the north by the snowy mountains.
155. Lohitagiri One of the mountains of the eastern India. This perhaps represents the eastern range of the Himālayas through which the river Lauhitya or Brahmaputra flows.
156. Lauhitya The river Brahmaputra.
157. Vaṅga The name Vaṅga is only applied to the eastern portion of the delta of the Ganges on the coast of the bay of Bengal.
158. Vaṅjurā Known also as Baṅjulā or Maṅjulā, a tributary of the Godāvarī. The Sahyapāda mountain or western Ghats is said to be the source of the two rivers.
159. Vatsagulma According to Rājasekhara's conception Vatsagulma is a city in the country of Vīdarbha (see also Karpūramañjarī I.)

- This may be identified with the Vamśa-gulma of the Mahābhārata and from this place the river Narmadā rises. In that case, this would be situated in the Vidarbha country. Vātsyāyana in his Kāmasūtra mentions one Vatsagulmaka as different from the Vidarbha (see Notes. p. 148).
160. Varuṇa ... One of the nine divisions of the Bhārata-varṣa. From the order in which the names are mentioned both in the Purāṇas as well as in the Kāvya-mīmāṃsā, some are inclined to surmise that Varuṇa was situated in the north-eastern direction of India, and that it may represent an Indian colony in Central Asia (see Cunningham's A. G. Notes p. 754).
161. Varṇā ... According to Rājasekhara, this is a river in South India, its source being the Sabya mountain. It may be identified either with the river Kṛsnā or Benā which is a branch of the Kṛsnā and rises from the western Ghats.
162. Vallāra ... The country ruled by the Vallāla dynasty in South India seems to be called Vallāra. It represents the country near Venkatagiri including Chittoor and Vellore in the Madras Presidency.
163. Valhava ... One of the countries in the northern India. It may be identified with the Vallapura (Ballawar) one of the hill states mentioned in the Rājataranginī. It is in the south-eastern direction of Kashmir.
164. Vānāyujā ... A country in the north, generally identified with Arabia (see N. L. Dey). Kautilya considers the horses of this country as best. (Kautilya-Aśvādhyakṣa).
165. Vānavāsaka ... North Kanara was known by this name. Ptolemy refers to a town called Banaouasei (Benavas) on the left bank of the Varadā river which is a tributary of the river Tuṅgabhadrā in North Kanara. Vanavāsī was the capital of the Kadamba dynasty and was founded by the king Mayūrvarman.

166. Vāmanaswāmi This is a temple of Vāmana situated in the western part of the city of Kanauj (see Notes p. 243).
167. Vārāṇasī ...Benares.
168. Vārtaghnī ...A river in the western India according to Rājasekhara. It may be identified with the river Vātrak a tributary of the Sābarmatī. The two rivers meet near Kaira.
169. *Vāhīka*The country between Bias and Sutlej, north of Kekaya (see Rāmāyana II. 78.). According to the Trikāṇḍaśeṣa, it is Trigarta. Bāhikas, Vāhikas and Jartikas are identical with the people of this country. According to the Mahābhārata (Karna. ch. 44) Bāhikas living in Balkh are foreigners who invaded into India. They had S'ākala or Sialkot as their capital which was to the west of the Ravi. (see Cunningham's Notes p. 686). Kātyāyana derived this word from वहिस्. Bāhikas were contemptuous in the public eye, and were compared to cows. Cf. वाहीको गौ ।
170. *Vāhika*Same as Vāhika.
171. *Vitastū*The river Jhelum.
172. Vidarbha ...In ancient days, the country of Vidarbha comprised the whole of Berar, Khandesh and portions of the Nizam's territory and Central Provinces. (see Krathakaisika).
173. *Videha*Tirhut or Tirabhukti.
174. Vinas'ana ...The spot where the Sarasvatī disappears in the desert after taking a westerly course from the Thāneśvar. It may be located in Sirhind (Patiala state).

175. Vindhya... ...The Vindhya range or Vindhyadakṣiṇapāda or the Satpura hills between the Tāpī and Narmadā.
176. *Vipās'ā*The Bias or Beas, a tributary of the Sutlej.
177. *Vis'ālā*The city of Ujjain, the capital of Avantī, 178. *Venā*A tributary of the river Kṛṣṇā (see Varnā).
179. *Vaidīśa*Vidīśā. Bhilsa in Mālwa in the kingdom of Bhopal on the river Betwa or Vetravatī 26 miles to the north-east of Bhopal. It was the capital of ancient Daśārṇa, and Agnimitra ruled in this city as a Viceroy of his father Puṣyamitra (see Mālavi-kāgnimitra).
180. *Vokkāṇa*Rājaśekhara mentions this as one of the countries in North India. This country may be identified with Hiuen Tshang's O-po-kien which he places between Felana and Ghazni in Afghanistan. Cunningham is, however, inclined to identify O-po-kien of Hiuen Tshang with the name "Afghan" as the Chinese syllable 'kien' represents 'ghan'. The Indian pronunciation for 'ghan' is kkana and O-po or Ava may stand for Vo. Thus Vokkāṇa may be the same as the O-po-kien or Afghan. The country of Vokkāṇa may also represent the Wakhan Pamirs which lies beyond the Hindukush and the Badāksan.
181. *S'aka*Sakasthan where the S'akas first settled after coming to India. S'ākala or Siakot in the Lahore division, Punjab, may be identified with this S'āka of Rājaśekhara. S'ākala was first made the capital by Greek king Demetrius, Mihirakula, the Huna, also made S'ākala as his capital in 510 A. D. S'ākala was in ruins when Hiuen Thsang was on his travels in India (c. 630 A. D.). It is probable that before his time several Hindu kings had attacked the S'akas and destroyed their capital at S'ākala.

182. S'atādru... ...The river Sutlej.
183. S'ālmālidvīpa... One of the seven Dvīpas constituting the world. This is said to be surrounded by the ocean of Surā. According to Mr. N. L. Dey this represents Chaldea in Mesopotamia.
184. S'iprā ...A river on which Ujjayinī is situated.
185. S'uktamān ...The portion of the Vindhya range which connects the Pāriyātra and the Rkṣa-parvata. This is regarded as one of the Kulaparvatās of the Kumāridvīpa or India.
186. S'ūrasena ...Mathura or Muttra was the capital of the kingdom of S'ūrasenas. Rājaśekhara includes S'ūrasena among the countries in North India and mentions that king Kuvinda once ruled over S'ūrasena.
187. S'rṅgavān ...This is said to be the third mountain to the north of the Mahāmeru which is situated in the middle of the Jambūdvīpa. It is regarded as the principal mountain of the continent Uttarakuruvarṣa.
188. S'oṅa ...Rājaśekhara mentions S'oṅa as a Nada in the eastern India. This is the same Sone which meets the Ganges near Patna.
189. S'rīparvata ...Rājaśekhara locates this mountain in South India. S'riśaila which is situated near Kurnool and at a distance of 50 miles from the Kṛṣṇā station of the G. I. P. Railway appears to be the same as S'rīparvata. It is a sacred spot and two temples, one dedicated to Mallikājuna Mahādeva and the other to Bhramarāmbā Devī, are situated here.

190. S'vabhṛāvati ... A river in the western India. This may be identified with the river Sābarmatī in North Gujarat which flows into the gulf of Cambay.
191. S'vetagiri ... This is said to be the second mountain to the north of the Mahāmeru which is situated in the middle of the Jambūdīpa. It is regarded as the principal mountain of the continent known as Hīranmaya Varṣa.
192. Sar'ayī ... A river in the United Provinces. The town of Ayodhyā is situated on the bank of this river and it meets the Ganges near Chāpiā.
193. Sarasvatī ... Rājasekhara mentions two rivers of the same name Sarāsvatī; one, he places in the northern India, while the other in the west. The first, in the north, is the river which flows alongside Thāneśvara and Pithūdaka and disappears into the sandy desert at Vīnaśana. The second, in the west, may be identified with the river which flows by Pattan in the Baroda territory and into the little Rann of Cutch. The source of the latter seems to be the hills near Udaipur where the Dhebar lake is situated. (see Devasabhā).
194. Sahruda ... Rājasekhara includes this among the countries in North India. This may represent the western Afghanistan where the present Saḡadkoḡ and Sabzawar are situated.
195. Sāhya ... The northern portion of the western Ghats situated between the river Kāverī in the south and the Godāvarī in the north.
196. Sindhū ... The river Indus. Rājasekhara locates this in North India.
197. Simhala ... Ceylon. It is different from the Lankā. (see Lankā).

198. Sūrāstra... ...Kathiawad and other portions of northernmost Gujarat.
199. Sumha ... Rājasekhara mentions this as one of the eastern countries. According to Kālidāsa's descriptions, the country of Sumha is situated on the coast of the bay of Bengal near Vaṅga on the Gangetic delta. He also states that the river Kapiśa is to the south of this country. (see Raghuvamśa iv. 35-38). The river Kapiśa is, therefore, to be located in the land intermediate between Vaṅga and Utkala on the eastern coast. (see Kapiśā).
200. Sūrpāraka ... This is a country in South India according to Rājasekhara. This is identified with S'opārā in the district of Ṭhānā 37 miles north of Bombay and 4 miles north-west of Bassein.
201. Saumya ... One of the nine parts of the Bhāratavarṣa. Saumya seems to be a country situated in the north-west direction of India, if we are to rely on the order of sequence as given in the Purāṇas, while enumerating the different parts constituting the Bhāratavarṣa.
202. Haṃsamārga... This is also called as Krauñcarandhra or Haṃsadvāra, in the Himālayas; it is said to have been opened by Paraśurāma with an arrow. This is identified with the Niti pass, in the district of Kumaon, connecting Tibet with India.
203. Harahūrava ... The country lying between the Indus and the Jhelum, the Gandgarh mountain and the salt range. (see Cunningham's map. vi.). Rājasekhara places this country in the northern India.

204. Harivaṅṣa ... This is the first Varṣa on the southern side of the Mahāmeru. Niṣadha is said to be the principal mountain of this Varṣa.
205. Hastināpura ... The capital of the Kurus, north-west of Delhi. It was situated on the right bank of the Ganges at a distance of 22 miles north-west of Meerut.
206. Hidimbā ... A river in the western India, according to Rājasekhara. This river may be identified with Chambal or Carmanvatī which rises from the Vindhya, flows through the western India and meets with the Yamunā near the Ekacakra which is adjacent to Etawah. This Ekacakra, it may be remembered, is situated near Hidimbāvana according to the Mahābhārata. Since, this river flows through the Hidimbā forest, it is not unnatural that it should be called by the name of Hidimbā. The river Hidimbā may also be identified, as an alternative measure, with the river Gambhīrā which is a tributary of the river S'ipiā in Central India.
207. Himavān ... The Himālayan range which is the principal mountain of the Bhāratavarṣa.
208. Himālaya ... Same as Himavān.
209. Hiraṇmayavarṣa This is one of the seven Varṣas constituting the Jambūdvīpa or Asia. It is the second Varṣa on the northern side to the Mahāmeru. The S'veta range forms the principal mountain of this Varṣa.
210. Hūṇa ... One of the countries in North India. While describing the Dīgvijaya of Raghu, Kālidāsa mentions the country of the Hūṇas in the northern direction, and adds that it can be reached from Persia by crossing the river Vaṅkṣu (sic. Sindhu). The country of the Hūṇas, under the circumstances, may be identified with the country between the modern Waksh and Akṣu, the two tributaries of the Oxus. This identification becomes all the more certain when we consider that Kālidāsa places the Kāambojas in the widely distributed mountainous parts situated between the Hūṇa country and the Himālayas. The country near Sākala or Sialkot in the Punjab or Malwā cannot, however, represent the Hūṇa country of Rājasekhara because these places are mentioned by him with different names. These places, moreover, were acquired by the Hūṇa kings Toramāna and Mihirakula after they had invaded India, and thus cannot represent their original home or even earlier settlements.

211. Hūhuka ... One of the countries in the northern India. It may be identified with the northern Kashmir. Hiuen Tshang while entering the valley of Kashmir from the west, reached a city which he calls Hu-se-kia-lo or Huskara. In the Rājatarāṅgiṇī Huṣkapura is said to be near Varāha or Vārāhāmūla. Huṣkāra or Uskar still exists as a village on the left or eastern bank of the Behat. The country surrounding Huṣkapura or Uskar may represent the Hūhuka of Rājasekhara, and presumably, this may represent the country of Kashmir which is otherwise omitted in the list of North Indian countries given by Rājasekhara on page 94.
212. Hemakūṭa ... This is a Varsa Parvata, being the second from the Mahāmerū on the southern side. This is the principal mountain range of the Kimpuruṣavarsa, and is situated on the northern side of the Himavān and the Bhāratavarsa. (see Kimpuruṣavarsa).

ORIENTAL INSTITUTE, BARODA

SELECT OPINIONS

Sylvain Levi: The Gaekwad's Series is standing at the head of the many collections now published in India.

Asiatic Review, London: It is one of the best series issued in the East as regards the get up of the individual volumes as well as the able editorship of the series and separate works.

Presidential Address, Patna Session of the Oriental Conference: Work of the same class is being done in Mysore, Travancore, Kashmir, Benares, and elsewhere, but the organisation at Baroda appears to lead.

Indian Art and Letters, London: The scientific publications known as the "Oriental Series" of the Maharaja Gaekwar are known to and highly valued by scholars in all parts of the world.

Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society, London: Thanks to enlightened patronage and vigorous management the "Gaekwad's Oriental Series" is going from strength to strength.

Sir Jadunath Sarkar, Kt.: The valuable Indian histories included in the "Gaekwad's Oriental Series" will stand as an enduring monument to the enlightened liberality of the Ruler of Baroda and the wisdom of his advisers.

The Times Literary Supplement, London: These studies are a valuable addition to Western learning and reflect great credit on the editor and His Highness.
